Village waits on construction industry

Circuit court branch here awaits parking lot addition

A branch of the 2nd Municipal District of Cook County Circuit Court will be established in Wheeling approximately 45 days after completion of additional parking facilities adjacent to the village hall.

Circuit Court Judge Harold W. Sullivan Wednesday said the county is awaiting word from the village on a completion date for the parking area. As soon as this date is set, Sullivan said court activities can be scheduled in Wheeling within 45 days.

Wheeling officials, however, have no idea when the planned 100-car parking lot addition will be completed because of delays due to problems in the construction industry, including a month-long strike by area cement truck drivers.

Village Mgr. George Passolt said the project is being readied for bidding but he can make no prediction on costs nor on a completion date.

Village Pres. Ted Scanlon said the village hoped to complete the project by Aug. 1 but that is only a tentative date.

THE NEW PARKING lot will be just east of the municipal building and will be designed to allow for the eventual construction of a fire station behind the lot. Passolt has said the area in front of the lot will be landscaped and sodded to make it more attractive.

The additional parking space is needed to accommodate an estimated 75 extra cars which are expected to be brought to the village by the court. Development of the new parking area was a condition for locating the court in Wheeling.

The decision to open a court branch in Wheeling was made in April after Sullivan met with area police chiefs to discuss overcrowded conditions which exist in Arlington Heights. The Arlington Heights court is currently the only one serving a majority of the Northwest suburban area.

The Wheeling court branch will handle cases for Wheeling and Buffalo Grove. Officials say this will greatly alleviate overloading of court dockets in Arlington Heights.

Sullivan said once the parking area is finished, court officials will need the 45 days to complete transfer of cases from Arlington Heights to Wheeling.

Omni-House program to aid housewives 'find selves'

After 18 years or more of washing diapers, mending baseball uniforms and baking cookies for PTA functions, the suburban housewife suddenly finds her children are grown up.

No longer are there youngsters making demands on her time, and she begins to focus more attention on herself and her own life.

The biggest question is "what next?" There are lots of options, maybe more than the average woman realizes.

TO HELP THE housewife ready to look outside the home for new interests or even a new career, Omni-House: Youth Services Bureau, Wheeling, will offer a special summer counseling session.

"The session is not intended to be therapeutic, but more or less a decision-making group," said Cheryl Torok, Omni-House psychologist, who conceived the idea of reaching out to aid local women who want to know more about the alternatives available to them.

"We realize that these communities don't have everything, but many women may not really know what is available here," Miss Torok said. "If what they want isn't here, we'll find it somewhere else," she added.

In fact, Miss Torok sees the basic function of Omni-House in offering the counseling as seeking out opportunities for women and helping each to decide what's right for her.

"I see a lot of legwork for us in collecting data on what's available," she commented.

As the session is planned, Miss Torok said the first six weeks will be spent in discussing the decision-making process and evaluating options. By the end of the sixth week, she said, hopefully each member of the group will have decided on an alternative and the rest of the session will be devoted to implementing that decision.

JOANN BENEDETTO, Omni-House social worker, will supervise the session. A mother, who recently returned to school to obtain her Master's degree in social work, Mrs. Benedetto was picked for the job because she could relate to the women Omni-House is hoping to reach, Miss Torok said.

"We do a lot with families, adolescents and students here, but one person we don't see often is the housewife," Miss Torok commented. "We want to provide a service for her, too."

The session is scheduled to begin June 25 and continue through July 19, with the group meeting once a week at Omni-House.

There is no fee for the session and up to 10 women of any age may participate. The meeting time will be worked out by the group.

Anyone interested in the session may contact Miss Torok at Omni-House at 541-0190.

'New downtown' facing obstacles in many suburbs

by STEVE FORSYTH

The Northwest suburbs have blossomed, sprawled and grown rich in recent decades while their downtown areas did little but deteriorate.

Communities of 50,000 and more now radiate around centers that are less vigorous commercially and socially than would be expected in towns half their size.

But turning rows of crumbling shops into modern stores and offices has proved a frustrating dream for the relatively few business and community leaders who are committed to it.

The base of opposition to downtown renewal in towns like Des Plaines, Mount Prospect, Arlington Heights and Palatine — all in some stage of redevelopment planning — is simply resistance to change.

IF LIFE IS good enough as it is, many residents ask, why tamper with the unknown? Why attract more people and more cars to the downtown areas?

James Paroubek, the father of the downtown redevelopment plan for Des Plaines, has many answers, at least for his community. They all hinge on two stories of new shops and 10 floors of office buildings in the project known as Superblock.

In the first place, Paroubek says, redevelopment is inevitable in many parts of the nation. Professional planners agree with him as they predict a return to more active centers of business and population, primarily because of land costs and energy shortages.

Through eight years of planning and land purchasing, Paroubek and a group of local businessmen have hung onto their idea of halting downtown deterioration.

THEY POINT OUT advantages to property owners, businessmen and potential workers and shoppers in the new area. Another promised advantage is tax relief for homeowners as the business community assumes a greater share of the tax load. Increased business also means increased sales tax revenue.

Des Plaines is only one Northwest suburb wrestling with downtown redevelopment. Palatine has a disputed plan for a new downtown that will have a rural character. Arlington Heights has had several plans. And Mount Prospect, a late bloomer, is seeking planners to draw up redevelopment proposals.

Money is not the only goal of redevelopment in suburban communities. Lost for years in the category of "Chicago suburbs," many community leaders would like to see each town develop a character and identity of its own. There is no written value for "identity," but local officials and professional planners alike agree it is a desirable goal for a community.

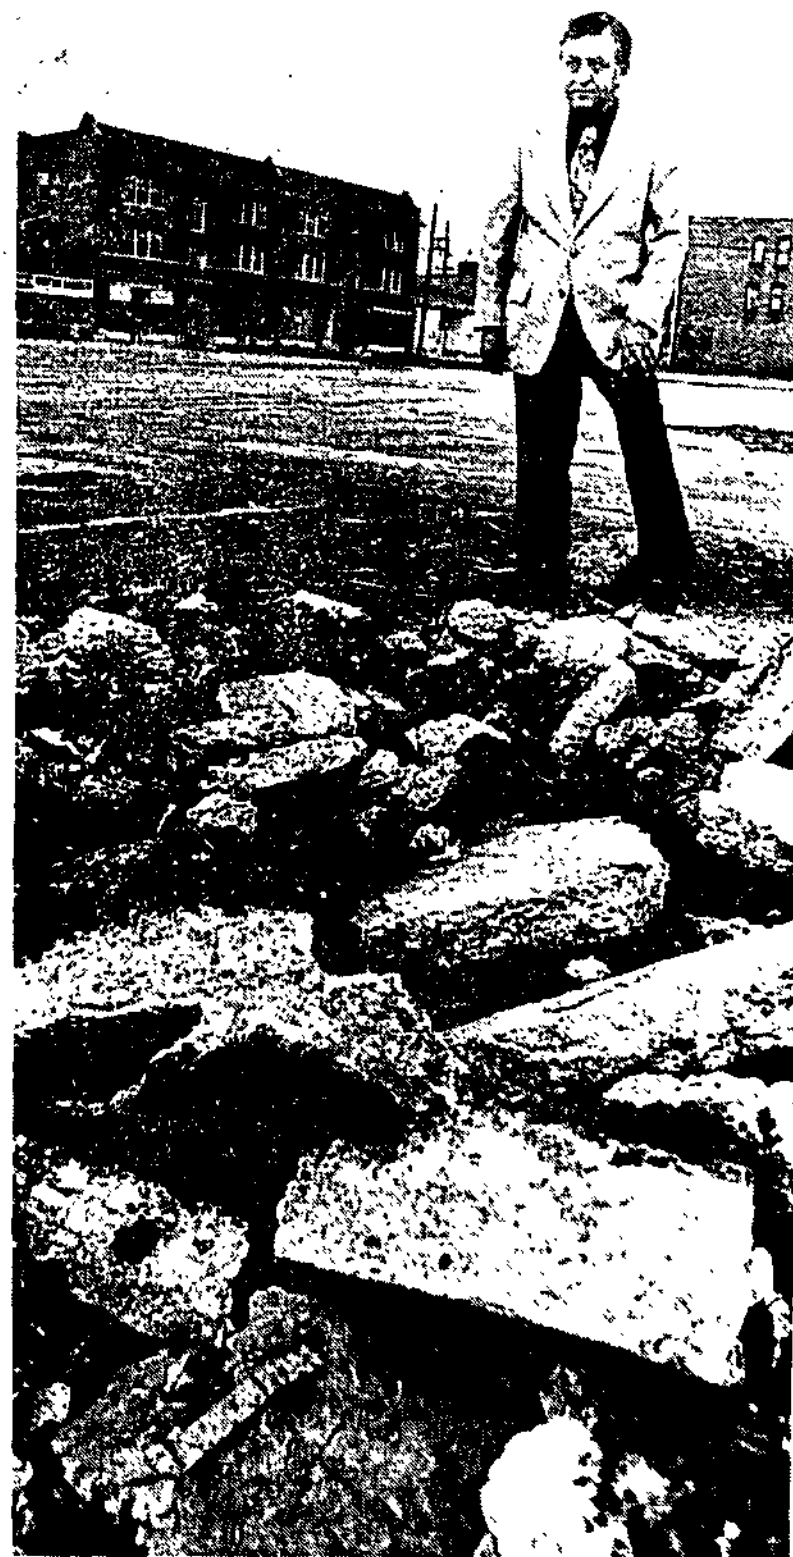

But the benefits of redevelopment are off in the future. The costs are now and the return is only a projection. Government actions needed to spur renewal projects make them politically vulnerable. The problems become a mound of barriers that is difficult for the redevelopment bulldozer to move.

DES PLAINES could serve as a model of the problems and successes in rebuilding a suburban downtown.

The Des Plaines project started in 1965 with a businessmen's group known as the Des Plaines Redevelopment Assn. In 1968, the Des Plaines Tomorrow Corp., a nonprofit organization, was formed with Paroubek as president. The Tomorrow group of 40 to 50 businessmen pledged $5,000 or more to the corporation, to give it power to borrow money.

The pledges — not cash — were used

THE DES PLAINES Superblock plan is rolling to a conclusion after eight years of planning and land purchasing. James Paroubek, president of the Des

Plaines Tomorrow Corp., looks over the rubble that marks the only visible progress so far. New objections now confront the redevelopment plans.

Teacher talks statement expected

The Prospect Heights Education Assn. is expected to issue a statement today regarding the status of deadlocked contract talks with the Dist. 23 Board of Education.

Negotiators for both sides met Tuesday in closed session in a final attempt to resolve the current impasse in talks. The meeting, according to spokesmen for both sides, was extended until today to allow teachers an opportunity to meet to discuss the situation.

PHEA officials gave no indication of what their statement would say, but according to board negotiating chairman Alan Krinsky the decision to delay further action until today was requested by the PHEA.

Tuesday's meeting completed the final step in a four-step procedure outlined in the district's professional negotiating agreement for resolving an impasse. The board negotiating team called the impasse two weeks ago stating it had made its final offer to the teachers.

SINCE THE IMPASSE was called, the teachers and the board have had meetings to complete the steps in the impasse procedure. The steps included having representatives of the board negotiating team meet with the teacher membership and having the PHEA negotiating team meet with the board at-large. Both negotiating teams also met with their respective memberships as part of the process.

If no agreement was made an outside mediator will be brought into the talks.

Approximately $17,500 separates the two sides in their total monetary package proposals. The PHEA is seeking a total package of $123,000.

Several nonsalaried items have been agreed to in earlier talks, including provisions that would allow teachers to read and respond to material placed in their files.

'Cirrusly' speaking, solar halo visible here

by JOE SWICKARD

The Chicago area was treated to an "astronomical phenomenon" Wednesday when the sun, clouds and ice crystals combined to form a tri-color solar halo.

The red, yellow and blue bands entirely encircling the sun appeared about noon, prompting people to call the U.S. Weather Service, Chicago's Adler Planetarium, newspapers and radio stations.

A weather service spokesman said the halo was caused by sun rays being refracted through ice crystals suspended in cirrus clouds at an altitude of 20,000 to 25,000 feet.

One-color halos, with a reddish hue,

are more common, the spokesman said. "I don't remember one having as many colors."

According to the service's glossary, the halos are termed "astronomical phenomena." They can vary in brightness and coloration, from white to red to prismatic spectrums (as in Wednesday's display) depending on the relation of the crystal-bearing clouds to the sun.

THE WHITE halos are caused when the sun light is reflected off the ice crystals, rather than the light being refracted through them, the spokesman said.

Jim Seevers, assistant astronomer at the Adler Planetarium, said the best halos are formed when the clouds are angled 22 degrees from the sun.

The six-sided ice crystals break down the rays of the sun into the primary colors, resulting in the "rainbow" halo, Seevers said.

The halo was the third one experienced this spring in the Chicago area, he said. Wednesday's was the most noticeable because of the bright sun and clear air.

It all depends on, Seevers said, "just how nicely the crystals arrange themselves."

When the phenomenon does not encircle the sun, but appears on either side, they are called "sun dogs," said Seevers. The "dogs" are more common than halos, he said.

The term is "a very old one," Seevers said. The ancients probably called the arcs "dogs" because they appear to be led by the sun, he speculated.

LUNAR HALOS and dogs are also relatively common sights, he said. They are caused by the same elements (the light of the moon being reflected sunlight), but are more likely to be seen because of their contrast to the dark night sky, he said.

Seevers claimed it was pure coincidence that solar halos and dogs will be discussed during the planetarium's summer show, "The U.F.O. Experience," that begins tomorrow.

"We didn't plan it, but it certainly did work out nicely, didn't it," he said.

Arlington's Walsh to resign, move

Village Pres. Jack Walsh of Arlington Heights will resign from office and move to Lake Geneva, Wis., where he recently opened a new business. Walsh, who has headed village government since 1969, said the timing of his resignation will depend on how long it takes to sell his home. Three years remain in his term. A successor is likely to be appointed by the village board until the next local election in April, 1975. Walsh served as a village trustee from 1963 to 1969, when he was elected village president. He was assistant director of the state department of local government affairs in 1972 under Gov. Richard Ogilvie and was elected to a second term as village president in 1973. Speculation that Walsh would not serve out his term began this spring when he left his job as manager of Northwest Firestone Inc., in Arlington Heights to open a new tire store in Lake Geneva.

New Rob Roy plan 'looks better'

Mount Prospect village trustees appear to be leaning toward acceptance of the revised plan for annexation and development of the Rob Roy Golf Course. The new plan proposes construction of 2,350 condominium apartment units in buildings ranging as high as nine stories. The previous plan, rejected by the zoning board but changed before a village board vote, called for 4,500 units in buildings up to 12 stories. The new plan also calls for retention of 18, rather than nine, of the golf course's 27 holes. The plan was outlined Tuesday at a zoning board meeting, where some of the information presented by Kenroy, Inc., the developer, was contested by residents who oppose the project.

Crusade sets record goal

The Crusade of Mercy announced Wednesday a record goal of $40,100,000 for its 1974 drive in Chicago and 149 suburbs. William Ingram, general campaign chairman, said the goal is 10.5 per cent above the $36.3 million raised last year. The Crusade of Mercy will begin its fund drive Oct. 10.

Harper to decide on site

The Harper College Board of Trustees is scheduled to decide tonight whether to go ahead with plans for a second campus. College officials will appear Monday before the Arlington Heights Village Board to discuss their request that the village designate the proposed campus site on its zoning plan. The land, at Palatine and Schoenbeck roads, is owned by the Mayo Foundation. Plans for the new campus have been delayed while Harper has sought approval from the Illinois Community College Board.

Lack of rental rooms 'problem'

The lack of rooms to rent in Elk Grove Village appears to be a rapidly growing problem, according to Jane Broten, director of Elk Grove Village Community Services. One boy from Rock Island, Ill., who found a summer computer job with a local firm and another student from India who lost his roommate were among a number of persons who have called seeking places to stay, she said.

Des Plaines plans revisions

Some proposed revisions in the makeup of Des Plaines city government will probably be ready by July. Ald. Alan Abrams (8th), chairman of the city code and judiciary committee, said the recommendations should be finished as soon as possible to allow time for full city council debate and a special referendum before city elections next spring. Among the revisions under consideration is a change to the council-manager form of government. A city manager would handle administrative duties, with the mayor's position becoming part-time.

Population growth survey set

Households in Chicago and the Cook County suburbs will be among those surveyed nationwide next week in an effort by the U.S. Census Bureau to estimate the future population growth rate of the country. As a supplement to the Census Bureau's monthly survey to determine the rate of unemployment nationwide, interviewers will ask young wives aged 18 to 24 years how many children they plan to have within the next five years. Last year, a similar survey resulted in a total prediction of 2.3 children per young wife as opposed to 2.4 children in 1971 and 2.9 children in 1967.

Expect statement on negotiations

The Prospect Heights Education Assn. is expected to issue a statement today on the status of deadlocked contract talks with the Dist. 23 Board of Education. Negotiators for both sides met Tuesday in closed session in a final attempt to resolve the current impasse in the talks. The meeting, according to spokesmen for both sides, was held over until today to allow teachers a chance to discuss the situation.

No summer gasoline crisis seen

Barring an unforeseen crisis, gasoline supplies for U.S. motorists this summer should be more than adequate if motorists continue their conservation practices, according to a UPI survey. The consensus was that motorists must continue conservation measures of recent months, with the 55 mph speed limit a "must" to prevent any run on supplies.

Professional Boy Scout organizers have quit or been fired in Michigan, Texas and Oklahoma after being caught padding membership roles, Scouting officials reported yesterday. Most Scouting authorities across the country denied their areas were involved.

TWO MILLION cheering, flag-waving Egyptians gave President Nixon the biggest, most tumultuous welcome ever accorded a U.S. chief of state yesterday in Cairo. With Nixon in auto is President Anwar Sadat.

Two million Egyptians greet Nixon

CAIRO (UPI) — Two million dancing, cheering Egyptians gave President Nixon on the biggest welcome of his life Wednesday. President Anwar Sadat later gave him the nation's highest honor and feted him with a lavish banquet in the gardens of Egypt's last king.

But amidst the gaiety of what Nixon described as one of the most memorable days of his life, Sadat injected a note of warning that the problems of the area are by no means solved.

Under palms clustered with red, white and blue lights, Sadat cautioned that a solution to the Palestinian issue is "indispensable to the attainment of a just and durable peace."

Referring to the Arabs who were displaced when Palestine was set aside as Israel, homeland for the Jews, Sadat said a generation of war had resulted from "the aggression committed against the Palestine nation."

"The political solution and the respect of the national aspiration of the Palestinians are the crux of the whole problem," said Sadat. "Its solution is indispensable for the attainment of a just and durable peace."

In his toast, Nixon referred to the Palestinian problems mentioned by Sadat and said he did not come to Cairo "with ready-made solutions for these complex problems, some of which are going to require a great deal of dedicated diplomacy on the part of all parties concerned in order to find a just and equitable solution."

Senate moves to support Kissinger

From United Press International
A resolution calling Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger's "integrity and veracity" above reproach won strong backing in the Senate Wednesday, including the endorsement of Democratic leader Mike Mansfield.

But the House Judiciary Committee turned down a proposal by one of its Republican members for a public hearing Thursday to declare its confidence in Kissinger.

Judiciary Committee Chairman Peter Rodino, D-N.J., ruled out of order a motion by Rep. Joseph Maraziti R-N.J., to hold the hearing, claiming the committee lacked jurisdiction to pass judgement on Kissinger.

The Capitol Hill action came a day after Kissinger told a news conference in Salzburg, Austria, that he would resign unless "some responsible forum" cleared his name of allegations that he ordered taps placed on the telephones of some aides and members of the news media in 1969.

The Senate resolution was introduced by Sen. James B. Allen, D-Ala., in mid-afternoon and quickly picked up 39 co-sponsors. Allen predicted he would have a majority by Thursday.

Four of the co-sponsors, including Mansfield, are members of the Senate Foreign Relations Committee which has voted to reinvestigate Kissinger's role in the placing of wiretaps.

The key paragraph in the resolution states "that the United States holds him as an outstanding member of this administration, as a patriotic American in whom it has complete confidence, and whose integrity and veracity are above reproach."

Sen. Barry Goldwater, R-Ariz., meanwhile charged that the Washington Post had committed "an act of treason" by printing top secret FBI memos which apparently contradict Kissinger's denial that he had initiated the 1969 wiretaps on 17 newsmen and government officials.

"This is plain outright treason and I won't stand for it," Goldwater told reporters after delivering a Senate speech in Kissinger's defense.

The Washington Post story which Goldwater attacked said secret FBI memos showed that it was Kissinger who phoned the late FBI Director J. Edgar Hoover and "started the chain of surveillance which led to the tapping over a 21-month period of 13 high-ranking government officials and four newsmen."

In a separate speech, Senate GOP leader Hugh Scott, without once mentioning Kissinger's name, said "let's not risk peace in the Middle East by searching for headlines. I think they've gone too far."

FDA issues nutrition rules

From United Press International
The Food and Drug Administration issued new rules and guidelines Wednesday for breakfast cereals, juice drinks and certain other items to head off "an irrational nutritional horsepower race" in the food industry.

"These guidelines will assure that nutrition labeling is not exploited or abused by those who would seek to gain unfair promotional advantage or promote a worthless food as something it is not," FDA Commissioner Alexander M. Schmidt said.

In addition, he said pictures on labels showing items not included in a package would be outlawed to avoid deception.

Schmidt told a news conference in Washington the regulations were made necessary in part by other new FDA requirements under which many foods now carry lists of nutrients on their labels.

The regulations probably will go into effect some time early in 1975, subject to revision following a 60-day period for public comment.

Under the guidelines, if a manufacturer is going to add vitamins or minerals to a product he can do so only under a restricted set of circumstances.

Ready-to-eat breakfast cereals, for instance, would have to carry a set amount of vitamins, protein and minerals that is neither too strong nor too weak. If it is in excess, the label would have to tell the buyer that the product has fortification the government considers "unnecessary and inappropriate."

Among other requirements are that diet drinks such as Metacal must carry certain fortification levels, and orange juice substitutes must be fortified with vitamin C to raise them to the equivalent of natural orange juice. Other foods affected by the rules are hot breakfast cereals, tomato juice substitutes, packaged main dishes such as tuna-noodle casseroles and pizza, protein substitutes, maple and other syrups.

The FDA said the new nutritional labels also must present a breakdown of nutrients by serving because there was evidence some manufacturers were increasing the serving size listed to make it seem the buyer was getting a more nutritious product.

General Motors hikes its prices again

DETROIT (UPI) — General Motors Corp. Wednesday increased the price of its 1974-model cars and trucks an average of $118, or 2.4 per cent, by making previously optional equipment standard on many models.

Neither GM nor the Cost of Living Council considered the action a price increase since the added charges to customers are for equipment that was optional. Last month, GM raised the retail prices of its cars, options and destination charges by $105.

Together with general price increases and the added charges for optional equipment made standard, GM's cars and trucks now carry a price tag $546 higher than they carried at the end of the 1973-model year last summer. Of that figure, $152 covers options made standard.

Upcoming trial of Ehrlichman back on track

WASHINGTON (UPI) — A federal judge indicated Wednesday that John D. Ehrlichman's trial in the Ellsberg break-in case may now go ahead as scheduled, thanks to a White House decision to waive executive privilege on evidence he has subpoenaed.

U. S. District Judge Gerhard A. Gesell, who apparently had been prepared to start contempt proceedings if necessary to wrest the material from President Nixon's control, said the "substantial change" in the White House position had eased the looming crisis.

He said it now seems that Ehrlichman can still be tried with his three remaining codefendants, though the trial may have to be delayed a few days beyond its scheduled starting date of next Monday. He summoned lawyers to his chambers for a conference Thursday morning to work out details.

The new prices become effective with cars built on or after next Monday, a GM spokesman said. The equipment being made standard includes steel belted radial tires, power steering and GM's high energy ignition system.

GM car makes include Chevrolet, Pontiac, Oldsmobile, Buick and Cadillac.

Chaing Kai-Shek reported ailing, perhaps near death

• The word in Taiwan is that 86-year-old Generalissimo Chiang Kai-Shek of the Republic of China — a ruler since 1925 and leader of a hopeless campaign to reclaim the mainland since 1949 — is near the end of the battle. Always a frail man, Chiang — not seen in public since July 18, 1972 — is reported more frail than ever, and one source described him as being "at death's door," with frequent lapses into senility. Whatever the precise state of his health, it's conceded his days of power, glory and hope are gone, with leadership in the hands of his son, 64-year-old Premier Chiang Ching-kuo.

• Another aging leader, 78-year-old Argentina President Juan Peron, showed a lot of fight Wednesday. Decrying what he called sabotage of his efforts to being unity and reconstruction to the country, he threatened to quit, and thousands of workers walked off their jobs in support.

• While her husband continues his official trek through the Middle East, Pat Nixon — the most traveled First Lady in history — will be busy on her own. Her schedule will include visits to local bazaars, an ancient mosque, Roman ruins, the palaces of pashas, the pyramids and various schools and hospitals.

• In a daring phone call from his Moscow apartment to New York, dissident Soviet physicist Andrei Sakharov bitterly criticized the Soviet system for "the permanent suppression of non-conformist thought" and "the hypocritical, self-praising, dogmatic and often nationalistic ideology." Declaring this "dangerous for all of mankind," Sakharov also hoped for a world government based on "global human rights" with the "most urgent step" an end to "the persecution of nonconformity."

• The late U. S. Sen. Everett Dirksen had a bypass named after him Wednesday.

LOUELLA DIRKSEN

day, as the city of Springfield designated that stretch of U. S. 66 as Everett Dirksen Parkway. The guest of honor — the senator's widow Louella Dirksen — accepted a key to the city, which she said she didn't think she really needed, and said during the ceremonies she thought not of the stone and concrete of the highway, but the birds singing and the grass and the flowers that "would make Everett Dirksen happy."

• One close call per career should be enough, but for Ann-Margaret — recovered from her famous face-first fall in Las Vegas — there was another one Tuesday night. Filming a rock musical in Southsea, England, she and fellow performer Oliver Reed had to beat a fast retreat when fire swept through a sea-side pier. The pier was virtually destroyed, but the stars were unhurt.

• Don't make those old bookkeeper jokes to Ronald Thompson of Flint, Mich. He is a bookkeeper, but he also spends two hours a day lifting weights, which has produced for him a super-toned 5-foot-9, 200-pound figure and designation as the new Mr. America. He conceded some people laugh at the title and the body-building image, but "nobody pokes fun at me."

Downtown areas looking to the future

as collateral to borrow money for land acquisition. The guarantors did not make money. If the project succeeds, their notes will be torn up. If it fails, they will have to pay what they pledged.

The procedure was further complicated because the group chose to obtain the land without using city condemnation powers. They dealt with the present landowners, including St. Mary's Church, for many years until acceptable terms were agreed upon. Nineteen parcels of land valued at $1.3 million were accumulated, and the stage was set.

LOCAL IMPETUS also is unique because suburbs are accustomed to developers coming to town with grandiose plans that have to be bought through commissions and city or village boards. In Des Plaines, the local backers had to seek a developer who would be willing to accept the project package — complete with land, plans and city endorsement.

Keeping in mind that a developer would be reluctant to deal with a redevelopment plan when he could go to a cornfield instead and put up a new office building without the expense and hassle of several landowners, Tomorrow Corp. announced its own plan in 1970.

Paroubek revealed three major projects estimated to bring $1 million in real estate taxes to the city. Included was Superblock, which has since been redesigned, a 10-story building over the Chicago and North Western R.R. tracks, and the Moehling building, which was to be five units tied together with parking decks.

ARMED WITH the land, which would be sold to the developer (or leased) at the corporation's cost; a plan the developer would have to pay for at cost; and the blessing of city council, which approved every step of the project, the corporation interviewed developers. Refused by many, J. R. Gottlieb & Co. finally accepted.

The city had to make some guarantees and concessions. The major point was a parking garage, something most developers cannot afford to include in a project. Street relocation, sewer and water lines and other details were arranged.

Parking is emerging as the heart of any downtown redevelopment plan — and a major roadblock in some communities. In Des Plaines there is citizen opposition now to the garage and the revenue bonds that will be issued to pay for it. Although a referendum is not required for the bond issue, a small group of residents is calling for it. The same citizens are also complaining that the development and the garage will increase traffic on their residential streets.

PARKING GARAGES are just as much a central issue in Arlington Heights and Palatine, and will probably become a concern of Mount Prospect when planning gets to the drawing board stage.

Douglas Dodds, president of the First Arlington National Bank, is impatient with the village board in Arlington Heights. He has a nine-story building plan that depends completely on the willingness of the village to construct a parking garage adjacent to it.

The village has a parking garage study that pinpoints locations for three garages, but technicalities have held up any decisions. One major consideration is payment, because it is felt a special tax on the business district may have to be imposed. The board says it wants local initiative before it will begin, and much of downtown Arlington Heights is owned by absentee landlords.

Revenue for the Des Plaines garage is guaranteed by Gottlieb, who will lease most of the spaces for tenants of his building. Dodds proposes the same thing for his structure, which will contain offices, commercial shops and condominium apartments.

DODDS HAS HAD other plans for the downtown area, including a bypass of the Arlington Heights Road crossing of the North Western tracks. "I'm doing this simply because I like to do this sort of thing," he said. He explains that he has put in on studies and plans for the downtown area.

Dodds feels that the downtown area has lagged behind its potential. He says, "The downtown level (of development) is a disgrace for the population and income level we have."

His basic point is that Arlington Heights' downtown does not look like the center of a community 70,000 strong. That many people anywhere but the suburbs would constitute a small city, but Chicago and the suburban network tend to wash out each town's population strength.

In the Northwest area, the only suburbs that can really lay claim to downtowns of their own are the older towns on the North Western. It is too valuable a heritage to let it suffocate through deterioration, community leaders feel, but they have a difficult time getting everyone to agree with the necessary changes.

PALATINE HAS A foresighted plan, developed in 1967, that outlines the boundaries of the downtown area. Homeowners and storekeepers at that time were informed of the resolution outlining the area, and were given 15 years to comply with new building standards or move out, to make way for commercial development.

Over the years the resolution was forgotten, or new owners of the properties involved were unaware of the plan. The deadline was postponed twice in recent years, and now the village board is being accused of shoving older residents out of their lifelong homes.

Village Pres. Wendell Jones says the misunderstandings can be solved, residents will not be hurt, and the plan will continue.

The goal is a mall area with specialty shops, Jones said, to give Palatine a definite identity of its own. Three-story parking garages are being discussed because Palatine wants to do what all redevelopment plans seem to require — eliminate on-street parking.

The village and the merchants are divided over the goals, but Jones says the face of Palatine will be changed within two to three years.

PAROUBEK explains the sudden opposition in Des Plaines as political, and says it is being organized by men who have aspirations of succeeding Mayor Herbert Behrel, who will retire at the end of his term.

For eight years, Paroubek and the others have hung on stubbornly. Ralph Martin, vice president of Tomorrow Inc. says it is because "we love our city. We don't like to see a broken down railroad station, vacant buildings, etc."

"Some people don't like change," Paroubek says, "and I don't blame them. But we're going to get the population, probably up to 100,000, and without planning we'll have a hodgepodge."

A redeveloped downtown would, theoretically be self-sustaining. Office workers would use the local facilities, such as restaurants, guaranteeing a weekday clientele for the shop owners. More residents in or near downtown will increase business and lure the shoppers there for many of their purchases.

PAROUBEK SAYS, and other community leaders agree, that the intent is not to compete with Woodfield or Randhurst, because there isn't room to do that, and there is not a commitment from large department stores.

Bankers and others feel the downtowns have missed the boat as far as offices are concerned. Dodds says Arlington Heights, for example, is convenient to the railroad commuters and to drivers from the Northwest Tollway, yet it has no downtown office centers. The downtown area is the logical place, except for the cost of building.

Paroubek said open fields can be purchased for about a dollar a square foot, and offices such as those that surround O'Hare Airport can be built relatively easily. Downtown, owners want about $25 a square foot, partly because the existing buildings have some value or investment. One landowner wanted $75 a square foot in Des Plaines, he said.

LOCAL INITIATIVE appears to be an essential ingredient to redevelopment, partly because the city or village officials want assurances they are doing the popular thing, politically. It is also necessary because a land purchase program has to be formed to deal with the multiplicity of small-parcel owners.

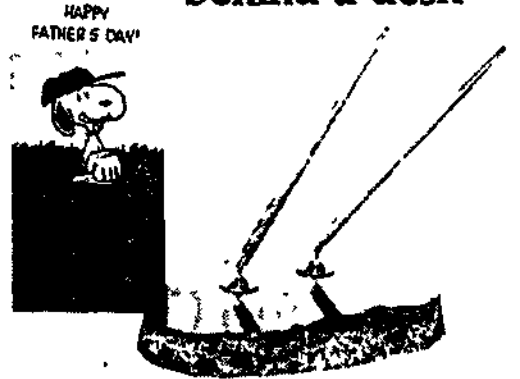

Paroubek said developers will not be standing in line to build new downtowns, so some type of planning is needed well in advance of the work. Residents will not demand redevelopment, although they are expected to benefit from the efforts.

Residents who do object may be motivated by a lack of trust in government, a mood that prevails throughout the nation now, Martin said. The Des Plaines group has been criticized for seeking profits, but Paroubek said profit is not the primary motive.

Gottlieb himself sidesteps questions about why he is involved. He emphasizes the benefits to the community of increased tax values, even though some residents now protest the project will cost the city more than it will make.

It could be assumed, however, that if Gottlieb makes the Des Plaines project successful, he will be sought by other

Family offers $500 reward for vandals

A Prospect Heights family is offering a $500 reward for information leading to the arrest and conviction of vandals who have repeatedly damaged their property over the last four years.

Kurt E. Meister, 905 Wildwood Dr. West, made the reward offer after someone pushed a scythe through the living room window June 3 while the family was asleep.

"We feel we've been singled out," Mrs. Meister said. She added that the scythe incident caused an estimated $300 damage. Previously, she added damage has run as high as $2,300 for just one occurrence.

Through the four years, the Meisters' fence has been set afire, oil was poured on the garden and pellets have been fired through windows. The attacks always seem to come "directly south from us," Mrs. Meister said.

Persons with information may either call the Meisters at 537-5573 or the Cook County Sheriff's Police at 443-6110.

Scholarships total $1,300

Nursing grants awarded to 6

The Wheeling-Buffalo Grove Nurses' Club recently awarded scholarships totaling $1,300 to six area women planning to pursue the profession of nursing.

Four of the scholarship winners already are enrolled in schools of nursing and received aid from the nurse's club to continue their education.

Roberta Horcher, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Marvin Horcher of Wheeling, attends Augustana School of Nursing; Sharon Gac of Buffalo Grove is a second-year student at Harper Junior College; Linda Smith, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Marvin Smith of Wheeling, attends Evanston Hospital School of Nursing; and Diane Dahl, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Lawrence Dahl of Wheeling, is enrolled in Lutheran General Hospital School of Nursing.

THE OTHER SCHOLARSHIP winners are scheduled to enter schools of nursing in the fall and include Debra Poulton, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. David Poulton of Mundelein, and Diane Shanahan, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Shanahan of Buffalo Grove.

Miss Poulton plans to enter Illinois Wesleyan University and Miss Shanahan will attend Harper Junior College.

Each of the applicants for scholarships from the nurse's club will receive a year's subscription to R. N. magazine.

Scholarship recipients were selected through personal interviews conducted by Mrs. Theodore Scherbert, scholarship chairman; Mrs. Emmett Griffie, club president and Mrs. Gary Anderson, Mrs. Donald Wagner and Mrs. Kenneth Wolniak, committee members.

FUNDS FOR THE awards were raised this year by a garage sale and an art auction. This is the eighth year the annual scholarships have been given, since the first scholarship of $250 went to Shirley Parrish.

In addition to providing scholarships, the nurse's club also maintains a free lending closet of sickroom equipment, provides periodical blood pressure screening, helps with blood drives and aids the community civil defense programs.

All registered professional nurses from the Wheeling-Buffalo Grove area are invited to join the organization. Meetings will resume next fall on the fourth Wednesday of each month at 7:30 p.m. in the library at London Junior High School, Wheeling.

Nuclear power unit to resume

by LEA TONKIN

Operations at the Quad Cities nuclear power station should resume this weekend, following replacement of a feeder valve into one of the unit's boiling water reactors.

The valve broke early Monday, causing flood damage in the station, the escape of 350 gallons of slightly radioactive water into a nearby oil separator, and the plant shutdown.

The valve did not meet specifications, according to Clem Stava, a spokesman for Commonwealth Edison Co. in Chicago. Edison and the Iowa-Illinois Gas & Electric jointly operate Quad Cities station. "The valve should have been .56 inches thick, and in the part that broke, it was found to have been .315 to .417 inches," said Stava.

Steam released by the blowout led to the activation of fire prevention spray devices at the Quad Cities plant. Some 70,000 gallons of water inundated the station, and 350 gallons of water "got through a doorway to a nearby oil separator," Stava said. "That's the furthest it got. There was no chance for it to get into the river." The Quad Cities is located along the Mississippi River.

A new valve should be installed at the plant by today or Friday, and the plant will be "on line" again this weekend.

The Atomic Energy commission nuclear safeguards experts indicate that the incident caused no significant damage to the surrounding environment. Yet according to Philip Miller, Citizens for a Better Environment assistant director of research, the blowout is an indicator that additional study is needed of "hazardous technology."

Despite the Quad Cities shutdown and the repair project at Unit II of the Commonwealth Edison's nuclear plant near Zion, the utility reports an 18 per cent power reserve.

This week's incident follows Edison's June 5 acceptance of the Edison Award, the highest award of the electric utility industry, for its role in the development and application of nuclear technology to electric power supply. The award was presented by Edison Electric Institute.

Briefly on business

Cement drivers' strike continues

The strike by some 3,000 northern Illinois cement truck drivers continued Wednesday. No new negotiating sessions were planned, according to Teamster union representatives and a spokesman for the Northern Illinois Ready Mix and Materials Assn.

Talks between Local 786 of the Teamsters, Building, Material Lumber, Box Shaving, Roofing and Insulating, Chauffeurs, Teamsters Warehousemen and Helpers Union and the ready mix group broke off June 6. Thomas Connolly of the ready mix assn. said Wednesday no private meetings with teamsters were held this week.

A Wednesday night meeting between Associated General Contractors and 13 striking Teamster unions in downstate Illinois was preceded by a mutual agreement not to walk out of the session. Strikes by 4,000 teamsters idled some 25,000 workers in 80 of Illinois, 102 counties.

Penny's sales gain

J. C. Penney Co. Inc.'s May sales, benefiting from two major selling events during the period, rose 14.2 per cent over the 1973 month.

Volume for the five weeks ended June 1 totaled a record $690.8 million compared with $525.8 million for the year-ago period, according to chairman William M. Batten and president Jack B. Jackson. The increase amounted to $74.8 million. May was Penny's 134th straight monthly reporting period of sales gains.

Volume for the first four months of the 1974 fiscal year, Jan. 27 through June 1, was up 12.5 per cent to a record $2,093.7 million from $1,825.4 million last year. Gain for the 18 weeks amounted to $228.3 million.

Certificate of commendation from the National Safety Council was recently awarded to Northern Petrochemical Co. in Des Plaines. ## Projection for year 2000 cut to 2 million

Suburban population growth slowing

Population growth in the Chicago suburbs has slowed significantly, according to recent figures collected by the Northeastern Illinois Planning Commission.

Preliminary population forecast figures for the year 2000 gathered by NIPC show a decrease of 1 million in the projections of five years ago. The six-county metropolitan area will still have to deal with 2 million additional residents, instead of 3 million.

The decrease is attributed to a decline in fertility and birth rates, and because migration to the Chicago area has not increased the population here as much as was expected. "Migration has not increased the region's population significantly since the 1950s," the NIPC report says.

NIPC is urging a cooperative effort to discover a realistic growth forecast to prevent mistakes in planning in the suburbs. "Developers' hopes for profit must not convince suburban leaders that the supply of white, middle-class people is unlimited," NIPC says.

THE COMMISSION is most concerned about the distribution of growth, with attention paid to flood plain land, noise from O'Hare Airport and the need for open space. One NIPC conclusion is that by the year 2000, park and forest preserve acreage must be more than doubled to serve existing and predicted needs. "The region has less public recreational land per person than any other of America's 10 largest metropolitan regions," the report contends.

NIPC officials are seeking organized distribution of population near existing services, because it maximizes access to jobs, shopping, schools and cultural events. "An unchecked trend toward more dispersion of residences, and more highways, would surely lead to population densities too low to support public transportation, however subsidized," the report says.

"Dispersed growth would also cost more tax dollars for sewers, schools and every kind of public service. The longer travel distances, and larger land areas used, would add to air and water pollution. The centers of cities and established suburbs would deteriorate as retail trade moves to new shopping centers," the report says.

LOCAL PREFERENCES for growth are being sought because some suburbs welcome growth, while others want to halt it. The size of population has a great influence on the community lifestyles. According to NIPC, there are 12 suburbs alone that are willing or planning to accept 2 million more residents — the entire total increase for the six-county area in the next 26 years.

The 1973 population of suburban Cook County was 2,254,541, according to census figures, and that is now expected to grow to 2,992,000 by the year 2000. The City of Chicago is expected to lose population.

Preliminary population forecasts for local townships include:

Wheeling	133,310	160,000
Elk Grove	84,221	117,000
Palatine	67,023	105,000
Schaumburg	69,996	140,000
Maine	144,453	160,000

The report indicates the racial makeup of the entire region is changing. In 1970, the region was 81 per cent white and 19 per cent other races. In the year 2000, the distribution will be 72 per cent white and 28 per cent other races.

Unchecked trends in Chicago would reduce its white percentage from 66 per cent now to 30 per cent, although successful efforts for racial socio-economic equality could change that significantly, the report says. Other races would constitute no more than 18 per cent of any outlying county, the report says, with the suburban average around 13 per cent.

Wheeling High double victim of bomb?

When something happens like the Wheeling High School fire, it is upsetting, frightening and, yes, angering.

A high school lost 22,000 books because someone, for some twisted reason, thought it was a good idea to throw some Molotov cocktails through some windows.

The motives of the culprits are obscure. Maybe they had a grudge against the school. Maybe they thought a little fire would be a "fun" way to end a Saturday evening. Maybe they don't know themselves why they did it.

Two youths have been arrested by Wheeling police and charged with the crime and even if they are guilty (something we don't know right now) we may never get an explanation of their motive.

BUT RIGHT NOW there is one thing I can say for sure. Whatever the motives of the Wheeling arsonists, the event should not reflect on the student body of Wheeling High School.

It should be unnecessary to say that, because it should be self-evident. But ever since the fire, I have had people coming up to me and saying things like

Education today

by Wandalyne Rice

"Well, you know how Wheeling is." And the assumption those people have made has been that Wheeling High School is, somehow, the only place in the Northwest suburbs where something like that can happen.

That assumption isn't fair, but I think it should be examined closely, because it isn't a new assumption.

More than a year ago, a group of Mount Prospect residents were protesting a proposed boundary change which would have shifted their children from Hershey to Wheeling high schools. In an appearance before the High School Dist. 214 board, Patrick Link, who was then a Mount Prospect Village Trustee, said people in his area opposed the move because "Wheeling has a bad reputation."

PEOPLE associated with Wheeling High School were rightfully incensed by that remark. And they appeared at another board meeting to defend their school. The board also defended the school.

But judging from the reaction I heard this week from some people following the fire, the attitude Link expressed wasn't killed during the boundary discussions. People said things this week like, "Well, you know they have a lot of tough kids up there," or "Well, what can you expect from Wheeling. It's disgraceful."

I told those people they were wrong, individually, but perhaps it's time to face the issue in public. Too often statements like those go unanswered for fear that repeating the accusations will give them credence. But, now, for the record, let's say it: Wheeling High School students are not any different (or any worse) than high school students in any other school in the Northwest suburbs (or the whole country for that matter.)

True, Wheeling has tough kids. So does Arlington, and so does Elk Grove and so does Palatine or Conant. I defy anyone to find a school with 2,500 students that doesn't have some kids who qualify as "tough."

THERE ARE probably a lot of things that contributed to the Wheeling High School reputation. Some of the people I've talked to have said it is because, several years ago, the school had modular scheduling and that resulted in discipline problems. (Modular scheduling has also resulted in those problems at other high schools where it has been tried. Evanston High School, as an example, was criticized for the same reason.)

Some people have said the reputation of Wheeling High School is connected with snobbery. Wheeling residents are middle-class, but they aren't as middle-class as residents of some surrounding suburbs. That is an easy objection to meet — "class" stereotypes are always false.

Some of the reputation may result from the fact that the village of Wheeling itself has had some rough times lately, what with present and former village officials pleading guilty to federal crimes. But it hardly seems fair to blame high school students for that. Not all of them even live in the village of Wheeling, and those who do generally can't vote, so they have little say in village government.

WHATEVER THE origin of the prejudice against Wheeling High School, I suspect it is perpetuated just because it is there. People repeat statements about Wheeling not because they are true, but because they have been said before.

That isn't fair. And it particularly isn't fair to use this tragic (and criminal) fire to further the stereotype.

I doubt there is a high school principal in this country who, if he was being honest, wouldn't admit that the same thing could happen at his school.

Wheeling High School was unlucky. But don't find the victim of something like this guilty.

Kim Tuttle top girl athlete at Maine West

Kim Tuttle, Maine West High School senior, was announced as Girl Athlete of the Year at an awards program recently.

She won the tennis singles in the Inter-scholastic High School Assn. district meet and was voted most valuable player on the basketball team after averaging 27 points a game.

Four other senior girls also were honored as outstanding athletes. They are Karen Neetz, Monica Polacek, Kim Thompson and Maureen Brock. Awards were presented by Karen Kenyon, chairman of the girls' physical education department.

Meet today on second campus

Harper officials expected to decide on site purchase

The Harper College Board of Trustees is scheduled to make a decision today on whether to go ahead with plans to buy a second site for the college.

The board will meet at 8 p.m. today at the college, Algonquin and Roselle roads, Palatine. Last week, board members agreed to decide today whether to proceed with the second site.

College officials are scheduled to appear before the Arlington Heights village board of trustees Monday in connection with their request that the village board set aside land for the college in its zoning plan.

THE LAND, AT Palatine and Schoenbeck roads in Arlington Heights, is owned by the Mayo Foundation. About a year ago, the college first approached the village about the zoning designation, but the case has been delayed while the school sought approval from the Illinois Community College board to plan for a second campus.

The Harper board last week agreed that they could not delay further in deciding whether to buy the land. Several board members advocated telling the village board to set aside the land only until the college can have a referendum to raise money for the purchase.

Representatives of the Mayo Foundation have said they do not want the land tied up by the village board if the college is not going to be able to purchase it immediately.

LAST WEEK, A DEVELOPER, Raymond and Raymond of Evanston, approached the village, saying it was interested in buying the land from Mayo and building a 1,074-unit development on it. Representatives of the developer have said they would be willing to wait until Harper determines whether it can buy the site.

The Harper board held a closed session Tuesday night to discuss the situation with Mayo and possible action on the site. Also Tuesday, the Arlington Heights Park District board voted to support Harper if it seeks the site.

Preliminary plans by Harper architects indicate the park district could use part of the land not needed by the college.

Emotional problems in youths usually involve family

(This column is presented by Forest Hospital in Des Plaines, a fully accredited 150-bed psychiatric hospital known for its intensive programs in psychiatric treatment, research, education and community service.)

Grownups aren't the only ones who require the services of a psychiatrist. Frequently adolescents and even pre-adolescents have problems and are disturbed enough to need professional help.

Dr. Dennis Lambert, director of Clinical Services for Children at Forest Hospital in Des Plaines, noted the main difference is that children are brought in for treatment by someone that they're dependent on, such as parents, teachers, clergymen, baby sitters — someone with whom they're in close contact that will notice the disturbance.

"Some of the symptoms we see in children that indicate problems include under-achieving in school, disrupting the class or failing to go to school by either faking or complaining of real illnesses or because the family neglects to see that he goes," said Lambert. "Further symptoms would be excessive fighting with parents, running away from home, living in a fantasy world, promiscuity (in teens), and drug abuse."

"CHILDREN CAN have recognizable mental illnesses on their own," Lambert said, "but they more often reflect family stresses, strains and tensions existing in the whole family. For this reason, we insist in our program that the family be involved in treatment with the child. We do this both to identify and change these family patterns and to help them learn effective ways to treat the needs of the child outside of the time they spend with us in treatment."

"One of the biggest problems families have is they will recognize that the behavior of a child is unreasonable or excessive but they're unaware of what kind of feelings and emotional tone lie behind such behavior," Lambert noted. "The drug abuse epidemic of the last few years in teens and pre-teens has been an example of that. Drug abuse can reflect many problems. Of course, some children use drugs because of peer pressures — they want to fit in with the 'in' crowd or the group they're running with. But many of these young drug users are depressed about some situation at home or in the family and they feel unable to deal with it. They use the drugs to run away from these problems instead of dealing with them. In any event, the child's drug abuse is labeled as the problem, when often what led to the use of drugs is the actual problem."

LAMBERT observed that not all the children in the same family react the same way to family difficulties. "Perhaps only one child in a family of three will react adversely to these stresses or tensions," he said. "In some cases this may be explained by a genetic factor and the child may have had trouble from birth. In other cases the child may be a little slower or not quite as smart as his brothers and sisters, which makes him feel different or more vulnerable so he reacts to criticism by feeling more inadequate. Or he may be smarter, or have a deformity or handicap. Maybe he simply looks like a no-good relative and unconsciously gets singled out for bringing up bad memories."

"Apart from obvious deformities, children may react differently because they have constitutional differences from the time of birth. Some babies are 'good' babies who don't cry or get upset by things and take life easy, while others are complainers and criers and react to stress by fussing."

Passed blood needs doctor's attention

I am writing to you about my father-in-law. We have a very close relationship, and I love him very much. I am very worried. I fear he is doing himself more harm than good. For about a year now he has been urinating blood. He refuses to see a doctor and says he has seen many of his friends go to a doctor and only become worse. He is 64. Dr. Lamb, could you please tell me what it could be that he has and how serious it could be? What can I do for him? I would appreciate any helpful information you can give me.

Get him to go to a doctor without fail. Anyone who is passing blood in the urine should be carefully examined for the possibility of cancer. Painless bleeding in the urine which starts suddenly sometimes means cancer of the kidney. I don't mean to frighten you, but your father-in-law must understand the significance of his problem.

Less serious problems can cause bleeding. They too require medical attention. I don't believe there is anything you can really do for him other than to do your absolute best to get him to a doctor for a careful examination.

I would like to take opportunity to encourage everyone who has this kind of a problem at any time to go immediately to a doctor for a complete medical examination. Time, in these situations, can sometimes save a person's life.

The doctor says

by Lawrence E. Lamb, M.D.

I have what is known as a nonmalignant fibroid tumor of the uterus. This was confirmed by my doctor a year ago. He said very little about it, and this is why I feel compelled to ask questions. Is there a possibility that a tumor of this kind would hinder pregnancy? My husband and I have been hoping for children for two years, but have had no success in our efforts to have a child.

Can you explain what a fibroid is? And, can they cause bleeding?

A fibroid, sometimes called leiomyoma, is usually a fairly smooth, round tumor in the body of the uterus made up of connective tissue or the fibers similar to those in scar tissue. This means it's fairly firm or fibrous. It is not cancer. Fibroids will enlarge in time in most women. Very small ones can be tolerated and some women have gotten pregnant in the presence of a fibroid tumor. The location and size has a lot to do with this, and it's possible for the presence of such a tumor to interfere with normal pregnancy.

Occasionally these tumors are the cause for bleeding. However, no woman should assume this, and any woman who has unexplained uterine bleeding should immediately seek the attention of her doctor. An examination under these circumstances may detect an early malignancy and make it possible for a complete cure. Delay may mean disaster.

Fibroid tumors as they become larger may get big enough to cause distention of the lower abdomen and can even cause pressure on the bladder and bowels.

Whether or not a fibroid tumor should be removed depends a lot on the circumstances. If it's small, there is no bleeding and it doesn't seem to be enlarging or causing the patient any problem, the doctor may elect not to bother it. However, if it's producing symptoms by causing pressure on the bladder or by causing bleeding, he may elect to remove it. Similarly, he may decide to remove one if he thinks it could be interfering with the possibility of achieving a desired pregnancy.

Urge caution on special ed programs

Northwest suburban superintendents have recommended that area school districts adopt a "wait-and-see" attitude before joining a proposed agency to oversee special education programs for deaf and blind students.

The superintendents presented their recommendation Saturday to a meeting of the Northwest Educational Cooperative governing board. The proposed agency, called the Regional Service Agency (RSA), has been planned to include 49 school districts in the Northwest suburbs and North Shore. It would replace SLIDES, the Suburban Low-Incidence Development of Exemplary Service, which has been providing help for children with relatively rare handicaps in the north and Northwest suburban areas.

The RSA has been in discussion stages since last year, but formation of it has been held up by infighting among the districts about the administrative structure for the programs.

THE RSA would cover physically handicapped, emotionally disturbed and multiply handicapped children, as well as deaf and blind, but the Northwest suburban school districts in NEC are only concerned about the deaf and blind programs, according to John Wightman, head of the Northwest Suburban Special Education Organization.

NSSEO, which is administered by NEC, has enough children to run its own programs for multiply handicapped, physically handicapped and emotionally disturbed, Wightman said. However, 104 deaf and blind children have been in programs under SLIDES, with the regional center for high school age deaf at Hersey High School and junior high school age deaf at River Trails Junior High School.

The superintendents recommended that the districts in NEC delay joining the RSA, according to NEC Board Pres. Edith Freund, because of continued concern about the administrative structure of the RSA. The NEC districts can contract for program for students with the RSA or can join and have representation on the RSA governing board.

Wightman said that whatever the NEC districts decide to do, programs for students will continue. NEC serves all school districts in Wheeling, Elk Grove, Palatine and Schaumburg townships.

Pollution wins again

Big Industry has demonstrated, once again, that it can win the deplorable right to pollute, even if that victory must come through the courts and may be only of a temporary nature.

Last week, a three-judge federal appeals court panel ruled that the Reserve Mining Company may continue to pollute Lake Superior. The court's action overruled the decision of U.S. District Court Judge Miles Lord, who had ruled in April that Reserve Mining must halt production.

The issue was and is the annual dumping of 87,000 tons of taconite wastes in Lake Superior, and the daily discharge of 25 tons of airborne waste — which makes the Reserve plant at Silver Bay, Minn., the biggest discharger of waste in the nation.

What made this more than an ordinary pollution case was that Judge Lord had ordered the complete shut-down of the Reserve plant, which would have put 3,100 persons out of work — because of the health menace posed to some 150,000 persons affected by Reserve's pollution.

However, this pollution move has been permitted to continue. The three-judge panel's decision was based on the charge that there was not sufficient evidence to back Judge Lord's decision. The panel said it would reconsider the ruling after 70 days, after the company has filed a clean-up plan, but in the meantime, Reserve's pollution will go on unabated.

Most astounding is the logic which the judges used as the basis for their decision. Although they reported the discharges could not be seen as a hazard, they stated:

"It is clear that the air of Silver Bay, although polluted by a statistically significant level of excess fibers, is not equivalent to the contaminated air found in an asbestos factory."

In this illogic is another triumph for the kind of Big Business which acts irresponsibly towards the community it serves (or pollutes). It is the kind of irresponsible action which uses the jobs of 3,100 workers as ploys against the clear need to prevent destructive pollution.

For a short time six weeks ago, it appeared that Reserve Mining and its parent companies, Armco and Republic Steel, were going to be held responsible for their pollution.

Instead, we have seen a triumph for a corporation which, as shown by the trial record, has done nothing but obstruct the efforts to clean up its industrial operation. We can only hope, for the sake of the environment, that the three-judge panel requires the corporation to police its own property and clean up its mess. If Reserve's record holds, however, it shall remain a health threat on the northernmost of the Great Lakes.

Women exercising power

by BOB LAHEY
Political Editor

Men in politics are more and more frequently receiving object lessons in the fact that the age of women in politics is dawning. It has not yet quite cleared the horizon, but before long it is going to come up like thunder 'cross the bay.

Women are passing out of the sloganeering and marching stage. They are growing tired of gathering names on long sheets of paper. They are weary of writing and wiring legislators.

They have discovered that both of these methods are inferior to the crucial ingredient of politics: votes.

In short, they have wearied of petitions and pressure, and are beginning to exercise power.

That was demonstrated in microcosm last weekend when women in the 12th Congressional District serving as electors who will choose delegates to the Democratic National Convention served notices on the other electors that one of the delegates is going to be one of them.

Discarding the wheedling and cajoling tactics of the past, the women simply declared that they had a large bloc of votes and they intended to use them to elect Julie Sass of Elk Grove Village. Acting as their spokesman, State Rep. Eugenia Chapman of Arlington Heights left unspoken the obvious corollary, that they

Julie Sass

Eugenia S.
Chapman

would use them to try to block any candidate that didn't accede to their demands.

This tactic was greeted with admiration by men who share the belief that more women in politics is good; with amusement by the politicians who have been shrewd enough to see it coming and to prepare for it by including women in.

And it was greeted with something resembling embarrassed outrage by those who still consider the women delegates as somebody to serve the punch and head up the decorations committee.

That is all to the good, and it is evidence that the growing numbers of the relatively young movement are beginning to discover the hard-earned expertise of women like Mrs. Chapman, Rep. Giddy Dyer, R-Illinsdale, and Sen.

Esther Saperstein, D-Chicago.

They have been in the trenches for years, and it is their combat experience that will win the women's battle in Illinois.

For that reason, it would be pleasant if the women would concentrate on learning the realities of politics — and using them — and less on denigrating the politicians they must convince, or defeat, as chauvinists.

Not being a regular reader of Germaine Greer, I have never quite grasped the necessity of rewriting the English language in order to recognize the abilities of women. Something to do, I suppose, with the mystique of militancy.

You cannot be a loyal son of modern Mother Russia and go around badmouthing dialectical materialism. You can't be one of the people of the People's Republic without babbling quotations from Chairman Mao. If you're black and call yourself Negro, you're an Uncle Tom.

A woman who addresses the guy running the meeting as Mr. Chairman (rather than chairperson, or worse, chairone) is a traitor to her sex. And the male creep who would dare use the term Madam Chairman is unspeakable, and is to be publicly humiliated.

That is frivolity which does nothing for political advancement. If you got the votes, baby, you got 'em. If you don't, you ain't gonna get 'em by calling names.

The day will come when a woman will be elected to a high post in Illinois. And when it does, I hope she doesn't fouse it up by insisting on being called Ms. Treasurer or Ms. Speaker.

Will Nixon obey court?

by HELEN THOMAS
UPI White House Reporter

WASHINGTON — The new White House cliffhanger is whether President Nixon will abide by a Supreme Court ruling in the Watergate case.

He won't say at this stage. Several months ago Nixon reaffirmed a statement by his constitutional lawyer, Charles Alan Wright, that he would abide by a "definitive ruling" of the high court.

Wright made the statement in the aftermath of the firing of Archibald Cox as special prosecutor when the question of presidential power came into full public focus.

But in recent days, Nixon's spokesman, including his chief Watergate lawyer, James D. St. Clair, have refused to restate a presidential intent to comply with a Supreme Court decision.

"That is a hypothetical question, frankly," St. Clair told reporters at one point. "I don't know that I would care to answer it at this time."

St. Clair also has said Nixon will be subject to the "garden type criminal law" only when he is a private citizen again.

The Supreme Court's action to review a petition by Special Prosecutor Leon Jaworski for 64 more of Nixon's tapes, for use in the trials of seven former White House aides and confidants accused in the Watergate cover-up, has thrust the question of presidential compliance with a court ruling out of the realm of the hypothetical.

It brings the high court into the Watergate controversy for the first time, and sets the stage for a historical ruling on the power of the chief executive.

A ruling in favor of the President could be a strong factor in dampening impeachment moves in the House, and would bolster the President's position over use of executive privilege to deny further tapes and documents to other inquiries in the federal courts and the House.

The boon to him would be incalculable in terms of his survival in office.

On the other hand, a Supreme Court decision ordering Nixon to comply with a ruling by Federal District Judge John J. Sirica that he must turn over the tapes to Jaworski would be a tremendous setback for the President.

The tapes would provide further information on Nixon's relationship with his top aides during his re-election campaign and on the Watergate scandal, at a time when the House could be considering possible impeachment.

A refusal by Nixon to comply with the decision could cause a constitutional crisis. Some members of Congress, including Sen. Charles H. Percy, R-Ill., say it could provide grounds for prompt impeachment.

Presidential resistance to the Supreme Court would reinforce arguments by Nixon's lawyers that he is not subject to court edicts in his capacity as the chief executive.

In the final analysis there may be a confrontation between the White House and the Supreme Court on whether the laws of the land apply to the President. (UPI)

James
St. Clair

Trustee blasts ethics editorial

Fence post

letters to the editor

Your editorial on the village of Palatine ethics ordinances reflected misunderstanding of the whole direction of ethics legislation in Palatine. Apparently the editorial board of The Herald is unaware that Palatine has passed and is considering a whole series of ordinances dealing with ethics. The editorial singled out only one ordinance dealing with realtors and brokers for criticism as if it were the only approach Palatine has taken to prevent conflict of interest situations. This is inaccurate and a distortion of what is really being attempted in Palatine — the elimination of conflict of interest situations by any public official.

The editorial board would be accurate in its criticism, if it were only the intention of the board to single out realtors and their brokers. Palatine, however, has passed other ordinances already dealing with precisely the areas and individuals the editorial criticizes Palatine for not including — engineers, employees and owners of construction firms, salesmen and also lawyers. Apparently the Herald is unaware that this ordinance is already on the books in Palatine. The Herald should have done better investigating before editorializing.

The Herald calls on Palatine to adopt full disclosure legislation. We intend to do precisely that. Is The Herald unaware that a task force has been named to develop just such an ordinance and that the 1971 never-adopted disclosure plan and other suggestions considered but never adopted by the state legislators, are currently under review? The Herald criticizes the village of Wheeling for not acting on this type of legislation but then turns around and criticizes Palatine even though it has taken steps. The Palatine legislation banning secret land trusts adopted by Palatine last year is the strongest in Illinois. Why only a passing reference concerning this landmark legislation? The Herald editorial fails to mention that liquor licensing has been broadened and made public in Palatine by recent ordinances that require board discussion and approval of the mayor's recommendations on liquor licenses. This action is something The Herald chides Wheeling to do — Palatine has already acted.

Disclosure ordinances alone are insufficient. The Herald places all its eggs in the disclosure basket. This is naive. We in Palatine believe it is necessary to first define conflict situations as we have in every ordinance passed so far. Disclosure must be viewed in light of standards adopted by the board. Palatine plans to continue to define conflict situations through the passage of a code of ethics for all public officials elected and appointed. We believe this is necessary in addition to disclosure.

The Herald criticizes the ordinance on realtors which requires signed affidavits and outlines violation penalties because it might require investigation to enforce. Does The Herald not believe that disclosure laws need investigation for enforcement? I get the unfortunate feeling that The Herald believes that mere disclosure will solve all problems. This simply is not true.

The Herald should begin to look deeper into how to prevent local conflicts of interest. Far from criticizing one ordinance out of many passed or soon to be passed in Palatine, The Herald should write an editorial which reflects a total approach to the whole problem of ethics. It is a difficult and complicated area, but worthy of attention in a second editorial. I call on you to retract your uninformed editorial.

Superintendent defended

I am writing in reply to the article that appeared in The Herald on June 7 titled "Administration center employees back Ervill." I happen to be both an employee and a parent of Dist. 59. I may be fairly new to the district as an employee but as a parent I lived in the district for over 14 years and have two children. One started kindergarten and graduated from this district and my other child is still attending junior high here.

I have seen many superintendents in my 14 years and I feel that Dr. Ervill has done a great deal of good for our children. I have always been very close to the schools and watched very carefully what has gone on with my children's education.

As a parent, I feel that people should be more tolerant and cooperative instead of tearing our district apart. Dr. Ervill has our children in mind at all times and I strongly support him.

Private gold ownership likely to pass Congress

by BOB LAHEY

Legislation to end a 40-year ban on the private ownership of gold appears all but assured after approval from two major sources.

The legislation has been a pet project of U.S. Rep. Philip M. Crane, R-12th, since he entered Congress in 1970.

Having been rejected in the House on several occasions in the past, the gold ownership bill was supported in a House subcommittee hearing Tuesday by Treasury Sec. William E. Simon, and also won approval of Rep. Henry S. Reuss, D-Wis., previously one of the strong opponents of the measure.

Reuss, from Milwaukee, is considered an ultraliberal and perhaps the outstanding congressional expert on the gold market and American and foreign currencies.

His support of the measure would appear to guarantee its approval. In the last of several attempts to restore private ownership in the House, Crane lost by a tie vote.

The gold measure was approved as part of the International Development Act (IDA), already passed by the Senate, which was approved by the Banking and Currency Committee's International Finance subcommittee. Both Crane and Reuss are members of the subcommittee.

Crane originally sought a Sept. 1 deadline for ending the ban on gold ownership, instituted in 1934 by President Franklin D. Roosevelt. That date met opposition because international monetary meetings are scheduled in early September. The bill, with a Dec. 31 deadline, was approved after Reuss said that date would be acceptable to him.

THE SUBCOMMITTEE had rejected, by an 8-2 vote, a motion by Crane to table the bill subsequently approved, and to substitute a bill with his Sept. 1 deadline.

Yesterday he introduced a bill with a compromise date of Sept. 30 which he will ask the full Banking and Currency Committee consider when the IDA bill comes before it, probably within a week.

Simon had told the subcommittee that he will urge President Nixon, who has authority to lift the ban without legislation, to do so, "probably before the end of the year."

Simon said Roosevelt's reason for banning private ownership, to devalue the dollar and drive up the price of gold, is no longer valid and that private ownership could slow inflation. Crane has repeatedly used similar arguments.

County approves new MEG grant

Federal and state funds for continued operations of a suburban undercover police drug enforcement team operating in Cook County and for communications equipment for Wheeling and Buffalo Grove Police were endorsed by a countywide commission Tuesday.

The Chicago-Cook County Criminal Justice Commission recommended to the Illinois Law Enforcement Commission that funds be awarded to continue Cook County's Metropolitan Narcotics and Dangerous Drugs Enforcement Group (MEG).

The local commission endorsed a grant of $461,250 for MEG to continue operations through June, 1975.

The criminal justice commission also recommended a $6,560 grant for Buffalo Grove Police to purchase five additional portable radio units for use with the village's central dispatching system.

Partial funding for the NORCOM communications system planned by Wheeling and 12 other suburbs also was endorsed by the commission.

Miller chases Hogan's myth at U.S. Open

MAMARONECK, N.Y. — Johnny Miller had so many things to do, he didn't get much of a chance to warm up. It didn't matter that much. The mercury had hit 92 degrees. That's hot enough for anybody, even Johnny Miller.

Still, he was concerned Monday when he walked up to hit his first shot at Winged Foot Golf Club, where he begins defense of his U.S. Open title today. He wished he had been able to hit a few practice shots before making it to the first tee. Now it was too late.

"I'll probably dub this one," he said. Johnny Miller addressed the ball, made a picture-smooth shoulder turn, brought all his power back down against his strong, straight left side and let fly. C-11-c-k!

Everybody should dub his first shot the way Johnny Miller did.

The ball took off beautifully, boring through the oppressive humidity, cutting the fairway evenly in two, and finally coming to rest right out there in the middle, 270 yards from the point it began its flight.

Johnny Miller never so much as changed expression. He started down the fairway briskly, and looked not so much like a man who was working, or practicing his work, but like one completely enjoying himself. Why not?

The blond, 27-year-old San Franciscan has everything going for him: money, prestige, good looks and momentum. He also has something else going for him in this one. A little extra cushion you could call it, in the form of the knowledge that nobody has managed to win a pair of U.S. Opens back-to-back now in more than 20 years. Last man to do it was Ben Hogan in 1951.

"No one has won it twice in a row since Hogan," said Miller. "Nobody ever repeats, so I've got everything to gain and nothing to lose. I think I'll be all right in this Open. It's entirely different for me than it was a year ago this time. Mentally, anyway."

"I was a young lion, so to speak," Miller went on, employing one of the cliches he obviously had picked up in some golf story he had read. "I had come close, won a few tournaments, but basically I was far from arriving. When I won the Open, then the World Cup and the five tournaments this year, well, maybe you could almost say I've arrived... even though some times I wonder if I have."

Johnny Miller can stop wondering. He's arrived, and what's more I think he knows it. One of the things which makes me suspect that is the way he talks about his game.

"I feel my game is a good game, not a fluke," he said. "If you've got it, you've got it." He suddenly realized how that sounded and started laughing, saying, no, no, he hadn't meant it to come out that way.

"Well, there's some truth to it," he finally gave in. "The last two weeks I was eight under and 11 under in the tournaments I played. I didn't win, but finished tied for third in Philadelphia, which was exactly where I finished before the Open last year. So maybe that's a good omen. What I'm saying, though, is that I don't find it one week and lose it the next four. If you've got a good solid game, you don't have the big valleys and big peaks, you just poke along like Nicklaus. Jack has had a little bit of a slow year, but he's still won a bunch of money."

Jack Nicklaus has won a bunch of money, all right, $115,632, but he's only fourth on the money winners list. Nobody has won more than Johnny Miller. He has bagged $203,690 to lead everybody.

But now, back at Winged Foot, he had reached his drive and now the caddy was filling him in on the bunkers up ahead on both the left and right-hand sides. Miller backed up off his ball and, after checking with his caddy, made a mental note of the yardage by using a nearby tree as his marker.

Then he made his second shot, which landed on the green, 15 feet from the stick. He got down in two for his par and seemed reasonably satisfied.

Johnny Miller walked toward the second tee, talking about some of those things anyone needed to succeed on the tour. "Good sound fundamentals, and a good brain in your head," he said. "You can't play this game on our level without being a good thinker."

The defending U.S. Open champion has improved there also.

He used to make a bad shot and lose his composure.

Not so much anymore. In cases like these, having money generally helps.

Locascio helps keep SIU in baseball World Series

Southern Illinois University's baseball team kept its hopes alive for a national championship Tuesday.

The Salukis rallied to oust Northern Colorado, 5-3, at the 28th annual College World Series in Omaha, Neb.

Helping to key the come-from-behind victory was one of four Herald area players on the Salukis — Jim Locascio. This former Arlington High School and American Legion performer was part of a delayed double steal in the crucial two-run fifth inning against the Cinderella team from Colorado.

Trotting going into the inning, sophomore speedster Steve Shurtzler singled and stole second. After Locascio reached safely, Shurtzler scored from third as Locascio swiped second.

Dewey Robinson, only a freshman, worked the remaining 8 1/3 innings, limiting the Bears to two hits while striking out seven. It was only his second win in three decisions.

Texas, holder of a brilliant 54-7 record, spotted Oklahoma, 43-8, three second-inning runs Tuesday before coming back with a 13-hit attack that bumped the Sooners, 10-4.

Miami and fifth-ranked defending four-time champ USC were to meet last night in the battle of the unbeaten. If Miami lost, Southern could eliminate the Hurricanes today.

Earlier in the week, Southern defeated Seton Hall in the opening round of the tourney, 5-1. Helping ignite the rally in that game was former Wheeling High School star, Bert Newman. He singled in the third inning and scored to put the Salukis in front for good.

The Salukis could have given themselves a tremendous shot at the national title by holding their lead against Southern California. Racing out to a 3-0 advantage, they eventually lost 5-3. Southern is now 49-11 overall.

Also on the team besides Locascio and Newman are Jim Bokelmann, a pitcher, and Jim Wilkins, an infielder-outfielder.

JOHNNY MILLER, defending U.S. Open champion, starts today at Winged Foot Golf Club in Mamaroneck, seeks to become the first repeater since Ben Hogan won New York. back-to-back titles in 1950 and '51 when the Open

Hal Sprehe game today

The weather beaten Hal Sprehe Memorial All-Star game is scheduled to be played today at the Prospect High School field. Three previous attempts have been washed out.

The game will begin at 4 p.m. One of the area's standout pitchers will not be able to perform in the game. Larry Monroe, from Forest View, signed himself out of the game when he put his name on a contract with the Chicago White Sox.

Monroe's replacement as the South team's starting pitcher hasn't been announced but Buddy Hughes of Palatine will still open the first three innings for the North.

Tickets are $1.00 for adults, 50c for students and 25c for children. All proceeds will be donated to the Hal Sprehe Memorial Fund.

Jim Locascio

four teams left in the double elimination tourney. Today the Salukis will take on Miami, ranked No. 1 in the nation along with Texas. In the other half of the doubleheader, defending champion Southern California will take on Texas at Roseblatt Stadium.

Northern Colorado chased Saluki starter Rob Klass in the first inning after he gave up a single to Jeff Simpson and issued three walks to force Simpson home.

Young Bison will see better days

by KEITH REINHARD

For a season that began all too slowly, Buffalo Grove's first baseball campaign certainly finished up too fast.

Eight games into their schedule the Bison won-loss record might have prompted disaster relief from the Red Cross. The immediate outlook wasn't good and the days must have gone by agonizingly slow for coach Fred Van Ilen and his fledgling crew.

It was to have been somewhat expected, of course. Buffalo Grove was brand new at the game of varsity baseball. The players were at a disadvantage in terms of age and experience every time they took to the field this past spring.

"We weren't exactly bubbling over with enthusiasm at that stage of the season," Van Ilen recalled. "But we weren't down on ourselves either."

"Up to that point and through the whole season, there weren't that many ball games in which we weren't competitive," he went on.

This was especially true up to that point. While their log read 0-8, two had been lost by a single run, another by two runs and four games had been dropped by slim three-run margins.

An 11-2 setback to Conant had been the only romp absorbed by the Grove nine. As it turned out, there were only two others (to Arlington, 15-0, and to Wheeling, 10-4) the entire remainder of the season.

Still, it was at this mid-season juncture when the things began to slowly turn around for the Bison. Twirler Dave Smithern went out and handcuuffed hosting Forest View on five hits and Buffalo Grove went on to tame the defending conference champs, 2-1, for the school's first varsity diamond conquest.

In near succession, Van Ilen's bunch just missed winning a couple more decisions, tying with Elk Grove and then going into the ninth inning before losing a 3-2 heartbreaker to Highland Park in opening round district playoff action.

And then a few of those breaks started swinging the Bison way. In their second to last contest of the season, they knocked off a potent hitting Prospect squad, 5-4, and they closed down the spring by nipping Conant 4-3.

The late surge could not prevent the Grove from occupying the Mid-Suburban League's South Division cellar with a 3-13 standard. It did not stop Van Ilen from looking optimistically ahead, either.

"It's too bad the season couldn't have lasted a little longer because I think it took us nearly that long to become adjusted to this level of play. At the same time I think it means we'll be starting up next year on a par with the rest of the league."

"That wouldn't be too hard to take," Van Ilen continued, "when you consider how many years it can take a school to build up a program."

That fact that his whole club will be back again next season isn't too hard for the mentor to take either. Led on the mound by Smithern and at the plate by Tony Spinelle, the Bison fashioned respectable team pitching and batting averages that can only improve in 1975.

Spinelle earned all-conference honors, set a new MSL record by blasting six home runs, tied for third in the league with 16 RBIs and fashioned a strong .291 hitting tempo.

Smithern, who accounted for all three Buffalo Grove hill victories, teamed with Brad Johnson to carry the brunt of the pitching load. Johnson ranked 18th best in the circuit among regular hurlers with a 3.24 earned run average.

The team will also get a boost for two more years from soph Mark Dentler, who paced the team in runs and along with Dave Derrig was one of the club's better hitters. Late in the season, Van Ilen also elevated a promising freshman, Mike Ledna, to the varsity and he might have the brightest future of them all.

"We'll have our work cut out for us but our feet are wet now and the kids gained some confidence toward the end of the season that I think will spill over into the following year," Van Ilen summarized.

Dave Smithern

Fred Van Ilen

Huskies easily retire Paddock Cup

Even when you change the scoring system, Hersey High School still comes out on top of the Paddock Cup standings!

THE PADDOCK CUP

For the third consecutive year, the Huskies have paced Paddock Cup rankings, symbolic of the best overall sports program in the Mid-Suburban League.

The Huskies won titles in 1972 and 73 when the winner was determined by total points accumulated. Swimming did not count in previous standings because it is not contested at Dist. 211 schools.

But it was included this year when scoring was changed to an average number of points earned per sport. Hersey averaged 8.85 to easily surpass Arlington which had an 8.60 mark. Thirteen points represents perfection, or first place in every sport. The first Dist. 211 school to show up was Fremd with an 8.27 average and third place.

Hersey won by such a wide margin that Herald Sports Editor Bob Frisk presented the Huskies their award at last week's spring sports banquet before final results were tabulated.

Two Paddock Cups have been retired by virtue of three straight wins. Arlington compiled four consecutive Cups before Hersey dethroned the Cardinals in 1971-72.

Complete 1973-74 Paddock Cup standings and final totals for spring sports are included below.

Business, not sport, motivates Gary Davidson

by MURRAY OLDERMAN

NEWPORT BEACH, Calif. — The veneer has been stripped back to expose the raw lumber. There's no doubt in Gary Davidson's mind what the World Football League is all about. It isn't sport.

It's business. Which, in his mind, is why there should be a WFL.

"If it's economically feasible," he says, "and you can create a market and create a demand, then it makes sense to do so."

And so in the last year, Davidson, opportunist-entrepreneur, has created a 12-team professional football league on top of an already existent 26-team National Football League and hasn't the slightest compunction about its feasibility.

"There are 15 additional markets," he expounds, "which do not have pro football that I consider major league — like Seattle, Phoenix, Jacksonville, Birmingham, Portland, Toronto, San Antonio — that have major league characteristics if you compare them to cities that now have major league teams."

"Orange County, which people think of as a stepchild to Los Angeles, has 1.9 million people and is a major area. The Rams are not an Orange County product."

Gary Davidson

Gary Davidson is. And he has his league headquartered there in up-percrust Newport Beach on the ocean. It helps his perennial southern California tan. Davidson is a fast-talking (literally) 39-year-old lawyer with moderately long blondish locks (at least longer than those of NFL counterpart Pete Rozelle) who has carved out a niche for himself as a sports hustler.

He was in on the founding of the American Basketball Association as its first president and operator of the now defunct Dallas franchise. He was out in a year. "Since I live in southern California," he explains, "the logistics were such there was no way I could have stayed involved."

He put together the World Hockey Association and was its first commissioner. He had never seen a hockey game. He was out after one year. "People talked continuously of moving the office to Toronto or New York," he explains, "and I would not move out of southern California."

At least, he's committed to the WFL for two years (with an option for two more years). He claims that more than $15 million has already been expended to get his new league going. His own commissioner's office was funded from the $50,000 down payment by each franchise. Another assessment will be laid on them June 1.

In this latest venture into sport/business, Davidson adopted one tactic which gave his league instant clout — at least as far as people recognizing he was around. The WFL signed players already under contract to another league, the NFL.

"I think the American Basketball Association made a drastic mistake," he says in retrospect, "in not signing future contracts immediately. If I were going to start a shipbuilding company, I would scheduled July 10 season opener, has caused some wonder about the hurry. Especially since some franchises aren't even stabilized (in mid-May there was still conjecture the Virginia club would be sold to an Orlando group).

"There's a funny thing on ventures," explains Davidson.

"If you take a busy man and ask him to do something, it usually gets done. We knew we had a very short fuse and a lot of things had to be put together very fast. We felt we could accomplish more on a hectic schedule."

There is even a television contract with an independent syndicator which has big automobile and insurance sponsors already lined up. Davidson expects each club to make $100,000 from national and local TV and radio rights this year.

He expects three teams — Jacksonville, Birmingham and possibly Memphis — to make money in '74. Others will lose up to $1.5 million. He figures the potential loss is balanced out by the fact that franchises which originally cost $350,000 are now selling for $1.5 million and up.

To Gary Davidson, it all adds up to dollars and cents in his little world of football, with one exception:

"It's more exciting," he says blandly, "than running a cement factory."

contract for steel and ore and things like that."

So Toronto, now Memphis, shelled out $3 million for three Miami Dolphins, and other teams followed suit, which eventually caused NFL teams to seek injunctions to stop such raiding but which doesn't perturb Davidson.

"They're saying," he rationalizes, "that thirteen-hundred players have to be unemployed before they can negotiate a contract."

Davidson has this little boy's face and chirpy voice which throw people off, and when he's in the throes of expounding, his words often run together. He's also a persuasive optimist who visualizes the WFL becoming truly a world venture by next year with teams in Mexico City and maybe Tokyo ("which would involve a scheduling problem"). He's not worried about paucity of talent.

"I'm amazed at how many good players there are," he gushes. "I was in hockey, where there's only twenty-million people supplying all the hockey players. A bigger player pool is available in football because there are more teams, which increases the size of the working force."

The haste in putting the WFL together, with training camps about to start and a

Lee Elder's had problems mastering Western Opens

Lee Elder, first black golfer to qualify for the Masters through his victory this spring in the Monsanto Open, has played in four Western Open Championships, winning a total of $3,465.00.

The 71st Western Open will be played June 27-30 at Butler National Golf Club in suburban Oak Brook.

Elder, who registers out of Washington, D.C., first appeared in Western Open play in 1968, but did not make the 36-hole cut. He was entered in the 1969 Western but withdrew because of a hand injury and in 1970 again failed to qualify for the final 36 holes.

In 1971, at Olympia Fields, Elder won $690 with a tie for 37th and in 1972, at Sunset Ridge, he played well for a 72-hole total of 283 that earned him $2,775. He was not entered in the 1973 Western at Midlothian.

Elder, who first appeared on the tour in 1968 had career earnings of $297,543, his best year having been 1973, when he picked up $84,730.

A native of Texas who makes his home in the nation's capital, Elder's best showings this year, through the 1973 Masters, came in the Citrus Open (tied for 5th and won $4,688) in the Desert Classic (tied for 13th and won $2,804) and in the Jacksonville Open, where he tied for 19th and won $1,605. He also picked up small checks in the Bing Crosby, Phoenix, Hawaiian Open, Inverrary, Doral and Heritage tournaments.

Elder, who will be 40 in July, played for a decade on the U. S. Golf Association tour, at one point winning 21 of 23 events. He and his wife, Rose, saved enough money for him to give the tour a try, and he gained the necessary tour credentials in 1967 to compete in tour events in 1968, when he won a respectable $31,691.

Conant girls triumph 6-5 for MSL softball trophy

The Conant High School girls softball team edged Wheeling 6-5 Monday for the championship of the Mid-Suburban Conference.

Coach Barb Bostian's Cougar girls, the South division leaders, erased a 3-0 Wildcat margin with a big, five-run rally in the fifth inning and they managed to hold on for a nervous victory in a thrilling seventh frame.

The winning pitcher for Conant was Barb Thomas, who not only hurled a good game, but also rapped out three hits in the process. She had a key hit in the fifth-inning uprising which also featured a two-run double off the bat of Chris Hickey. Other clutch hits in the rally were contributed by Kathy Evans, Julene Holznagel, and Vicki Pybas.

But the Wheeling squad, champs of the North division, didn't give up easily, and they fought back to within one run before putting two runners on base with two out in the final inning. The game was saved for Conant on a spectacular, running catch by Cougar leftfielder Lynn Kriesemont.

Douglas Savings and Loan leads VFW golf

Douglas Savings and Loan moved into first place in the Arlington V.F.W. golf league at Old Orchard Golf Club with a convincing 17-7 win over Hanlon Decorators. The Kehe, Foy & Snelten Insurance team jumped up to third place with an 18-6 victory over Mt. Prospect Heating. Also tied for third place is the Cake Box who played to a 12-12 standoff with Kolman Plumbing.

Only five birdies were recorded Monday night as high winds hampered play. The birdies were carded by Cliff Little on the 7th hole, Albert McDougall on the 10th hole, Leo Larson on the 11th hole, Jim Ambrose on the 12th hole and Al Garske on number 14.

Leo Larson won low net honors with an

86 PROOF KENTUCKY STRAIGHT BOURBON

Six years of aging makes it a great bourbon. The price makes it a great buy.

Inside the sexy European, full instrumentation confirms the car's sporty nature. Tachometer, speedometer with trip odometer, and gauges for fuel, engine temperature, oil pressure, and battery charging are standard features.

Capri Copper Classic

Bold, rich, copper metallic hues reflect the European craftsmanship and luxury of this spirited little car imported for Lincoln-Mercury.

Distinctively European styling (and the standard equipment listed to the right) suggest that Capri should be a very important consideration at this time for those people who genuinely like cars and driving.

Obviously, the Capri Copper Classic is quite a car . . . and, it should be noted carefully, quite a car for the money. The gas mileage is exceptional and resale value is traditionally very high.

Capri. No wonder it's outselling every European car in America except one.

Sign of the times

OK, everyone, c'mon now—empty your penny jars . . .

"I am calling on every American to get the penny back in circulation and keep it there," Mrs. Mary Brooks, director of the Mint said.

"I am calling on the banking industry to welcome the return of pennies during the month of June, and I am urging the schools, churches and charities to examine ways and means to involve their members in collecting pennies for deposit."

"Again, I would like to emphasize, there are plenty of pennies but they are all in the wrong places."

The price of copper has retreated. The 62 billion pennies produced during the past 15 years have no numismatic or collector's value and because of the huge mintage they will never attain great value.

There will be no aluminum one-cent piece and a copper alloy penny will continue to be a part of our everyday coinage system. Nevertheless, speculators and hoarders of pennies have caused what seems to be a shortage in certain areas of the country.

CREATING A shortage where it does exist can adversely affect every public spirited citizen, taxpayer and conservator of the earth's resources. It is inflationary when merchants round off sales to the next nickel due to a lack of one-cent pieces to make change.

According to an appeal recently released by Mrs. Brooks, there are an estimated 30 billion pennies in circulation and another 30 billion being held in hoards by uninformed collectors and would-be investors. These are the coins Mrs. Brooks is asking to be returned to circulation.

For the Mint to be forced to continue increasing the copper-coin production to meet an unnatural demand is a waste of a natural resource that cannot be replaced by man. Secondly, it is a waste of the taxpayer's hard-earned money. One billion one-cent pieces returned to circulation will save the taxpayer more than $10 million.

The current supply and price of copper has made it possible to continue production of the one-cent coin. During the past 15 years, the Mint has pumped out in excess of 62 billion copper coins using over 202,000 tons of copper in their production.

"If just 15 billion pennies could be lured out of hiding," to quote Mrs. Brooks, "the Mint, at current production figures, would not have to make pennies for almost two years at a savings of $150 million."

THE MINT produced 25.7 billion Lincoln cents between 1909 and 1959 when the reverse design was changed to the Lincoln Memorial. The early series does enjoy collector interest with some years commanding more numismatic value than others. But rarely is one of the determinants in establishing the higher values and most of these rarities have been accounted for over the past 50 years.

A general rule of thumb is the lower the mintage the higher the numismatic value. But 62-billion pennies of identical design can never qualify as numismatic rarities.

Trade your hoard of Lincoln pennies in on a real collector's item. For every $25 worth cashed in at a bank, the Treasury and the Mint are prepared to issue a Treasury Department certificate to the individual or group responsible for the deposit.

Obviously, the new campaign to get the cent back into circulation will require the cooperation of banks in identifying those to receive the certificates. Names should be forwarded to Mrs. Mary Brooks, Director of the Mint, 55 Mint Street, San Francisco, Calif. 94175.

If your bank refuses to take part in this program, ask for a receipt on bank letterhead before surrendering the coins. Then mail this receipt to Mrs. Brooks at the above address. It will be honored with the same validity of a bank notice. (Newspaper Enterprise Assn.)

Win at bridge

by Oswald and James Jacoby

Greedy hog could lose head

As they say on Wall Street: "The bull gets a little; the bear gets a little and the hog goes broke."

The bridge hog sees there is a chance to make two overtricks at his three no-trump contract. He covers West's 10 of spades with dummy's queen. If East wins with the ace and leads the spade back our hog scores his two overtricks. If East shifts to ace and another heart our hog will have to try to explain to his partner why he bid no-trump without a heart stopper.

The less hoggish player doesn't care about two spade tricks. He wants to get on lead so as to run off the good diamonds and clubs. He plays a low spade and hopes that East will duck.

Of course, if East is alert, neither spade play will do South any good. East will be looking at dummy's diamonds and clubs. He will have heard the bidding and will rise with the spade ace and try the hearts.

Fortunately for those of us who aren't hogs, all opponents aren't alert. The man who plays a low spade here is likely to score game and rubber as a reward for his prudent restraint.

Holding, O'Connor, Blaeser Real Estate

55 S. Northwest Hwy., Palatine 359-4600

Although it is only eight months old, the firm of Holding O'Connor Blaeser Real Estate reflects far greater depth. The expertise of the company is better understood once one realizes the background of its staff. It is comprised of 13 full-time salespeople, 10 of whom are licensed as brokers and three as sales associates.

Their understanding of peoples' housing problems and the myriad of solutions is accomplished because the salespeople are well established as experts in their field. "You know, the aggregate experience of our staff exceeds 60 years of real estate sales experience," said Jack Holding, president of the firm.

"To be successful in assisting people with their real estate needs is most gratifying," said Jack O'Connor, vice president of the firm. He takes even greater pride in the knowledge that eight of the people now associated with the firm thought so much of the three principals and their knowledge and ideals, they chose to leave other local established real estate companies to join this young group.

Jim Blaeser, talking about the company's sales, said, "Our success is exemplified by sales during May of nearly $1.8 million. This has been our best month thus far, and we truly believe the number one reason is our outstanding staff. In addition, their expertise in handling financing during the tight money market has also helped us."

By arranging for mortgage loans with lending institutions before the real money crunch hit, the firm has been able to procure home mortgages on every sale it has made. This availability of financing has of course not only been important to home buyers and sellers but particularly important to salespeople. They know that once they fulfill a buyer's housing needs their qualified buyer will not lose the home of his choice due to inability to obtain mortgages.

One of the features of the firm is its Comparative Market Analysis, a written report furnished to sellers that helps to establish an accurate price range within which a home will sell. It far outweighs a "by guess and by golly" approach and helps a seller better understand the true market value of his home. The firm provides this service without charging a fee but just asks that the homeowner be sincere in wanting to sell his property.

The firm is also a member of Home to Home, a personalized national relocation service. This membership adds an important link in its service portfolio. The primary purpose is to serve clients sincerely by helping them find the right house, at the right price, in the right community, anywhere in the country. "Doing this with a minimum of stress or confusion as well as assisting them in becoming settled in their new surroundings as quickly as possible is the guideline of our young firm," noted the owners.

In addition, Holding O'Connor Blaeser Real Estate is a member of MAP Multiple Listing Service, serving the greater northwest suburban area, and National Multiple Listing, Inc., a nationwide multiple listing service.

"We are extremely pleased with the accomplishments of our staff and commend them," the principals said. They are also preparing to open their second and third offices in the immediate area in the near future.

Condo contract is key to wise buy, says expert

The key to happiness in condominium living is in a carefully prepared management contract that defines the rights and responsibilities of the major parties to a condominium development, the developer, the owners, and the professional manager.

This is the observation of William D. Sally, vice president and general sales manager of the property management division of Baird & Warner, Inc.

Reflecting on some of the problems that have arisen with this popular new housing form, Sally suggests that "the chief culprit has been the combined inexperience of developers and management agents alike."

Sally's comments are included in a two-part article appearing currently in the "Journal of Property Management." Part I of his "Avoiding the Perils of Condominium Management" appeared in the March-April issue and the second installment is scheduled for the May-June issue.

"Because condominium housing is so new, it follows naturally that everybody involved is new to it," writes Sally, who has just been named chairman of the Property Management Council of the Chicago Real Estate Board. "This goes for the developer who qualifies as a veteran if he's only been building condominiums for 10 years, since most haven't had anywhere near that much experience."

"It applies to property managers who have been managing rental properties for many years and have attempted to manage condominiums the same way. And it pertains especially to the first generation of condominium owners who, dazzled by the hypnotic appeal of 'comfortable, carefree, no-maintenance living' have entered the fray with a devastating combination of false hopes and unrealistic expectations."

Sally suggests that a precise yet flexible contract such as that evolved by Baird & Warner after years of condominium management will provide the foundation for the kind of management which fairly compensates the professional manager and lets him do a good job for the owners.

This type of contract, which Sally believes that every individual unit owner should examine at the time of purchase, provides the basis for a lasting and renewable relationship.

"It eliminates surprises," Sally writes.

Elgin appellate court okays Lake Barrington Shores

The Appellate Court for the Second Judicial District in Elgin has upheld and affirmed the decision of the Circuit Court of the Nineteenth Judicial Circuit, Waukegan, Lake County, in the matter of Lake Barrington Shores and the development of Lake Barrington Shores on the former Bartlett Estate in the Village of Lake Barrington.

The decision thus maintains the zoning ordinance adopted in September, 1972, by the Board of Trustees of the Village of Lake Barrington for a planned development on the Bartlett property.

Lake Barrington Shores is an adult-oriented recreation community of country homes and manor houses being developed around a mile-long man-made lake. When completed, it will comprise 1,350 residences in low-density, low-profile cluster buildings spaced throughout the 510-acre site. A private 35-acre forest preserve is being retained within the development.

The recreation facilities will include indoor and outdoor swimming pools and tennis courts in a recreation center. The original Bartlett home will be renovated and redesigned for a private clubhouse serving the 18-hole golf course. Initial occupancy is scheduled for fall.

Kemmerly names Dutner manager of new Roselle-Schaumburg office

Kemmerly Real Estate has named Fred Dutner as the manager for the new office they are opening at 1435 S. Roselle Rd. in the Schaumburg-Roselle area.

Nardi announces lease completion

The completion of lease arrangements for Connor Forest Industries of Wausau, Wisc. in the building at 1000 Lunt Ave. in Elk Grove has been announced by Nardi and Co., Chicago-based industrial realtors.

Stephen J. Nardi, president of the realty firm, announced that this is the fourth lease negotiated by his company for Connor Forest Industries.

A 16,000 square foot unit in the multi-tenant building will be used for distribution of kitchen cabinets, children's furniture and other wood products manufactured by Connor.

Sole broker in the transaction was John F. Grisch of Nardi and Co.

Home buyers should check heating system before buying

Buying a home is the largest single purchase that most people make in their lifetime, and it is surprising how careless and casual many people are in going about it.

For instance, very few people know the kind of lumber used for framing. Fewer know how the house is insulated or if it is insulated at all.

But worst of all, practically none of the people buying a home know what type of heating system it has. The majority of home buyers confuse the heating system with the fuel, and generally feel that there are local codes in each municipality to protect the public.

It is not so. Local codes only require the ability of a heating system to supply minimum heating during cold spells. When American families buy a house, they hope and expect to get more than the minimum.

One thing they expect is a balanced heating system with warm floors and walls which won't get cold when the thermostat is satisfied. The Better Heating-Cooling Council recommends hydronic baseboard heating which surrounds the house with warmth. Hydronic baseboard is a sealed system without fans or blowers. When the thermostat is satisfied, the baseboard panels radiate warmth at floor level, keeping the room comfortable.

Because it is a sealed system without fans or blowers, it is also safe. It won't spread dust and it won't spread a fire.

Griggs is sales manager of New Homes Division

The appointment of Richard Griggs as general sales manager of the New Homes Division of Homefinders Realtors has been announced by Robert L. Zaun, president of the firm.

An engineer by profession, Griggs has served as sales manager for major northwest suburban builders in their development projects.

New Homes Division is aimed at helping builders market their projects and developments. Although builders are skilled in land planning and building techniques, they are less knowledgeable about marketing and acquiring a sales force, and this is where Homefinders steps in to help the builder, according to Zaun.

Homefinders provides advertising and publicity in addition to its special sales force which specializes in new homes sales, plus its departments of closing, relocation, accounting, sales training, and secretarial staff.

Implementing this unique approach to marketing new homes, Richard Griggs served 25 years as an engineer, working as Senior Project Engineer in research and development with CP of St. Regis, Chicago, for 19 years, and six years in the same capacity with Union Special Machine Co. in its research laboratory.

A native of Sioux Falls, S.D., Griggs attended Chicago Tech College. He served in the Navy during World War II, and prior to joining Homefinders, he served as sales manager for several real estate firms and builders in the northwest suburbs.

The New Homes Division is unusual for a real estate firm in this area, says Randall Rathjen, director of special projects for Homefinders. The concept has been in the planning stage since September.

"Our purpose is to help builders sell their new homes," states Rathjen. "We are licensed sales people, experienced in marketing and able to do a better job with better sales personnel and often at less cost to the builder."

Packard to head new Kemmerly office

Merrill Packard of Kemmerly Real Estate will be the manager of the new office opening July 1st by the firm in

Merrill Packard

Streamwood. The office will be located 425 S. Bartlett in the Streamwood Shopping Center.

Packard resides at 342 Pierce Road, Hoffman Estates, with his wife, Gertrude, and six children. He has been actively engaged in real estate for five years and is presently a broker at the Kemmerly located at 701 E. Golf, Schaumburg.

Packard has taught the real estate course at Conant High School for two years. The course provides the 30 hours of real estate required by the state for a real estate salesman's license.

The Streamwood office will be the 11th office opened by the firm in its 14 years of service.

Williamsburg Realty moves down street

Williamsburg Realty has moved to the old Bartlett bank building on the corner of Oak and Bartlett Avenues in Bartlett.

The real estate offices have been located at 124 Bartlett Ave. in Bartlett for the past three years.

The new offices offer more space with the addition of three conference rooms.

Present one-day seminar on commercial selling

Real estate brokers, whose residential sales may have slowed down because of a tight mortgage market, should consider expanding their activities in commercial real estate, according to Richard Herb, vice president of Real Estate Education Co., Chicago.

"As a start, firms ought to investigate opportunities presented by locating and selling sites in the growing franchise field," Herb advised.

His company has developed a one-day seminar, "How to Sell Commercial Sites to Retail Chains and Franchisers," which over the past two years has been presented to more than 1,200 brokers and salesmen in many major cities throughout the nation.

It will be presented in Chicago on Saturday, June 22, Herb said. Seminar will be from 9 a.m. to 5 p.m., at the Ambassador West Hotel, 1300 N. State Parkway.

Subject matter will include site analysis, the kinds of information a salesman needs and the most effective sources and methods for gathering it, summarizing site data of most importance to retail chains, how to prepare and present a site proposal and how to close a sale or lease. Seminar also will include sample case problems — and how they are solved.

Seminar leader is Adrian Brown of Champaign, vice president of real estate and construction for Elmer Food Stores, a division of the Jewel Companies.

Further information and registration form (the $75 fee includes lunch and instructional materials) for the seminar can be obtained from Real Estate Education Co., 500 North Dearborn St., Chicago, 60610.

Why our rents are 20% lower.

If you could rent a brand new apartment today at 1972 prices, would you do it? You bet! With prices what they are today, a saving of more than $600 per year in rent is worth looking into. How can we offer you such a saving?

First, our financing was arranged more than two years ago when interest rates were low. (Would you believe 6 1/2%?)

Second, our construction contracts were let 15 months ago when prices were 20% less than today.

Third, we have eliminated superfluous amenities such as saunas, conversation pits and putting greens, so that you are not paying for something that you never use.

We do, however, offer everything you expect in a quality apartment community. Included in the rents below are wall-to-wall carpeting, heating, central air-conditioning, parking and membership in our private swim club. Solid, sturdy brick construction (concrete floors so you can't hear your neighbor), and 22 beautiful landscaped acres to roam in.

Middle-age bachelors join the ranks of homeowners

How to beat inflation — Invest in a home.

"That's standard operating procedure for millions of American families, but now there's a newcomer to the ranks of homeowners, the single or divorced man, aged 30 to 40, who wants to put his money into an equity investment."

So observes Jackson W. Goss, president and chief executive officer, Investors Mortgage Insurance Company, Boston.

John Rhode is honored

John Rhode

John Rhode has been awarded the residential members designation by the Governing Council of the American Institute of Real Estate Appraisers.

This professional designation was inaugurated in 1968 to recognize appraisers with demonstrated skill and experience in appraising residential property.

To receive this designation, John Rhode was required to have at least three years experience in the real estate business including at least two full years experience in appraising residential property.

He also had to pass a technical examination of the institute, submit an acceptable single family demonstration appraisal report and have the favorable recommendation of other appraisers familiar with his work and professional integrity.

Rhode is associated with Muriello/Meyer & Associates, located in Elk Grove Village.

"Typifying these men is their mutual interest in escaping monthly rent payments," Goss explains. "Their goal when buying a home is to make their money work for them and building up equity, increasing net worth."

He notes that a common complaint of prospective single male buyers is that despite their good salaries, they were standing on fairly shaky foundations — financially speaking.

"Purchasing a small-size dwelling is the solution. It provides a solid investment plus the tax advantages of home ownership."

Goss points out that the single male buyer has proved himself an astute shopper, often looking for many months until he finds a residence to suit his income level and life style.

He also analyzes property values and neighborhood trends to determine appreciation potential before making the down payment."

The profile of the average unit purchased is a relatively small, one or two bedroom townhouse, duplex or condominium, usually in town or the immediate adjacent suburbs.

He comments that male home purchasers, even in pre-energy crunch days, preferred living close to their workplaces.

"They generally relish participating in all aspects of city life.

"Male buyers frequently opt for older downtown townhouses and recycle them, turning once-decaying dwellings into attractively refurbished places to live, concomitantly boosting their market value."

"These men also enjoy developing friendships among their neighbors. Many report that fellow homeowners assist with redecorating chores and care for their places when they are out of town," Goss says.

He observes further that a number of single males note an improvement in their social status as an unexpected byproduct of their purchase.

"Some bachelors say owning a home has a positive effect on their dating habits as well. They believe women now view them as smart, sophisticated investors and as solid, stable, as well as permanently located, citizens with secure futures."

"No one, of course, can guarantee that home buying will put romance in the single man's life."

"But, for sure, it is a definite hedge against today's inflationary times. And, it is a good way of life while simultaneously enjoying it as an investment," Goss concludes.

Realtor Caruso advocates variable interest rate plan

One solution to the "yo yo syndrome" of the residential mortgage market money problem is readily at hand, according to Realtor Dick Caruso, president of Rich Port, Realtor.

Caruso says that the "feast or famine" conditions with which the real estate industry has been coping with in recent years could be considerably reduced by a move toward variable interest rate mortgages with flexible maturities.

"While it sounds quite complicated to some," Caruso hastens to add that, "the idea couldn't be simpler, and it solves nagging problems in one fell swoop."

"The variable interest rate," he continues, "is certainly not a new idea. It is merely an agreement providing that the interest rate on a home mortgage will go up or down, depending on current conditions in the mortgage money market. This relieves one of the biggest headaches of lending institutions, who are asked to make long-term, loan commitments without knowing what the future holds in terms of competitive interest rates. In other words, the lender who grants a 20 year mortgage at 8 per cent today, faces the worrisome possibility that he may have to pay that much or more interest in order to attract depositors at some future date. Conversely, the borrower who happens to buy his home during periods of high interest rates, will have some bad moments when his brother-in-law gets a better deal just a few weeks later."

Under the much-discussed variable interest rate plan, the cost of borrowing money would fluctuate much the same way as food prices.

"One of the biggest barriers to acceptance of the variable interest rate mortgage rate," says Caruso, "is the confusion which would be caused if monthly payments would fluctuate with the change in mortgage interest rates. The flexible maturity which we suggest would eliminate this problem without straining any of the circuits in today's sophisticated computers. A slight increase in the interest rate of the mortgage would merely act to delay the date when the mortgage was paid in full; while a decrease in the mortgage interest rate would shorten the term of the loan, all without disturbing the amount of the monthly mortgage payments."

To those who regard the extension of mortgage terms as risky business, Caruso points out that "the rate of appreciation, which residential property has been enjoying in recent years, is certain to continue, as long as the inflationary conditions which trigger our periodic shortages of mortgage money continues. This is a built-in measure of security for the lender who is asked to wait a little longer for complete repayment of his funds. Likewise, the increased interest rate is an added bonus in exchange for whatever additional risks might be involved."

Caruso feels that financial interests and governmental agencies should stop talking about solutions and do something to eliminate these ridiculous shortages of residential mortgage funds, which cause such tremendous hardships to so many people.

"For much too long, Caruso concludes, "the bill for an entire nation's fiscal irresponsibility has been presented to a few unfortunate people who happen to be caught in the market place when the money faucet gets turned off."

Banker says young couples causing rise in rental housing

Scatter site face lifting — no, not a beauty shop technique but a new trend in the world of real estate.

"Uncertainties because of the energy crisis are resulting in a major boom in rental housing," observes Robert W. Gaber, president and chief executive officer of Conco Mortgage Co., San Francisco.

"Families, particularly young couples, don't want to get tied down to a mortgage since it represents a long-range commitment. The result: we at Conco are seeing more and more plans to remodel 15- or 20-year old homes, to convert them into rental properties," Gaber states.

The trend against long-range obligations has been felt in tenant resistance to long-term leases. "Most will not accept more than one year in a lease."

Job proximity is an important factor.

"These people want to be close to work and are eager to find close-in housing that permits them flexibility for future movement."

"They are willing to delay their search for the purchase of that dream home until they know for sure how much gasoline and fuel oil they will be able to buy in the coming years," Gaber notes.

Facio lifting is faster than major renovative work.

"The prospect tenant is not concerned about the roof lasting another ten years or how much the property will increase in value."

"The short-term renter will want it clean, with basic appeal and with all the necessities in good working order," he declares.

Gaber feels these homes can be made attractive with a lot of elbow grease, some minor repairs, a novel use of paint to brighten the rooms and inexpensive landscaping.

"This trend may well help recycle neighborhoods long marked for bulldozing," Gaber concludes.

Buffalo Grove man named vice president at Homart

Buffalo Grove resident J. Michael O'Brien has been named vice president of real estate, planning and zoning for Homart Development Co., Homart President W. E. Lewis announced.

Homart, a wholly-owned subsidiary of Sears, Roebuck and Co., develops, owns and operates regional shopping centers in which Sears is one of the major department stores.

O'Brien, who was named director of real estate for Homart in March, has ten years experience in real estate negotiation. He joined Sears in 1967 as a real estate negotiator for Sears Midwestern Territory, an 11-state area that is largest in sales of Sears five territories, and handled property in Chicago, Detroit and St. Louis.

In 1971, O'Brien was transferred to Homart as a real estate assistant. He later served as a project director in the real estate and leasing department. He has handled acquisition, zoning and department store negotiations for Homart's new shopping centers.

As vice president of real estate, planning and zoning, O'Brien will direct property negotiations, planning and municipal rezoning for Homart's centers and related peripheral developments. He will direct negotiations with local communities, state and federal agencies concerning approval of concept plans, roadway improvements and necessary utilities. He also will handle department store negotiations and other related real estate matters.

O'Brien holds a degree in business administration from Georgetown University and served for three years in the U. S. Navy. Before joining Sears, O'Brien served as a real estate negotiator for SCOA Industries.

Construction has begun on food distribution facility

Bennett & Kahnweiler Associates reports that construction has begun on a one-story, 304,800 square foot food distribution facility in Centex-Schaumburg Industrial Park.

The building, which will be owned by Prudential Insurance Co. of America and leased to Distribution International, Inc., is being constructed by J. L. Williams Co. Completion is scheduled for early 1975.

Harold J. Gallagher, president of Distribution International, Inc., stated that it was the intention of Distribution International to develop this facility as the major food distribution center for the northwest metropolitan Chicago area. Along with the food distribution operation, there will be a separate trucking operation which will include both local intra-state cartage as well as interstate operating authority.

Bennett & Kahnweiler Associates were sole brokers in the $4,000,000 lease transaction. James H. Dana represented the ownership of Centex-Schaumburg Industrial Park and Distribution International, Inc. Timothy J. Hartnett represented Prudential Insurance Company in the land sale. Attorneys were Jack Pritzker of Pritzker & Pritzker for Centex-Schaumburg Industrial Park, Michael Larson for Prudential Insurance Company, Donald E. Egan of Rothschild, Barry & Myers for Distribution International and Howard Walker of Curtis Marks & Katz on behalf of J. L. Williams Company. Donald W. Schamberger and James H. Dana handled the development aspect of the transaction.

Bennett & Kahnweiler Associates opened Centex-Schaumburg Industrial Park four and one half years ago and the development is nearly 75 per cent sold.

Sherlock your home ... and save! Catch exposed pipes and ducts in your basement and other uninsulated areas. They could be robbing you blind, by losing precious heat while carrying it to other parts of your home.

It's easy to prevent wasteful heat loss! Just wrap exposed pipes in low cost fireproof insulation. Even someone who is "all thumbs" can do it. Insulation materials are available at any hardware store or building supply dealer.

Don't overlook exposed pipes in innocent looking areas like attics and crawl space. Crawl space is notorious heat thief! If the floor of the room over your crawl is cold, your crawl space needs insulation. Check exterior walls in your kitchen, too. Unfortunately, some builders rely on kitchen cabinets to insulate outside walls. They don't. If the wall behind your pots and pans feels cold, it needs insulation. Catch the heat thieves in your home today. The money you save will be your own.

Making house attractive gets return in sale price

When you put your home up for sale, take a tip from the builders who display model homes: Make your home as clean and attractive as possible, and as free as possible of children, pets and yourself.

This is the advice offered by Baird & Warner, Inc. According to Robert G. Walters, vice president and general manager of the residential sales division:

"You may have the best home on the block, but if it's not presented properly, it may take longer to sell and you may not get the price you expect."

Here's what he advises:

1. Fix up and decorate the house. Discolored walls, peeling paint, cracked plaster, leaking faucets and windows and doors that stick tight create a bad impression. You may have to spend some money to take care of these things, but your investment may be repaid in a better price.

2. Get rid of the clutter, especially in closets, basement, attic and garage. The less junk you have on hand, the roomier your house will appear.

3. Empty out your closets as much as you can. If need be, send clothing to the cleaners or give them to a neighbor temporarily. Get rid of bulky boxes. The idea is to make your closets seem spacious, not overcrowded. Whatever remains should be hung or stored neatly.

4. Clean your house thoroughly to make it shine before prospects enter. This means bathrooms and lavatories made sparkling, floors washed and waxed, furniture dusted, all beds made, dishes put away, wastebaskets and ash trays emptied, all appliances clean, windows washed, no clothing strewn about.

5. Depending on the season, make sure your lawn is mowed and trimmed and the garden in good shape. In the winter, keep your walks and steps shoveled and free of ice.

6. Make yourself as scarce as possible. The best thing is for you and your family to be away entirely when your broker shows your house.

6. "Don't think you have to be a gracious host or hostess when your house is shown," Walters said. "Prospects are judging the house, not you. If you are too near, the prospect may hesitate to express his real feeling. It's up to the broker, not you, to answer the prospect's questions."

If you must be in the house, stay in one room. And keep children and pets under control. Children can be pleasantly distracting. Pets might annoy the prospect.

7. Refrain from playing the radio, TV, record player or musical instruments while the house is being shown, again to avoid annoying prospects.

"These are simple tips," the Baird & Warner executive said, "but if you follow them, they can help you sell the house and get the price you want."

“How good is your homeowners policy?”

“I represent Safeco because it protects you against things you don't often think about — until they happen. Things like damage to shrubs, trees and lawns, electrical damage to appliances, smoke damage and even damage to the property of others when you feel a moral obligation rather than a legal one.

“Safeco offers the best homeowners policy in town. I'd like to explain all the details.”

If you're tired of renting a lemon, buy a strawberry.

There's one thing about renting a place to live. It leaves you with a sour taste the first of every month.

That's why Strawberry 1 is such a treat.

Instead of rent money you'll never see again, it's equity money in your own condominium.

But ownership is only part of the story. You'll enjoy living at Strawberry 1. Something that may not be true where you are now.

First, there's the design. Strawberry 1 was conceived for the individualist. Plenty of room for idiosyncrasies, for privacy to kick off your shoes and enjoy beamed ceilings, a fireplace, and a loft bedroom.

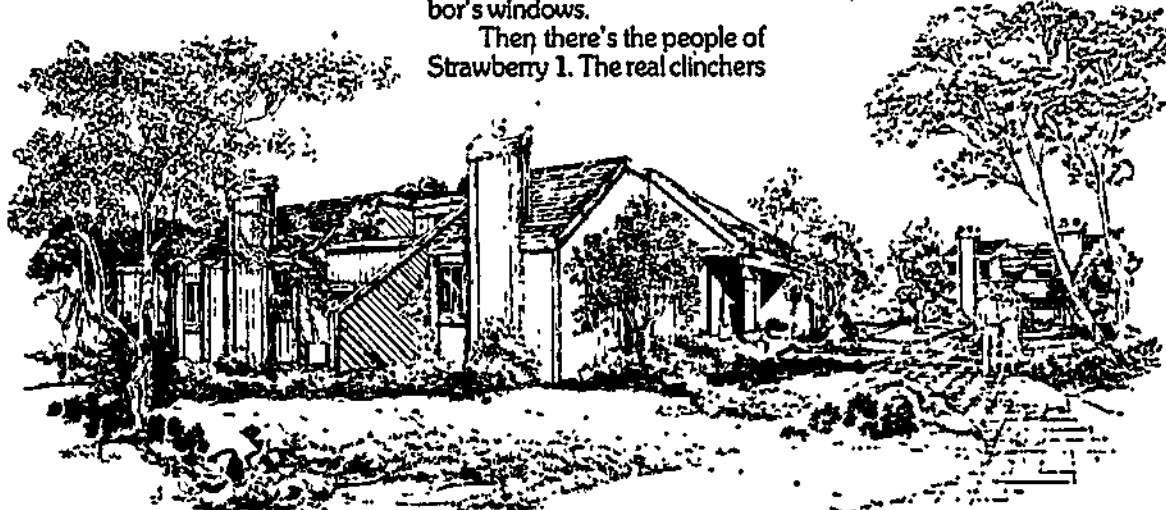

Outside there's room to breathe. Sit on your own sun-deck, or stroll around the community lake. Each unit is natural wood and faces discreetly away from your neighbor's windows.

Then there's the people of Strawberry 1. The real clinchers for moving in. They are individuals who like and respect each other. People you'd like to meet around the pool, or play bridge with in the recreation center.

One and two bedroom Strawberry 1 condominiums begin at $24,950. You can move in with only 5% down. Call us at (312) 473-1882.

So think about it. Why go through the sour rent routine every month when the rewards of Strawberry 1 are so sweet.

A 'Sugary tail' for pet lovers

Well I'll be doggoned, she graduated!

by MARIANNE SCOTT

'Tis the season of commencements and there's a sweet (?) girl graduate in our house. No, she didn't graduate with honors, but she DID graduate. We have a diploma to prove it.

Like the younger children in a family, younger dogs, too, often get lots of love but sometimes look a bit grubby and lack the discipline imposed on the older ones.

But unlike her predecessors, who were always groomed to the teeth (literally) and who were enrolled in dog school even before they cut their second teeth, Sugar Plum had all of her adult choppers (she displays them often when something displeases her) long before she finally began her formal education.

BY NATURE, every dog knows how to walk, sit, lie down and stand. They do it all the time. But learning to do these simple things on command requires good home training, or lacking this — schooling. Since home training is lacking in our house, school it was.

"But I don't wanna go to school!" whined Sugar as she jumped through her hoop and ran through a few parlor tricks she had easily mastered.

I elaborated on what fun it would be and about all the other dogs she'd meet. And besides, with her brains, school would be a snap.

Now the first night of school goes something like this: all the dogs — 24 of them in all sizes, shapes and breeds — form a circle around the room, each attached to a person by a leash. On command the people walk and stop around the room. The dogs are supposed to do likewise. But they don't.

Instead, they chase the dog in front of them, snarling, barking, snapping and sniffing all the way. However, one dog (mine) refused to budge — which created a nasty traffic jam.

The jam was solved by taking us out of line and relegating us to the center of the room where I spent weeks crawling around on my haunches trying to coax Sugar off hers. (You see, my poodles are always the smallest dogs in the class). And while crawling around with my nose just inches from the floor I also had to keep an eye peeled for that 150-pound English sheep dog who seemed to think Sugar was a stubborn white rabbit!

Admittedly, training big dogs requires a lot of tugging but when they sit crooked you can straighten them out with a little nudge from your knee. But with little dogs the knees are too high and an ankle nudge sends them flying across the room. And then there's the leash wrapping one's ankles to avoid. These lessons I've learned the hard way. Every night we did our homework, me squatting along and Sugar tumbling, stumbling and grumbling right along with me. We practiced indoors lest I became the neighborhood spectacle walking a dog while doing a Russian dance.

On the "stand" Sugar was equally ornery. Her back end seemed to develop palsy as it shook, swayed and sunk to the floor.

NO AMOUNT OF leading, pampering or positioning could make her cooperate. Catching her off guard around the house I'd point out, "Sugar! You're standing!" Whereupon she'd promptly sit down. Or, "Sugar! You're sitting!" Whereupon she promptly stood.

And so, we struggled through much of the 13-week course. Sugar doggedly defied me and developing a doghouse stoop. It wasn't until just before graduation that I was able to walk upright and observe her classmates, who in contrast to Sugar performed like pros.

Came graduation night and calmly and intently Sugar observed her classmates going through their paces for the judge. I watched too, but my knees shook.

It was our turn in the ring. I sat Sugar down in heeling position and caught a glimpse of those teeth (a flashing smile?) just as the judge began his commands.

FINALLY IT WAS over, and when all the grades had been tallied, would you believe that my little stinker earned the highest heeling score in the class?

"It was a snap!" teased Sugar. However, just so there'd be no mistake about who was the boss, she included the sinking palsy in her performance.

Sugar's now resting on questionable laurels and we haven't gone back to school for advanced training. Our little drop-out cleverly avoids any discussion of the old show trophies that fill the shelves. But I dust them regularly — nostalgically remembering another era when the "kids" took some pride in their appearance, were models of sweetness and obedience and had some respect for authority!

FORMER HOST OF TV's "Consumer Game" Irving Rein is researching communications in the marketplace and finding out why consumer problems exist.

Consumers don't understand systems

by MONICA WILCH PERIN

The road to a healthy consumer climate is going to be a long and difficult one, with the current consumer movement being only the tip of the iceberg, if Irving Rein's theory proves correct.

Rein is a communications expert at Northwestern University, author of several books on consumer communications, and former host of WTTW's "The Consumer Game."

His view of things goes far beyond ordinary consumer problems, even far beyond what some people consider to be rather fundamental reforms — such as the various new consumer protection laws and agencies that have come about as a result of the work of advocates like Ralph Nader.

REIN DISMISSES all of this with a wave of his hand and the comment, "It's like a band-aid over a gigantic sore."

The real problem, Rein believes, is communication — or the lack of it — between individuals and "systems," such as the government, the supermarket, General Motors, or Northwestern University. Effective communication, according to Rein, would revamp our whole culture — consumer relations and all. And the key to effective communication, he says, is understanding the systems.

Effective communication would eliminate the consumer's frustration because he would understand how to deal with the producer; and it ultimately would eliminate deception on the part of the producer, because he would know he can no longer fool the consumer, Rein explains.

But applications of his communications theory are not what Rein is concerned with right now. In fact, he's not really interested in consumerism per se.

"I'M NOT AN advocate. I'm not interested in fraud. If you buy a vacuum that doesn't work, I don't care." But, if you buy an automobile you didn't want because the salesman verbally persuaded you, Rein is interested.

Automobile sales is one specific "system" Rein has personally researched in depth. He spent a summer working as an auto salesman, because "I recognized that until one gets into an operation it's difficult to understand the pressures — from upstairs, from GM on down to the customer.

"The dealer is told he must sell so many units this month; he knows he can't, but the sales manager is pressured and the salesman ends up selling any way he can. Then the customer becomes hostile, and you have a violent confrontation."

But if the salesman is playing a systematized role, so is the customer. "Both parties are deceptive," says Rein. "I'm not pro-consumer. Customers are devious. They may tell the salesman they can get the car below cost elsewhere, when it's not true."

All of this has come about through the increased size and organization of society, Rein says. "At one time we had informal communication; now it's institutional, bureaucratic. It becomes a conditioning process. We become so systematized it becomes impossible to communicate effectively, and we become a very frustrated group of people."

WHAT'S THE SOLUTION? "There are no easy answers. We need education as to how the systems work. People need to learn the strategies, then they will recognize them in their daily lives, they will gain objectivity and be able to deal with whatever systems they encounter."

"But it has to start in elementary school, at home, with very young kids." He told of one first grade teacher who had her students bring in toys and discuss the advertising claims made for them and whether or not the toys lived up to the ads.

Unfortunately, Rein says, there is an "appalling lack of research" in this field of communications. "No one wants to do the research. So many of these people (consumer advocates, the media, and others) are working off the tops of their heads, and what we get is a mountain of misinformation."

"THE TRAGEDY OF the consumer movement," Rein added, "is that it's being hawked." And popular consumerism for the masses, of course, bears little resemblance to the scholarly data and complex theories of academia.

If consumerists have rushed headlong into Reform without rationally gathering and analyzing the facts, as Rein suggests, it will not be the first time society has done that. And the consequences are probably predictable on the basis of history.

On the other hand, if Rein's research and theories on human communication are not translated into understandable and applicable terms, then they can be expected to have very little impact on society in general or consumer relations in particular. And it wouldn't be the first time that ever happened, either.

Portrait of girl graduate 1974

by GAY PAULEY

Don't underestimate the effect of the women's liberation movement, directly or indirectly. In the pre-lib days, ask a girl graduate what she wanted in life and you'd find her answer usually ran to marriage and family. Ask the girl grad today and she's looking toward a career first of all.

"Being my own person," which could be the theme of any liberationist, was the answer repeatedly given in one national poll of collegians about to receive bachelor of arts or science degrees.

Making one's own way, 1974 style, frequently means finding a fulfilling job. Fulfilling is a key word or earning an advanced degree. More than in previous years, marriage and family drop all that importance.

As the people who did the study commented, "Today's grad has expanded on the views of the earlier '70s. Wedding bells, while perhaps a distant goal, are definitely not on the front burner."

"Instead, self-gratification through achievement in graduate study or a job that is psychologically and financially rewarding takes precedence over the legendary cottage replete with picket fence."

The study was made by Esmark, Inc., a Chicago-based firm of diversified interests: foods, chemicals, energy, insurance, finance, and was one of its continuing formal surveys of the youth market primarily for its own hiring programs.

It sent questionnaires to 829 about-to-be-graduates at 28 universities across the country, sampling both women and men. The conclusions about today's girl grad were based largely on one question:

What do you expect to be doing five years from now? Married? Career? Still in school?

Worthy of note is the increase in college graduates compared with 1964 — class of 1964, an estimated 196,625 women and 209,361 men. In 1974, the totals neared the one million mark — 433,000 women, 523,000 men. The crop of women graduates ran 120.2 per cent higher than in 1964. The comparable increase for men was 94.5 per cent. Some other highlights from the study:

—The large family is definitely an outmoded lifestyle. Frequently answered were "two children at the most."

—Do women believe they can enter the employment world on a par with men? In some cases, the answer was "yes," especially for the top-of-the-class group who are opting for positions in business training programs or professional schools with an eye to the future.

—Choice locations for the post-grad life included the major cities across the country, with San Francisco, Boston, New York, Los Angeles, Atlanta, Washington, Chicago, Denver and Dallas major attractions because of large job markets in each. There was also a trend to the warmer resort-recreation areas.

—In clothes, no rules. There's been a revival of the sorority scene recently, but without the dress patterns of circle pins and round-collared blouses marking the early '60s.

—"Up front and on her own, the hallmarks of the sister college grads 1974," the survey concluded.

Prospective members from all the northwest suburbs are welcome to any of the coffee parties to become acquainted with the AAUW aims, programs and activities for the coming year.

At each coffee the banner, which was made by the local group to show at the recent AAUW state convention, will be accompanied by representatives of each study group it portrays. They will answer questions about the various categories.

Topics range from legislative action to literature, bridge, foreign friendship and many more.

THE FIRST COFFEE is next Tuesday, 9:45 a.m., at the home of Janet Craton, 323 S. Beverly Lane, Arlington Heights.

The next summer coffee is an evening gathering July 17 at Ann Hillstrom's home in Arlington Heights. The final one is Aug. 15 at Karen Soucy's in Buffalo Grove.

Membership in AAUW is open to any graduate of an accredited college or university registered with the association of office in Washington, D.C.

Those interested can call Jeanne Johnson at 541-2007 or Mary Szczypta, 392-8323.

BANNER SHOWING AAUW study groups, made by Arlington Heights Branch of AAUW, was taken to the recent state convention for display. Leaves on the tree

Ceremony includes quotation on love

A portion on love from "The Prophet" by Kahlil Gibran and a statement on marriage composed by the bride were read at the May 18 wedding of Judith A. Reams and Joseph C. Leonard.

Married in First United Methodist Church of Arlington Heights, Judith and Joe met at International Village Apartments, Schaumburg, where both have been residing. Joe, who studied at San Antonio College, Walnut, Calif., has been with Phoenix Racing, Elk Grove, and sometime this month the couple will be moving to Pismo Beach, Calif. to make their home.

Judith, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Wesley S. Reams, Henderson, Ill., teaches English at Conant High School. She received her B.S. degree from Northern Illinois University and is now working on her master's in education at Northern. For the 2 p.m. double ring service Judith wore a gown trimmed in lace and ribbon interlacings and a floor-length veil trimmed in the same lace. Her cascade included gardenias, roses, lily, cornflowers, carnations, lily of the valley and ivy.

BLUE FLORAL dotted Swiss gowns with lace trim were worn by her attendants: her sister, Mrs. John Neifing of Palatine as matron of honor, and Mrs. Harvey Heltsley, Hoffman Estates, and Mrs. Kent Jorna, Lansing, Ill., as bridesmaids. All carried white daisies, cornflowers, baby's breath and blue carnation bouquets.

Sabra Davis, 11, Hoffman Estates, was flower girl wearing a gown similar to the bridesmaids' gowns, and her brother, Butch, 8, was ring bearer.

The groom, son of Mrs. Dorothy Gury, Hacienda Heights, Calif., chose Jim Petroni, San Luis Obispo, Calif., as his best man, and Tom Wurtz, Chicago, and Russ Olson, Buffalo Grove, as ushers.

A reception for 85 guests was held in the Church Fellowship Hall after which the newlyweds left for a weekend honeymoon in Madison and Milwaukee.

Conant High School pair wed in Hoffman church

A couple who graduated from Conant High School in 1971 were married this past May 18 in Our Saviour United Methodist Church, Hoffman Estates.

The bride is the former Terri Ann Maxey, daughter of Mrs. Joy Maxey, Schaumburg, and Billie Maxey of Brookfield. Her bridegroom is Michael Earl Dacy, son of Mr. and Mrs. Jerry Dacy, 182 Gentry Road, Hoffman Estates.

For their candlelight ceremony Terri chose her sister, Cheryl, as maid of honor and Michael asked Dan Wendell, Hoffman Estates, to be best man.

The others in the wedding party were also from area suburbs. Bridesmaids included Lorna Pokorny and Mrs. Lori Blatner, Schaumburg, and Mildred Bianco, Hoffman Estates. Groomsmen were Robert Bain, Schaumburg; Randy Jones, Barrington, and the groom's brother, Nick.

MICHAEL'S YOUNG sister, Jennifer, came down the aisle as flower girl for the evening nuptials.

Guests were seated by Patrick and Joseph Dacy, brothers of the groom, and John Schaefer and Terry Vayda, both of Hoffman Estates.

The bride chose a candlelight shade for her empire gown which was fashioned of sate peau and chantilly lace. Her two-tiered bouffant veil was secured by an aurora borealis and lace crown.

Terri's bridal bouquet was an assortment of old-fashioned spring flowers in mixed colors.

Champagne gifts for golden wedding couples

Couples who are celebrating a golden wedding anniversary in June should dig out their marriage certificate. Even a certified copy will do.

Foremost Liquor Stores are awarding six-bottle gift cartons of champagne to couples residing in Illinois who are observing their 50th anniversary in June and who live within 100 miles of any Foremost outlet.

To receive the Foremost golden wedding champagne, you'll need your original marriage certificate, or a certified copy, and a completed application form which can be obtained at any Foremost store. Arrangements will be made to have photographs taken of the couples accepting their champagne.

So that the lucky "newlyweds" may share their gifts with family and friends, Foremost will make available a gold punch bowl and glass cups at no charge to each golden wedding couple who reserves the glassware at least one week in advance.

This marks the fifth consecutive year that Foremost has played Cupid by sponsoring its golden wedding program.

Kids' TV advertising ignores FTC

The $400 million children's television advertising industry, one year after it was threatened with federal regulation, has come up with a "self-regulating code" which blatantly avoids every major issue that has been raised by the government and consumers.

This masterpiece of nothingness was prepared for the industry by the National Advertising Division (NAD) of the Council of Better Business Bureaus. It has been met with severe criticism by consumer representatives, and also by the Federal Trade Commission and the Federal Communications Commission, both of which continue to threaten action but are dragging their feet.

The code was instigated last May by Chairman Lewis A. Engman of the FTC, who outlined these issues:

The consumer

by Monica Wilch Perin

- Distortion of product performance in regard to speed, time, motion or size through visual techniques;
- Confusion over sales prices and what accessories or other items are included;
- Advertisements which encourage the purchase of food items, especially soft drinks, candy, etc., without explanation as to how the product fits into a well-balanced, nutritional diet;

- Use of premiums and contests to create an artificial demand for a product;
- Encouraging children to ask their parents to purchase a product;
- Advertisement of products to children which promise to affect the user's mood or well-being;

- Use of program characters, live or animated, to sell products to children;
- Use of material which might be expected to frighten children, cause anxiety, or portray violent or dangerous behavior.

Also at issue is the frequency of commercials in children's programming.

NOW, HERE'S WHAT the industry and NAD came up with:

- Adoption of "meaningful principles" (which BBB Council vice president R. P. Campbell said is "better than a detailed code");

- Submission by major advertisers of new ads for "periodic review" by NAD;
- Recruitment of experts in behavioral sciences to determine what children perceive in ads;

- Creation of a review group in NAD to monitor ads, subsidized by a $150,000 fund from the industry.

No mention was made of frequency of ads, which is currently governed only by the National Association of Broadcasters' suggested limit of 12 commercial minutes per hour of programming on Saturday and Sunday mornings. At 30 seconds per ad, that's 24 commercials in 60 minutes. During weekday after-school programming, the suggested rate is 18 minutes of commercials per hour — or 32 half-minute spots.

FCC chairman Richard Wiley said in a speech two days after the announcement of this "code" that the FCC may take action to reduce the number of commercial minutes per hour in children's programming.

The director of the FTC's bureau of consumer protection said he would wait and see what happens under the proposed code but added that the FTC staff would continue working on a law enforcement policy in this matter, which is expected to be completed in about a month.

Chairman Engman said he would recommend that the FTC ban premium advertising on children's programs.

Peggy Charren, president of Action for Children's Television, called the proposed code "a slap in the face," and pointed out that it is "identical" to a code adopted by NAD two years ago "that was unenforceable too."

You can shine aluminum by cooking acid foods

Dear Dorothy: Is there a cleaner for aluminum pots, cake pans, cookie sheets and so on that you just apply and wash off with no rubbing? It's hard on the arm to remove the baked-on black.

—Julie Kawal
You're right, it's hard work. But after trying all the cleaners for tarnish on aluminum, I'm back to No. 3 steel wool and the pumice soap. The only things that work without scrubbing are cooking something acid in the pan like tomatoes or rhubarb, or boiling a solution of a tablespoon of cream of tartar to one quart of water until the tarnish disappears. There are cleaners for the outside of pans, and these do a good job. You do have to follow instructions implicitly with these cleaners.

Dear Dorothy: I'm a retired man, and your column on how to make vegetable soup appeals to me. I love this kind of soup. Is there some way I can obtain a sample? I'll gladly pay for your trouble.

—Henry Metcalf
Sorry, Mr. M I do try to be of service to readers, but going into the food sample line is beyond the scope of any columnist alive. You'll just have to take the recipe on faith.

The homeline

by Dorothy Ritz

Dear Dorothy: A reader said that a marigold planted at the base of each rosebush would keep away aphids. If it's going to do any good, it had better be the old-fashioned marigold with that horrid, penetrating odor.

—Margie Arthur
Remarkable how so many differ on what's pleasant or horrid in taste or smell. You're going to put me down as an oddball because that old-fashioned marigold happens to be one of my favorite flower odors. Our neighbor, knowing it, always planted a bed of them as close as possible to our house.

(Mrs. Ritz welcomes questions and hints. If a personal reply is required, please enclose a stamped, self-addressed envelope. Write to her in care of Suburban Living, Paddock Publications, Box 280, Arlington Heights, Ill. 60005)

Here's how to announce an engagement in Herald

Paddock Suburban Living department is often called by those seeking information on submitting announcements for publication. We print the following for the reader's information and help.

The announcement of an engagement is always made by the parents of the engaged girl, who may either fill out an engagement form at our office or submit their own information along with a wallet sized picture of the bride-to-be.

If a wallet sized photograph is not available, a larger one can be used.

Bring or mail picture and copy to the Herald office in Arlington Heights or mail to Paddock Publications, Box 280, Arlington Heights, Ill., 60005.

Parents not using one of our forms may either write or type the information. If the announcement is submitted in hand-writing we ask that all names be printed to avoid errors. We also request that a phone number accompany the signature at the bottom of the announcement.

A glossy picture is preferable although a dull finish is acceptable. Color photos are used at the discretion of the editors depending on contrast and depth of color.

There is no charge for engagement pictures and announcements. Usually they will be printed within a week after reaching our office.

All announcements must be in our office at least a month before the wedding date.

A rose show you can enter

Hadassah chapter forms a third group, Shalom

A new group is forming within the Northwest Chapter of Hadassah, the Women's Zionist Organization of America. This is the third unit for the young chapter.

Since the organization of the chapter two years ago, interest in Hadassah in the northwest suburbs has grown so much that it is now being divided into three groups, meeting day or evening in separate geographical locations. All will function under the "umbrella" chapter.

Newest of the groups is Shalom, which meets evenings and covers the Palatine, Arlington Heights, Elk Grove, Hoffman Estates and Schaumburg communities.

SHALOM GROUP held an organizing meeting Wednesday evening at the home of fund-raising chairman Mrs. Norman Crasko, Hoffman Estates. Over the summer there will only be membership functions held, but in fall the group will begin meeting the fourth Wednesday of each month.

Mrs. Robert Jonas of Palatine is the president of Shalom. She may be called at 338-1630 for further information or Mrs. Gila Mallin, Arlington Heights, at 398-1923 for membership.

The other two groups within Northwest Chapter are Henrietta Szold, which meets evenings and includes women from Mount Prospect, Arlington Heights, Buffalo Grove and Wheeling, and the Chai group which meets afternoons and covers the same area as the new Shalom group.

PRESIDENT OF the Henrietta Szold group is Mrs. Alan Olschewski of Arlington Heights, who may be called at 394-8118 by anyone interested. The Szold group was formerly organized within the Chicago chapter but became part of Northwest when it originated.

Chai president is Mrs. Cyrus Demont of Hoffman Estates. It was planned as the afternoon group within the chapter organization two years ago to give women a choice of evening or afternoon meetings. Mrs. Demont can be called at 882-0585 for information.

Northwest Chapter president is Mrs. Sarah Horwitz, Palatine, who serves as an advisor to the three groups.

At the second annual honor luncheon of the chapter, held June 8 at Old Orchard Country Club, Mrs. Horwitz was honored with a certificate of appreciation by Chai group for its founding.

Hadassah welcomes any area women interested in helping with all types of support for the people of Israel.

Heart Association expands diet counseling service

Individual diet counseling will be offered to more Chicagoans due to the expansion of the Diet Counseling Service of the Chicago Heart Association. Announcing the expansion, David M. Berkson, M.D., chairman of the Heart Association's nutrition committee, explained that the service is being broadened to accept additional patients who need assistance in structuring and implementing a diet to correct specific health problems and to help them adopt the diet into their lifestyle.

Since a successful diet really calls for a change in life-long eating habits, many people require assistance over an extended period of time to adjust to the new eating style necessary for their good health. "Our goal," Dr. Berkson said, "is to aid the physician by interpreting and spelling out in detail dietary prescriptions and also to assist individuals referred by their physician by designing diets which are structured to their particular needs."

"Although the main thrust of our program is to help patients adopt fat-modified diet habits to favorably influence their blood cholesterol level, diet counseling can also be used to help control diabetes, sodium intake and overweight," he added.

THE SIX-SESSION year-long program is structured around individual counseling and follow-up interviews by the nutritionist to overcome difficulties in adhering to the diet changes. After analysis of the patient's lifestyle and eating habits, the nutritionist and patient together plan the necessary modifications.

Dr. Berkson said that patients find they better understand how the diet works and what alterations in eating habits they must make to conform to the change. Laboratory tests are used to monitor the effectiveness of the diet, and the patient's physician receives regular reports on the patient's progress.

Since the underwriting of the Counseling Service by the Chicago Heart Association cannot cover all expenses, a fee of $35 for the program is requested.

Diet Counseling Service information is available by calling the Chicago Heart Association, 348-4875, ext. 19.

For a Happy Life

It's Fun in June to:

5. Give away all shoes that hurt your feet.
6. Make a sumptuous strawberry dessert — a strawberry shortcake or perhaps a strawberry mousse.
7. Order stationery printed with your address for the whole family to use.
8. Note this by David Seabury: "A man can overcome his negatives only from the use and development of his positives..."

Sharp rise in tooth decay

The age distribution of the population and a changing life style are largely responsible for a "great increase" in the severity and incidence of tooth decay among Americans, says Juan M. Navia, Ph.D., Professor of Dentistry and Comparative Medicine, University of Alabama School of Dentistry, Birmingham.

Nearly half of the nation's people today are under 27 years old, with a high susceptibility to caries, Dr. Navia told the 23rd anniversary conference of the National Institute of Dental Health in Washington, D.C.

Moreover, the fixed three-meal-a-day schedule has almost become a thing of the past, replaced increasingly by consumption of sweet-tasting snack foods between meals, he said.

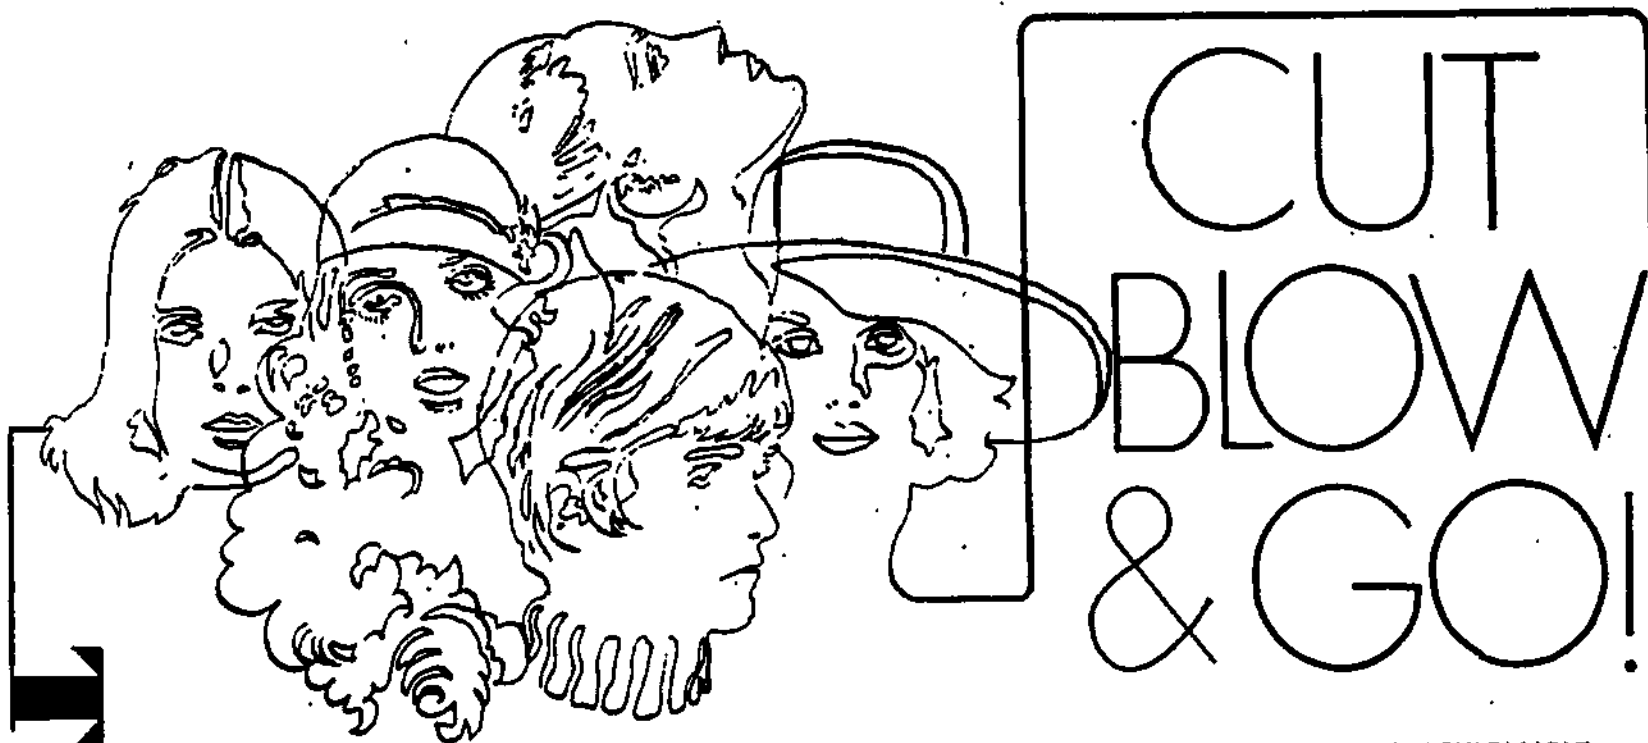

DR. NAVIA suggested that to improve oral health dentists pass on dietary information to their patients, that the food industry reduce the amount of sugar in manufactured foods, and that the government continue to support dental research on foods and nutrients.

For the rest, Dr. Navia warns, that "unless drastic measures are taken urgently, the incidence of dental caries will continue to grow to rampant proportions in the United States."

In some cases, other investigators have pointed out, based on unrelated studies, a balanced diet may be difficult if dental hypersensitivity is present — the pain evoked upon contact of the teeth with heated or chilled liquids and various foods, which can lead to patients not eating or drinking the pain-provoking food-stuff.

This kind of hypersensitivity can be overcome most of the time, researchers report, by use of a toothpaste which acts cumulatively to block the pain-causing stimuli.

Schaumburg state Bank

C.R.C.

Would you like a credit reserve of $300 to $3000 to cover checks beyond the balance in your checking account?

C.R.C.

The end of the overdraw

It happens . . . a genuine once-in-a-lifetime sale is announced . . . unexpected expenses or an emergency comes along . . . and the balance in your check book isn't sufficient to cover the cost. Where will you get the money?

You could apply for a regular loan — if you have the time. Or you could take the easiest, most convenient course of all — and simply write a check for it. With a Credit Reserve Checking account — CRC — you have instant "borrowing power" that lets you write checks for more money than you have in your account. You use your regular personal checks, so no one knows you are borrowing — a feature many users appreciate and you make your purchase just as though you had the money all the time.

How much money can you borrow?

A credit reserve of from $300 to $3000 can be established dependent upon your income and ability to make repayments.

Is it costly?

It costs you nothing to open a Credit Reserve Checking Account. In fact, you may never have occasion to use the credit reserve of your CRC account — although it's a good feeling to know that it's there, — and should this be the case, this extra security will never cost you any more than a regular checking account. If and when you do write a check for more money than you have in your account, you pay only a small monthly interest charge.

A few quick facts about this modern new checking account concept:

☐ You can borrow as often as you like — up to the limit of your credit reserve. Each time you write a check for more money than you have in your checking account, funds are automatically transferred in multiples of $100 from your Credit Reserve to your checking account. When repayment is made, the line of credit is built back to its original amount and can be used again and again.

☐ Repayments will be automatically deducted from your checking account each month in the amount determined by the loan agreement.

☐ Pre-payments can be made at any time without penalty charge.

☐ Notification of all funds deposited to your checking account is sent to you by the bank along with a statement of your Credit Reserve and regular checking account balance.

Adelle vetoed chemical spraying

Gravel-voiced nutritionist Adelle Davis, a super star in the organic food world, died recently. I had interviewed her for Paddock Publications several years ago and I think her comments to me during that interview are worth a second go-round for those who missed them.

Adelle Davis was a dynamo of a woman with a hairnet-covered bun on her head and an aversion to chemically sprayed food in her heart. She advocated a thoughtful switch to better food before it became fashionable. Mention refined foods to Adelle Davis and she rumbled. Talk additives and she growled.

"We must educate Americans not to use poison pesticide sprays," she had said in that interview. "They ruin the soil, they rob the food of nutrients, they cause ill health, and they are dangerous to use. Our people must learn to build up the land first, before we try to harvest a crop from it."

"WHEN PEOPLE say the only way to produce a crop is to pump it with chemicals," said Miss Davis, who had a bachelor's degree in nutrition from the University of California and a master's in bio-chemistry from the University of Southern California Medical School, "They are admitting how very over-exhausted the land really is!"

Miss Davis was of the belief that the American people in general, and farmers in particular, are being hoodwinked into believing that this country cannot produce without chemical poisons. "The chemical interests dominate the agricultural journals — the farmers' bible. How is the farmer to hear the other side?" she said. "A lot of people — those with vested financial interest in the chemical industry — are trying very hard not to find out the merits of organic gardening."

AT THE TIME, Miss Davis related to me that in her travels through rural France, she had marvelled at their agricultural approach. "No poison sprays are permitted in France," she had told me. "The farms have lovely compost humus, big yields, high mineral content. The people have a genuine love for their soil."

And so did Adelle Davis, the outspoken and controversial nutritionist who introduced the kohlrabi to a million people. Some people will never understand that the land is precious, that every little piece gouged out for a shopping center or a parking lot is a desecration. Perhaps this says it as well as anything Adelle ever said on the matter:

Letter to President Franklin Pierce in 1855 from Chief Sealth of the Duwamish Tribe in the State of Washington:

"The Great Chief in Washington sends word that he wishes to buy our land. How can you buy or sell the sky — the warmth of the land? The idea is strange to us. We do not own the freshness of the air or the sparkle of the water. How can you buy them from us? Every part of this earth is sacred to my people. Every shiny pine needle, every sandy shore, every mist in the dark woods, every clearing and humming insect is holy in the memory and experience of my people.

"We know that the white man does not understand our ways. One portion of the land is the same to him as the next, for he is a stranger who comes in the night and takes from the land whatever he needs. The earth is not his brother but his enemy, and his children's birthright is forgotten.

"THERE IS no quiet place in the white man's cities. No place to hear the leaves of spring or the rustle of insect wings. But perhaps because I am savage and do not understand, the clatter seems to insult the ears. And what is there to life if a man cannot hear the lovely cry of the whippoorwill or the arguments of the frogs around the pond at night.

"The whites, too, shall pass — perhaps sooner than other tribes. Continue to contaminate your bed, and you will one night suffocate in your own waste. When the buffalo are all slaughtered, the wild horses all tamed, the secret corners of the forest heavy with the scent of many men, the views of the ripe hills blotted by talking wires. Where is the thicket? Gone. Where is the eagle? Gone. And what is it to say goodbye to the swift and the hunt, the end of living and the beginning of survival." (National Wildlife News).

Duckling for all seasons

Roast duckling is rapidly gaining in popularity because of its distinctive, succulent flavor. But barbecued duckling is something exceptional. It offers yet a new dimension of savoriness for the outdoor party season.

Easy to prepare and elegant to serve, barbecued duckling can be spit roasted on a charcoal or gas grill or on electric rotisserie equipment. Duckling quarters, wrapped in aluminum foil, can be cooked on the open charcoal grill.

DUCKLING WITH WILD RICE STUFFING

- 4 1/2 to 5 pound frozen duckling, defrosted
- 1 teaspoon salt
- 1/2 cup diced celery
- 1/4 cup butter or margarine
- 1/2 cup sliced green onions
- 2 cups cooked rice
- 1 package (4 ounce) wild rice, cooked
- 2 tablespoons finely chopped parsley
- Melon slices or fresh in-season fruit for garnish, if desired
- Herb Gravy

Wash; drain and pat duckling dry with paper toweling. Season neck and body cavities using 1/2 teaspoon salt. Prepare stuffing. Cook celery in butter or margarine over low heat until tender. Stir in onion, plain and wild rice, parsley and remaining 1/2 teaspoon salt. Fill neck and body cavities loosely with rice mixture. Skewer neck skin to back; tie legs together loosely. Place on rack breast-side-up in uncovered baking pan or aluminum foil pan. Place in charcoal or gas cooker with close fitting cover; cook over moderate heat 2 1/2 to 3 hours or until meat in drumstick is fork tender. Garnish with melon wedges and, if desired, strawberries or cherries, mint or watercress. Yield: 3 to 4 servings.

HERB GRAVY

- Duckling giblets
- 2 tablespoons butter, margarine or duckling drippings
- 2 tablespoons flour
- 1/2 teaspoon rosemary leaf
- 1/2 teaspoon thyme
- 1/2 teaspoon salt
- Dash of pepper
- 1 cup giblet broth (or broth and water)
- 1 can (3 ounce) sliced mushrooms, undrained

Cook giblets until tender in salted water to cover. Drain; save cooking stock or broth. Chop giblets. Melt butter, margarine or duckling drippings in saucepan; stir in flour and seasonings. Add broth and cook, stirring constantly until thickened. Add giblets and mushrooms; heat to serving temperature. Yield: About 1 1/2 cups sauce.

CHARCOAL BROILED DUCKLING WITH SPANISH SAUCE

- 4 1/2 to 5 pound duckling, defrosted and quartered
- 1 1/2 teaspoons salt
- 2 tablespoons butter or margarine
- 1/4 clove garlic, minced
- 1/2 cup thinly sliced carrots
- 1/2 cup thinly sliced celery
- 1/2 cup thinly sliced onion
- 1 can (8 ounce) tomato sauce
- 1/2 cup catsup
- 1/2 teaspoon paprika
- 1 bay leaf
- 1/2 cup sliced fresh or 1 can (3 ounce) sliced mushrooms, drained
- 1 tomato, cut into thin wedges
- 1/2 cup sliced pitted ripe olives
- 4 servings hot cooked well-seasoned rice

Wash, drain and dry duckling quarters. Sprinkle 1 teaspoon salt evenly over duckling quarters. Wrap each quarter in an 18-inch double thick square of heavy duty aluminum foil. Fold 2 opposite edges over twice and fold ends in to seal package securely. Place skin-side-up on charcoal or gas grill over moderate heat. Turn packages with tongs or gloves every 20 to 25 minutes for 2 1/4 to 2 1/2 hours, or until quarters are tender. Remove packages from grill; cool 10 minutes before opening. While duckling is cooking prepare sauce. Melt butter or margarine in fry pan; add garlic, carrots, celery and onion; cook over low heat until tender. Add tomato sauce, catsup, remaining 1/2 teaspoon salt, paprika and bay leaf. Simmer gently about 10 minutes to blend flavors. Add mushrooms; cook just until tender, about 5 minutes. Stir in tomato wedges and olives; heat. Serve duckling on rice topped with sauce. Yield: 4 servings.

Mrs. Dick Quinlan

Her recipes are European inspired

by LOIS SEILER

A cookbook dotted with recipes from distant lands can be found in Eunice Quinlan's Arlington Heights kitchen. Because of her husband Dick's position as overseas sales manager for International Harvester, the family has lived in Johannesburg, South Africa, Brussels, Belgium and London and vacationed in several European countries. Eunice acquired culinary ideas from all of these travels and many have become her specialties.

One of her favorite dinners features recipes from Belgium, where the cuisine is a combination of both Flemish and French. Commonly found on the menu in restaurants in Brussels is an appetizer called Pamplemousse aux Crevettes, which is grapefruit filled with tiny shrimp caught off the coast of Belgium.

Eunice halves grapefruit, removes the fruit and sections it. This is combined with shrimp and a tasty dressing and returned to the grapefruit shells. It can be made ahead and chilled until serving time. Tomatoes or even oranges can be substituted for the grapefruit, but Eunice prefers the tart flavor of the grapefruit. Pamplemousse aux Crevettes can be served for a luncheon with an egg or cheese soufflé, but Eunice likes it best as a first course for an entree called Carbonnade Flamande, or Flemish Beef Stew.

"THIS IS a traditional Belgium recipe, similar to the French Bourguignon, except the Flemish people use beer rather than wine," Eunice explained.

Several other ingredients flavor this stew: bacon, onion, a little brown sugar and vinegar, herbs and bread spread with Dijon mustard. The bread integrates during the cooking but acts as a thickening agent, although the gravy may be thickened more, if desired.

"You don't taste the beer, but it both flavors and tenderizes the meat and makes an exceptionally tasty dark gravy," Eunice said. Plain boiled potatoes are traditionally served with the stew and she usually includes a vegetable such as Brussels sprouts or carrots.

French endive, used frequently in Belgium, is combined with beets to make a unique Flemish salad. Eunice tosses these ingredients with a French dressing and decorates the salad with parsley.

To complete the meal, this cook suggests Chocolate Mousse, a typical Belgium dessert.

Eunice recently shared this menu with her gourmet dinner group, where each member prepared one of the recipes. She also belongs to a gourmet luncheon club, and enjoys researching ethnic recipes.

The Quinlans' sons, Mike, 17, Rich, 14, and Tim, 10, have become accustomed to their mother's experimentation. Antiques are another of Eunice's hobbies, and she is program chairman of Prairie Violet Quilters.

PAMPLEMOUSSE AUX CREVETTES (Grapefruit with Shrimp)

2 large grapefruit
10 to 12 ounces cleaned, cooked shrimp
4 tablespoons mayonnaise
4 teaspoons catsup
2 teaspoons sherry
1 teaspoon Worcestershire sauce
Cut grapefruit in half, remove fruit and let shells drain. Section fruit and set aside. Add shrimp to grapefruit.

Mix together mayonnaise, catsup, sherry and Worcestershire. Add to shrimp and grapefruit. Fill grapefruit shells with this mixture and chill until served. Serves 4. (Tomatoes or oranges may be substituted for the grapefruit, if desired.)

CARBONNADE FLAMANDE (Flemish Beef Stew)

2 pounds boneless chuck, cubed
Flour
Salt and freshly-ground pepper

¼ pound lean bacon, diced
2 tablespoons butter
3 large onions, sliced
1 teaspoon brown sugar
1 tablespoon mild vinegar
1 slice heavy bread (rye or white) spread with 1 tablespoon Dijon mustard

1 bay leaf, crumbled
½ teaspoon thyme
12 ounces beer (dark preferred)
Dredge meat in flour seasoned with salt and pepper. Shake off excess flour.

In skillet, cook bacon until transparent. Remove bacon to a casserole. Drain off all but 2 tablespoons bacon grease in skillet.

To the grease, add 2 tablespoons butter. Brown onions and remove to casserole. Brown the meat and place in casserole. Add remaining ingredients and stir up lightly. Simmer, covered, over low heat until tender, 1½ to 2 hours. Serves 8.

CHICONS ET BETTERAVES EN SALADE (French endive and Beets in Salad)

6 firm French endive
2 cups sliced cooked or canned beets, well-drained

2 tablespoons wine vinegar
8 tablespoons salad oil
1/8 teaspoon salt
1 teaspoon Dijon mustard

Wash and dry endive and cut into ½-inch slices.

Combine vinegar, oil, salt and mustard. Shake in jar until well-blended.

(Half of this amount is plenty for salad.) Just before serving, combine endive and beets and toss lightly with dressing. Decorate with chopped parsley. Serves 4.

GRAPEFRUIT halves lined with shrimp. Called Pamplemousse aux Crevettes, this appetizer from Brussels is grapefruit sections and salad dressing. Called Pamplemousse aux Crevettes, this appetizer from Brussels is grapefruit sections and salad dressing.

For the first time in weeks, American processed cheese reflected a noticeable decrease of eight cents. A six-cent decline was recorded for eggs followed by two-cent drops in margarine and butter.

Celery and lettuce each declined three cents this week. Potatoes also went down five cents per pound.

The only increase in this week's survey was corn flakes, up four cents. Salad oil and spaghetti declined two and six cents, respectively.

Recorded food prices are based on averages obtained from area food stores on Monday of each week to indicate general price trends.

Foiled chicken dinner liberates clean-up crew

Chicken Dinner in Foil is a meal in a dish designed for ease and economy. Uncooked rice, a chicken quarter, canned mushrooms, zucchini slices, green pepper and onion are wrapped in aluminum foil, to eliminate messy pots and pans. The tightly sealed foil packages need only be baked for an hour before serving. Hot rolls or garlic bread provide a pleasant accompaniment, and since the dish is so hearty all you need in a light dessert such as sherbet or instant pudding.

CHICKEN DINNER IN FOIL

- 2 1/2 cup uncooked regular rice
- 1 broiler-fryer chicken, quartered
- 1 1/2 teaspoons salt, divided
- 1 can (6 or 8 ounces) mushrooms
- 2 medium zucchini, sliced
- 1 green pepper, cut in strips
- 1 medium onion, thinly sliced
- 1 can (15 ounces)

- tomato sauce
- 1/2 teaspoon Tabasco pepper sauce
- 1/2 teaspoon dried leaf oregano
- 1/2 teaspoon dried leaf basil
- Grated Parmesan cheese

Place 3 tablespoons rice in center of each of four 12-inch squares of heavy-duty aluminum foil. Sprinkle chicken on both sides with 1/2 teaspoon salt and place on rice. Drain mushrooms and reserve 1/4 cup of liquid. Divide mushrooms, zucchini, green pepper and onion into 4 equal portions; place one portion over each chicken quarter. Mix together tomato sauce, reserved 1/4 cup mushroom liquid, Tabasco pepper sauce, oregano and basil; spoon over vegetables and chicken. Fold foil over food and seal tightly. Place in shallow baking pan. Bake in 375 degree oven 1 hour. To serve, open foil packet and transfer chicken with vegetables, rice and sauce to plate. Sprinkle with grated Parmesan cheese.

Barbecued loin of pork goes a long way at picnics

For a picnic or patio party when you have a large number of people to serve, you'll find this barbecued loin of pork provides a meat course with truly remarkable flavor. While cost of a whole loin may be relatively high, you can feed a lot of people at a reasonable figure.

Purchase a whole loin of pork from your butcher, choosing one in the 10 to 14 pound range, as fresh as possible. Ask the butcher to bone the loin and tie as he would any boneless rolled roast. You should have 7 to 11 pounds after the boning out, but remember to ask for the bones which can be cooked with sauerkraut or beans.

Next prepare this marinade. Make a paste of 1 teaspoon Worcestershire sauce and 1 teaspoon dry mustard. Mix together 1/4 cup dark brown sugar and juice of one lemon. Combine with the paste.

Put these ingredients into a sauce pan, adding 1 cup soya sauce, 1 cup dry red wine, and some generous dashes of Tabasco. Stir until thoroughly mixed and clear or put into a blender for this purpose.

Place the loin in an enamel or glass roasting utensil, pour over the marinade and cover with foil. Refrigerate for 24 hours, turning meat occasionally to coat all sides with the marinade.

When you're ready to cook, remove loin from the marinade and pat lightly with flour on all surfaces. Reserve marinade to be heated and used as a baste while cooking.

IF YOU CHOOSE to cook outside, put the loin on a spit, balancing carefully. Barbecue over a low charcoal fire which is pushed well back in your cooker. Immediately under the spit place a foil drip pan to keep down flares and catch pan juices for basting.

Spit cooking will require at least 3 hours, basting with marinade every 15 minutes. Some wet hickory or fruit wood chips around the edge of the fire will add a delightful smoky flavor.

For oven cooking, place the roast on a rack in roasting utensil and cook uncovered in a 325-degree oven. Baste every 15 minutes and cook 3 to 4 hours depending

Heed cooking climate

Wind and air temperature can shorten or lengthen the time needed for cooking food outdoors over charcoal.

More briquets are needed on a cool, windy day than on a warm, still one, says the Charcoal Briquet Institute.

Generally speaking, a single layer of briquets extending about an inch beyond the food should be enough to cook a meal. If more briquets are needed, add them around the edge of the coals to prevent blocking cooking heat.

In warm, windless weather, space the hot briquets about an inch apart. In cooler weather, put them side by side.

Mostly for men

by Charles Flynn

on size of the loin.

Best way to test doneness in either case is to insert a meat thermometer which should register 185 degrees. Allow the roast to rest 15 minutes before carving.

As a main course, slice and serve with a garnish of parsley, allowing approximately 1/2 pound per person of boneless pork. For hors d'oeuvres, cut slices to fit miniature round buns and serve with a side dish of barbecue sauce.

Nutrition problems of the elderly

Bone density related to calcium

by FRAN HECKART

An estimated six million spontaneous fractures occur annually in Americans of 45 years upwards. According to Dr. Anthony A. Albanese, Director of the Nutrition and Metabolic Research Division of the Burke Rehabilitation Center and Director of the Geriatric Nutrition Laboratory of the Miriam Osborn Memorial Home, both in New York, 80 per cent of the fractures occur in women.

"Bone health is fast becoming a major public health problem which deserves, if not demands, consideration and early establishment of preventative measures," said Albanese.

To maintain optimum bone health, Albanese suggested greater intake of calcium. Current RDA for calcium for women of 35 to 75 is 0.8 grams. Albanese recommended that women of the post-menopausal group (45+) include at least one gram and perhaps as much as 1.2 grams of calcium in daily diets. The normal consumption for women of this age group is about 450 milligrams per day, well below his recommendation.

AN EXPERT in nutrition and health Albanese stated that mature skeletal and alveolar bones are made of approximately 90 per cent fibrous collagen protein and the remainder primarily of calcium and phosphorus.

Studies indicate that age as well as other factors cause skeletal bone loss. One type of decreased bone density is due primarily to a loss of calcium content of the protein matrix. This defect (adult rickets) results from a lack of vitamin D which is needed by the body to utilize calcium in bone formation, said Albanese. The second type is defined as decreased bone density of the total substance without change in the chemical composition. Called osteoporosis, this appears to be the predominant form of bone loss in the United States.

Severe bone loss may long exist prior to clinical complaints or outward physical changes, according to Albanese. Usually the first symptoms are progressive and persistent back pain, he said. Physical changes, especially in women are the dowager's hump and loss of height after menopause.

ALTHOUGH BONE LOSS is an age-related phenomenon, studies indicate that while females have a much greater loss of bone density. After 25 years of age, according to Albanese, bone density of males is approximately 25 per cent greater than that of females.

The observed incidence of excessive subnormal bone density in females may result, according to Albanese, from the following conditions: Weight reducing diets which induce not only loss of soft tissues but also of skeletal mass; calcium losses incurred during pregnancies and previously existing calcium deficits which may not have been adequately replenished by prescribed pre-natal supplements; progressive bone losses associated with hormonal changes of menopause.

ALBANESE CITED a three-year report on calcium supplement vs. non-supplemental intake in elderly women at the Osborn Home. Overall, in the supplemented group during the three-year period, the average index value increased from 90.57 to 96.07 as contrasted to the non-supplemented group which decreased from 90.25 to 84.21.

Other long term studies indicated that the rate and degree of increased bone density with calcium supplements may or may not be related to the initial bone density or age of the subject. Albanese reports that with 36 months of supplementation the bone density of a number of test subjects rose to the age level found in males of comparable age which is usually associated with a far lower fracture risk.

"THESE LONG-TERM studies have revealed no adverse renal effects from supplemental calcium of 760 to 1500 milligrams daily," said Albanese.

If physical activity is markedly reduced, bone loss will occur in both sexes at any age. With the continuing increase in the number of people in the 65 plus years group, we can expect fracture risk due to strokes to become an even greater problem, said Albanese.

The sum total of Albanese's studies indicate that daily minimum intake of 1.0 gram of calcium, and very likely more, throughout the human life span is needed to maintain normal, if not optimal, bone density.

Dr. Anthony A. Albanese was one of four speakers at a recent seminar on nutrition problems of the elderly sponsored by the National Dairy Council. Summaries of the three remaining speakers will follow.

Fresh vegetables make zesty salad

The way to a good vegetable salad begins with fresh ingredients. Almost as important is the proper blend of seasonings for the dressings. A cabbage, carrot, beet, onion salad gets just the right amount of zest from the use of dry mustard and a touch of garlic salt and a balancing shade of sweetness from light corn syrup. This salad goes well with meats, poultry and fish.

VEGETABLE SALAD

1/3 cup light corn syrup
1/3 cup peanut oil
1/3 cup white vinegar
1/4 teaspoon dry mustard
1/4 teaspoon garlic salt

1/8 teaspoon pepper
6 cups finely shredded cabbage
3 cups grated carrots
1 cup diced cooked beets
2 tablespoons finely chopped onion

Combine corn syrup, peanut oil, vinegar, dry mustard, garlic salt and pepper in large jar. Cover tightly and shake until thoroughly blended. In a large bowl combine cabbage, carrots, beets and onion. Pour dressing over vegetables; toss well. Chill before serving. Toss again. Makes 12 (1/2 cup) servings.

Hearty omelets for easy economy

What better time for a hearty main dish omelet than now, when eggs are not only plentiful, but at their lowest price in a year?

Baked Ham Omelet uses a package of au gratin potatoes and is baked in a casserole. The potato slices insure that even the heaviest appetites will be satisfied and the cheese seasoning adds flavor. A vegetable topping provides a nutritious and eye-appealing boost.

Crunchy Supper Omelet is quick to fix and owes its special crunch to a package of stuffing mix, combined with the eggs. When you add diced fresh tomatoes to cheese sauce mix, you will have achieved a special dish that is sure to get raves. No one will ever believe how simple it was to create.

Serve either omelet with cole slaw, rolls and butter, ice cream and cookies for dessert and coffee, tea or milk.

Your economical spring super menu provides foods from all four groups needed for daily good nutrition.

3 eggs
1 cup finely chopped celery
1/2 cup diced luncheon meat
Paprika
1 package frozen creamed spinach or small onions in cream sauce

Place potato slices from package in shallow 2-quart casserole. Lightly beat together water, milk, eggs, and seasoning mix from potato package. Stir in celery and luncheon meat; pour over potato slices. Sprinkle with paprika. Bake at 350 degrees for one hour, or until knife inserted in center comes out clean. Cook frozen vegetables as directed on package. Cut omelet into squares and serve topped with vegetables. Makes 6 servings.

CRUNCHY SUPPER OMELET

6 eggs
1/2 cup water
1/2 teaspoon salt
1 cup seasoned stuffing mix
1/2 cup finely chopped celery
2 to 3 tablespoons butter or margarine
1 envelope (1 1/2-oz.) cheese sauce mix
1 tomato, diced

Lightly beat together eggs, water, and salt; stir in stuffing mix and celery. Melt butter in large skillet; add egg mixture. Cover and cook over medium heat 10 to 12 minutes, until eggs are set. Meanwhile, prepare cheese sauce as directed, but decrease milk to 1/2 cup. Stir in diced tomato; heat just to simmering, stirring constantly. Spoon a little of the cheese sauce over center of omelet. Fold and turn out onto serving platter. Top with remaining cheese sauce. Makes 4 to 6 servings.

Advice on freezing

If you plan to freeze fruits and vegetables from your garden this summer, heed this advice from the U.S. Department of Agriculture: Heat, or blanch, vegetables in boiling water before you pack them in moisture and vapor proof materials or containers. Blanching slows or stops enzymes that can toughen or discolor produce.

Nutrition information needed for the elderly

The Administration on Aging reports a study in which only one of 20 older folks were found to have diets which could be rated "good."

A study at Iowa State University reported that sweets and desserts furnished 20 per cent of the day's calories among the elderly.

Dietary deficiencies among older people as determined by USDA continue to substantiate evidence of poor diets among the aging.

For older men there is a 21 to 29 per cent omission of calcium, a one to 10 deficiency of vitamin A; an 11 to 20 per cent deficiency of riboflavin and a one to 10 per cent lack of vitamin C. This discouraging record is better than the women's.

Women over 65 have dietary deficiencies as follows: Calcium, over 30 per cent; iron, one to 10 per cent; vitamin A, one to 10 per cent; thiamin, 11 to 20 per cent; riboflavin, 11 to 20 per cent. And over age 75 dietary deficiencies of vitamin A and riboflavin increase markedly.

Lack of adequate nutrition in diets of the elderly stems from a combination of physical and psychological conditions.

Economic hardship is prevalent among those over 65. The aged make up 10 per cent of the population and 20 per cent of the poor. Thus, if you're old, you're twice as likely to be poor. On a meager income the electric bill may have priority over groceries at certain times.

Transportation also creates a problem. Getting to a grocery store often means using some type of public transportation and managing two bags of groceries on a city bus can be a hassle at any age.

The physical aspects of being old are compounded by psychological implications. Many elderly people lack a sense of worth or well-being. They need to find meaning in their lives along with friendship and a sense of society participation. Without such meaning, the older person may simply lose interest in food.

With age one also tends to lose keen senses of taste and smell, and this is often considered one of the causes of diminishing appetites.

One of the most important nutritional safeguards of later years is exercise, according to Ronald M. Deutsch, author of "The Family Guide to Better Food and Better Health." Experts in the problems of aging conclude that few of their patients get sufficient exercise.

Exercise helps to prevent or relieve many problems of heart and blood vessels, joints, kidneys, the brain and nervous system — and the simple, low-energy syndrome of those getting old.

Exercise allows far more room to err in diets. For, as with any other age group, exercise can greatly enlarge the ability to consume calories. An extra couple of hundred calories a day can make all the difference in the quality of the older person's diet. Both the exercise and the resultant sense of well-being stimulate appetites.

How can older people improve their daily nutrient intake? Following is a general guide of what those over 65 should be eating every day: One or two glasses of milk, preferably skim or low-fat; at least one large serving of meat, fish or poultry; at least one serving of green or yellow vegetables; one or two servings of citrus or tomatoes; possibly a serving of other vegetables such as potatoes; two to three servings of bread, flour or cereals; and one or two tablespoons of table fat, such as margarine. It is also recommended that older people drink enough liquid to make a total of at least three to five cups a day.

Franfare

Corned beef skillet dinner for brunch entree

A skillet dish that makes an excellent brunch or dinner entree combines ripe olives, potato, corned beef and omelet strips. Some may want to try this as a hearty summer weekend breakfast. Serve with homemade corn muffins.

RIPE OLIVE CORNED BEEF DINNER

- 1 cup canned pitted California ripe olives
- 1/2 cup chopped onion
- 2 tablespoons salad oil
- 3 cups diced cooked potato
- 1/2 teaspoon salt
- 1/4 teaspoon pepper
- 1/2 cup milk

- 1 (12 ounces) can corned beef, coarsely crumbled
- Omelet strips
- 1 tablespoon finely chopped parsley

Cut ripe olives into halves. Heat oil in deep skillet. Add onion and cook until soft but not browned. Stir in potato, salt and pepper. Cook over moderate heat for 10 minutes, stirring occasionally. Stir in milk and corned beef. Continue cooking for 15 minutes longer. Add ripe olives to corned beef mixture; smooth top and cook 5 minutes longer. Meanwhile, make omelet strips. Sprinkle parsley on top of cooked ripe olive corned beef mixture. Then, pile omelet strips in center and serve immediately. Makes 4 to 6 servings.

OMELET STRIPS

- 2 eggs
  - 2 tablespoons milk
  - 1/8 teaspoon salt
- Beat the eggs, milk and salt together. Lightly grease a small skillet and heat. Add egg mixture and cook over moderate heat until eggs are thoroughly set. Turn out eggs onto a board. Cut into narrow strips. Place on corned beef mixture.

Barbecue with Oriental accent

Grilled Chicken with Buttery Wine sauce lends Oriental flavor to the great American tradition of outdoor cookery. Serve it with frozen appetizer egg rolls cooked on the grill while the chicken sizzles. Frozen Chinese pea pods wrapped in foil can also be cooked over the coals. Simply drizzle frozen peas with melted butter, sprinkle with chopped parsley and seal in foil bundles. Grill three minutes on each side.

GRILLED CHICKEN WITH BUTTERY WINE SAUCE

- 1 frying chicken, cut into serving size pieces
- 1/2 cup (1 stick) butter, melted in small saucepan on grill
- 1/4 cup dry white wine
- 1 tablespoon lemon juice
- 2 tablespoons soy sauce
- 1 teaspoon garlic powder
- 1 teaspoon onion powder
- 1 teaspoon paprika
- 1/2 teaspoon crushed tarragon leaves

Combine all ingredients except chicken; mix well. Grill chicken over hot coals until tender, basting frequently with the sauce mixture. Makes 4 servings.

1st week in July most dangerous of year

Now that the federal government has banned all firecrackers and has set new mandatory labeling safety standards on other fireworks devices, the Illinois State Bar Association in the following article describes the current Illinois statutes relating to fireworks, which in past history has been stricter than federal laws.

The first week in July is one of the most dangerous of the year.

The U. S. Consumer Product Safety Commission estimates that 4,500 consumers were treated in hospital emergency rooms last year for fireworks injuries, many of those of a serious nature. The bulk of those involved children under 15 years of age.

THE ILLINOIS GENERAL Assembly and most local governmental units have enacted laws and ordinances concerning the sale and use of fireworks. The major reason is for the safety of the individual, particularly the hundreds of youngsters in Illinois alone who handle fireworks each year.

It may be fun and exciting to hear the explosion of a firecracker or see the glowing tail of a roman candle, but it can also end in a tragic loss of sight, hearing or a finger for the handler. Fireworks are nothing to laugh at, they are explosives and should be handled as such, says the Illinois State Bar Association.

Illinois laws regulating the sale and use of fireworks date back to 1935. Since that time there have been a number of amendments to "The Fireworks Regulation Act," Chapter 127½, sections 101-131. It is recommended that every consumer of fireworks obtain a copy of those laws so that he or she can make this annual holiday a legal one.

FIREWORKS IS DEFINED in State laws as "any explosive composition, or any substance or combination of substances, or article prepared for the purpose of producing a visible or audible effect of a temporary exhibitional nature by explosion, combustion, deflagration (to burn with sudden and sparkling combustion) or detonation."

This includes "blank cartridges, toy cannons, in which explosives are used, the type of balloons which require fire underneath to propel the same, firecrackers, torpedoes, skyrockets, Roman candles, sparklers, bombs or other fireworks of like construction and any fireworks containing any explosive compound, or any tablets or other device containing any explosive substance, or containing combustible substances producing visual effects."

Toy pistols, guns or canes which use paper or plastic caps and are constructed so that the hand cannot come in contact with the cap at the time of explosion are not considered fireworks, says the Illinois State Bar Association.

ALTHOUGH THE STATE of Illinois specifically prohibits the sale and use of fireworks, it does give local governmental units the authority to enact ordinances providing approval of such sale and use at public displays, if permits are obtained by those staging the exhibition.

The Association also notes that it is illegal to sell fireworks of any kind at any time to children under the age of twelve without the consent of their parents.

The Act also specifies that fireworks to be sold at wholesale shall be kept in a room set aside from such storage and shall be marked with a sign, in clear view stating, "CAUTION — FIREWORKS — NO SMOKING."

THE ACT DOES not prohibit, according to the Illinois State Bar Association, any resident wholesaler, dealer or jobber to sell any kind of fireworks provided they are to be shipped out of the state, or the use of such fireworks by railroads, public utilities, public and private carriers or other transportation agencies for signal purposes or illumination or the sale or use of blank cartridges for a show or theatre or for signal or ceremonial purposes in athletics or for use by military organizations.

Individuals, co-partnerships, firms, or corporations who violate the provisions of the Act shall be guilty of a Class B Misdemeanor punishable by a jail sentence of thirty days to six months.

Play it legally safe this Fourth of July and you will truly enjoy the holiday, advises the Illinois State Bar Association.

Take legal precautions in contracting

So you are about to hire a contractor to have some work done on your house? If that is the case, warns the Illinois State Bar Association, there are some legal steps you should take to protect yourself against shoddy work or from paying more than the amount you agree to.

For one thing, you should know something about the law of liens, and the best place to get advice on that point is from your lawyer. All too often, the ISBA says, people will sign a substantial home improvement contract, perhaps one running into thousands of dollars, while giving little thought to the legal aspects of real estate property improvements.

One of those legal aspects is the Mechanics' Liens Act, a law which gives any workman who makes improvements and each supplier of material used in the improvements to your property, the right to file a lien, or claim, against that property if he isn't paid for his services or materials. If necessary, anytime within two years after his work was done, presuming that his lien was properly filed with the County Recorder, the lien holder may foreclose the lien and perhaps force the sale of the property so that he may be paid from the proceeds. A workman who is a subcontractor has a similar right but must notify the property owner of the non-payment within a certain time period before he may file a claim for lien.

MOST HOMEOWNERS, of course, think of hiring a contractor and paying for his work when it is done as a rather cut and dried affair. And, since most home improvement contractors are perfectly reliable people, it is usually just that. However, there is always the exception.

Take the case of a Chicago woman. She wrote a check to the contractor for the full amount of the remodeling and redecorating work on her home, quite honestly presuming that her payment of several thousand dollars ended the matter. Much to her surprise, a short time later she received a notice from the electrical subcontractor advising her that he had not been paid for his part of the job. To keep him from filing a lien on her property, she paid the electrical subcontractor's bill, even though her check to the contractor had covered his work.

Of course, the woman sued the contractor in an effort to recover the amount of her overpayment, but had she sought the advice of her lawyer in the first place she would have been spared the trouble and the extra expense.

HER LAWYER would have stressed these important points. First: Require the contractor to give you his affidavit — a notarized statement — in which he lists the names of all of his subcontractors, their addresses and the amounts of their subcontracts. Second: Before paying the contractor, ask him to provide waivers from subcontractors waiving their rights to any liens in connection with the work that was done and containing waivers of lien from their material suppliers. Finally, compare the contractor's sworn statement to the waivers to be sure that all liens have been waived as to the amounts due or requested.

That, of course, isn't the full extent of the legal advice to be had about home improvement dealings. A lawyer also would instruct his client as to protections against shoddy workmanship, work left undone, use of inferior materials or unnecessarily protracted work schedules. In most cases, adequate guarantees can and should be written into the contract which, especially if it is a sizable one, should be examined by the lawyer if not actually prepared by him. He would also give advice as to the timing and amounts of payments as the work progresses, assurances of proper performance and of the importance of public liability insurance to cover injury to others on the work site.

This guy is the real carpet bagger...he's the one who advertises low prices, but when you ask to see the samples he tells you how bad they are. He's the one who will give you a 15-year wear guarantee on carpeting or padding, but he only sells commercial carpeting. He saves you up to 80% off the normal retail price, but he usually has only enough carpet to fit exactly your room measurements. He's the one who has unbeatable prices, but never has any prices on the samples you see. He says he'll sell a whole house of carpet for only $200.00 but never does. He might give you free installation or padding or both...maybe even throw in a radio or something. He'll do or give you anything so that you'll buy without thinking or shopping. His products are flame-proof, stain-proof and wear-proof. And almost always measures your rooms and tells you that you need many more yards than you originally thought. Work may start by late July

Initial phase of $162,000 street-repair plan approved

Buffalo Grove officials have approved the first phase of a $162,000 street-improvement program scheduled to begin this summer.

The work, which will be paid for with Motor Fuel Tax funds, will consist of replacing curbs and gutters, cleaning sewer catch basins, sealing cracks in pavements and resurfacing streets in poor condition.

The village board this week appropriated $62,000 to pay for everything but the street resurfacing. In the near future, the board is expected to appropriate an additional $100,000 for that work.

Public Works Director Charles McCoy said Wednesday he hopes the first phase of the work will begin by the end of July. Before the work can start the village must get approval from the State of Illinois and advertise for bids on the project.

McCoy said sealing cracks in some of the streets is long over due. The sealing, called the "slurry process" consists of putting a thin coating of asphalt over the existing pavement. He said it should be done every year.

The process will keep moisture from seeping to the base of the street and reduce the chance of base failures. McCoy said the process will increase the life of the street by three to five years.

Streets that will be sealed by the "slurry process" include White Pine Road, Elmwood Drive, Hawthorne Road, Evergreen Place, Sycamore Road, Thornwood Drive, Roberta Court, Frances Court, Poplar Court, Red Oak Court and Marylu Lane.

Sealing the cracks in the streets is expected to take about a week. At the same time that is going on, workers will be replacing curbs and gutters and cleaning 642 sewer catch basins throughout the village. That work should take about a month, McCoy said.

THE CATCH BASIN work will consist of removing silt and other debris which should improve the flow of storm water through sewers.

The more extensive resurfacing of some streets in the old section of the village probably will be started about Aug. 1 and be completed by the middle of that month. The resurfacing was originally scheduled for last summer but was deferred, pending the completion of an engineering study of the streets.

The procedure to be used to resurface the streets is called the "cutler process." The process consists of heating the asphalt on the existing street and mixing it with new asphalt to form a new pavement.

This process is much cheaper than tearing out and replacing the entire pavement. After the work is done, McCoy said the streets should not require major repairs for 7 to 10 years.

OFFICIALS HAVE said several streets in the village have been repaired by the "cutler process" in the past and have held up well.

The streets that will be resurfaced lie approximately south of Buffalo Creek, north of Golfview Terrace, between Raupp Boulevard and Buffalo Grove Road. The streets are 15 years old and need resurfacing because of cracks, surface line settling and rippling.

The streets to be resurfaced make up about 15 per cent of the village's 55 miles of streets. Other streets in the village are in better condition and will not require major repairs for three to four years, McCoy said.

And lot waits on construction industry

Wheeling court awaits parking lot

A branch of the 2nd Municipal District of Cook County Circuit Court will be established in Wheeling approximately 45 days after completion of additional parking facilities adjacent to the village hall.

Circuit Court Judge Harold W. Sullivan Wednesday said the county is awaiting word from the village on a completion date for the parking area. As soon as this date is set, Sullivan said court activities can be scheduled in Wheeling within 45 days.

Wheeling officials, however, have no idea when the planned 100-car parking lot addition will be completed because of delays due to problems in the construction industry, including a month-long strike by area cement truck drivers.

Village Mgr. George Passolt said the project is being readied for bidding but he can make no prediction on costs nor on a completion date.

Village Pres. Ted Scanlon said the village hoped to complete the project by Aug. 1 but that is only a tentative date.

THE NEW PARKING lot will be just east of the municipal building and will be designed to allow for the eventual construction of a fire station behind the lot. Passolt has said the area in front of the lot will be landscaped and sodded to make it more attractive.

The additional parking space is needed to accommodate an estimated 75 extra cars which are expected to be brought to the village by the court. Development of the new parking area was a condition for locating the court in Wheeling.

The decision to open a court branch in Wheeling was made in April after Sullivan met with area police chiefs to discuss overcrowded conditions which exist in Arlington Heights. The Arlington Heights court is currently the only one serving a majority of the Northwest suburban area.

The Wheeling court branch will handle cases for Wheeling and Buffalo Grove. Officials say this will greatly alleviate overcrowding of court dockets in Arlington Heights.

Sullivan said once the parking area is finished, court officials will need the 45 days to complete transfer of cases from Arlington Heights to Wheeling.

Omni-House to aid housewives

After 18 years or more of washing diapers, mending baseball uniforms and baking cookies for PTA functions, the suburban housewife suddenly finds her children are grown up.

No longer are there youngsters making demands on her time, and she begins to focus more attention on herself and her own life.

The biggest question is "what next?" There are lots of options, maybe more than the average woman realizes.

TO HELP THE housewife ready to look outside the home for new interests or even a new career, Omni-House: Youth Services Bureau, Wheeling, will offer a special summer counseling session.

"The session is not intended to be therapeutic, but more or less a decision-making group," said Cheryl Torok, Omni-House psychologist, who conceived the idea of reaching out to aid local women who want to know more about the alternatives available to them.

"We realize that these communities don't have everything, but many women may not really know what is available here," Miss Torok said. "If what they want isn't here, we'll find it somewhere else," she added.

In fact, Miss Torok sees the basic function of Omni-House in offering the counseling as seeking out opportunities for women and helping each to decide what's right for her.

"I see a lot of legwork for us in collecting data on what's available," she commented.

As the session is planned, Miss Torok said the first six weeks will be spent in discussing the decision-making process and evaluating options. By the end of the sixth week, she said, hopefully each member of the group will have decided on an alternative and the rest of the session will be devoted to implementing that decision.

'New downtown' facing obstacles in many suburbs

by STEVE FORSYTH

The Northwest suburbs have blossomed, sprawled and grown rich in recent decades while their downtown areas did little but deteriorate.

Communities of 50,000 and more now radiate around centers that are less vigorous commercially and socially than would be expected in towns half their size.

But turning rows of crumbling shops into modern stores and offices has proved a frustrating dream for the relatively few business and community leaders who are committed to it.

The base of opposition to downtown renewal in towns like Des Plaines, Mount Prospect, Arlington Heights and Palatine — all in some stage of redevelopment planning — is simply resistance to change.

IF LIFE IS good enough as it is, many residents ask, why tamper with the unknown? Why attract more people and more cars to the downtown areas?

James Paroubek, the father of the downtown redevelopment plan for Des Plaines, has many answers, at least for his community. They all hinge on two stories of new shops and 10 floors of office buildings in the project known as Superblock.

In the first place, Paroubek says, redevelopment is inevitable in many parts of the nation. Professional planners agree with him as they predict a return to more active centers of business and population, primarily because of land costs and energy shortages.

Through eight years of planning and land purchasing, Paroubek and a group of local businessmen have hung onto their idea of halting downtown deterioration.

THEY POINT OUT advantages to property owners, businessmen and potential workers and shoppers in the new area. Another promised advantage is tax relief for homeowners as the business community assumes a greater share of the tax load. Increased business also means increased sales tax revenue.

Des Plaines is only one Northwest suburb wrestling with downtown redevelopment. Palatine has a disputed plan for a new downtown that will have a rural character. Arlington Heights has had several plans. And Mount Prospect, a late bloomer, is seeking planners to draw up redevelopment proposals.

Money is not the only goal of redevelopment in suburban communities. Lost for years in the category of "Chicago suburbs," many community leaders would like to see each town develop a character and identity of its own. There is no written value for "identity," but local officials and professional planners alike agree it is a desirable goal for a community.

But the benefits of redevelopment are off in the future. The costs are now and the return is only a projection. Government actions needed to spur renewal projects make them politically vulnerable. The problems become a mound of barriers that is difficult for the redevelopment bulldozer to move.

DES PLAINE'S could serve as a model of the problems and successes in rebuilding a suburban downtown.

The Des Plaines project started in 1966 with a businessmen's group known as the Des Plaines Redevelopment Assn. In 1968, the Des Plaines Tomorrow Corp., a nonprofit organization, was formed with Paroubek as president. The Tomorrow group of 40 to 50 businessmen pledged $5,000 or more to the corporation, to give it power to borrow money.

The pledges — not cash — were used

THE DES PLAINE'S Superblock plan is rolling to a conclusion after eight years of planning and land purchasing. James Paroubek, president of the Des

Plaines Tomorrow Corp., looks over the rubble that marks the only visible progress so far. New objections now confront the redevelopment plans.

'Cirrusly' speaking, solar halo visible here

by JOE SWICKARD

The Chicago area was treated to an "astronomical phenomenon" Wednesday when the sun, clouds and ice crystals combined to form a tri-color solar halo.

The red, yellow and blue bands entirely encircling the sun appeared about noon, prompting people to call the U.S. Weather Service, Chicago's Adler Planetarium, newspapers and radio stations.

A weather service spokesman said the halo was caused by sun rays being refracted through ice crystals suspended in cirrus clouds at an altitude of 20,000 to 25,000 feet.

One-color halos, with a reddish hue,

are more common, the spokesman said. "I don't remember one having as many colors."

According to the service's glossary, the halos are termed "astronomical phenomena." They can vary in brightness and coloration, from white to red to prismatic spectrums (as in Wednesday's display) depending on the relation of the crystal-bearing clouds to the sun.

THE WHITE halos are caused when the sun light is reflected off the ice crystals, rather than the light being refracted through them, the spokesman said.

Jim Seevers, assistant astronomer at the Adler Planetarium, said the best halos are formed when the clouds are angled 22 degrees from the sun.

The six-sided ice crystals break down the rays of the sun into the primary colors, resulting in the "rainbow" halo, Seevers said.

The halo was the third one experienced this spring in the Chicago area, he said. Wednesday's was the most noticeable because of the bright sun and clear air.

It all depends on, Seevers said, "just how nicely the crystals arrange themselves."

When the phenomenon does not encircle the sun, but appears on either side, they are called "sun dogs," said Seevers. The "dogs" are more common than halos, he said.

The term is "a very old one," Seevers said. The ancients probably called the arcs "dogs" because they appear to be led by the sun, he speculated.

LUNAR HALOS and dogs are also relatively common sights, he said. They are caused by the same elements (the light of the moon being reflected sunlight), but are more likely to be seen because of their contrast to the dark night sky, he said.

Seevers claimed it was pure coincidence that solar halos and dogs will be discussed during the planetarium's summer show, "The U.F.O. Experience," that begins tomorrow.

"We didn't plan it, but it certainly did work out nicely, didn't it," he said.

Dundee Rd. median discussion tonight

The Buffalo Grove Village Board will meet tonight with businessmen along Dundee Road in an attempt to end the controversy over the village plan to plant grass and trees along the road's median strip.

The meeting will be in the village hall, 50 Raupp Blvd., at 8 p.m. The public is invited.

The Buffalo Grove Chamber of Commerce this week presented a petition opposing the beautification plan. The Chamber claims the planted, raised median will hurt business, create a traffic hazard, restrict business activity and development as well as pose a maintenance problem for the village.

The session is scheduled to begin June 23 and continue through July 19, with the group meeting once a week at Omhl-House.

Scholarships total $1,300

Nursing grants awarded to 6

The Wheeling-Buffero Grove Nurses' Club recently awarded scholarships totaling $1,300 to six area women planning to pursue the profession of nursing.

Four of the scholarship winners already are enrolled in schools of nursing and received aid from the nurse's club to continue their education.

Roberta Horcher, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Marvin Horcher of Wheeling, attends Augustana School of Nursing; Sharon Gac of Buffalo Grove is a second-year student at Harper Junior College; Linda Smith, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Marvin Smith of Wheeling, attends Evanston Hospital School of Nursing, and Diane Dahl, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Lawrence Dahl of Wheeling, is enrolled in Lutheran General Hospital School of Nursing.

THE OTHER SCHOLARSHIP winners are scheduled to enter schools of nursing in the fall and include Debra Poulton, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. David Poulton of Mundelein, and Diane Shanahan, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Shanahan of Buffalo Grove.

Miss Poulton plans to enter Illinois Wesleyan University and Miss Shanahan will attend Harper Junior College.

Each of the applicants for scholarships from the nurse's club will receive a year's subscription to R. N. magazine.

Scholarship recipients were selected through personal interviews conducted by Mrs. Theodore Scherbert, scholarship chairman; Mrs. Emmett Griffie, club president and Mrs. Gary Anderson, Mrs. Donald Wagner and Mrs. Kenneth Wolniak, committee members.

FUNDS FOR THE awards were raised this year by a garage sale and an art auction. This is the eighth year the annual scholarships have been given, since the first scholarship of $250 went to Shirley Parrish.

In addition to providing scholarships, the nurse's club also maintains a free lending closet of sickroom equipment, provides periodical blood pressure screening, helps with blood drives and aides the community civil defense programs.

All registered professional nurses from the Wheeling-Buffero Grove area are invited to join the organization. Meetings will resume next fall on the fourth Wednesday of each month at 7:30 p.m. in the library at London Junior High School, Wheeling.

Nuclear power unit to resume

by LEA TONKIN

Operations at the Quad Cities nuclear power station should resume this weekend, following replacement of a feeder valve into one of the unit's boiling water reactors.

The valve broke early Monday, causing flood damage in the station, the escape of 350 gallons of slightly radioactive water into a nearby oil separator, and the plant shutdown.

The valve did not meet specifications, according to Clem Stava, a spokesman for Commonwealth Edison Co. in Chicago. Edison and the Iowa-Illinois Gas & Electric jointly operate Quad Cities station. "The valve should have been .58 inches thick, and in the port that broke, it was found to have been .315 to .447 inches," said Stava.

Steam released by the blowout led to the activation of fire prevention spray devices at the Quad Cities plant. Some 70,000 gallons of water inundated the station, and 350 gallons of water "got through a doorway to a nearby oil separator," Stava said. "That's the furthest it got. There was no chance for it to get into the river." The Quad Cities is located along the Mississippi River.

A new valve should be installed at the plant by today or Friday, and the plant will be "on line" again this weekend.

The Atomic Energy commission nuclear safeguards experts indicate that the incident caused no significant damage to the surrounding environment. Yet according to Philip Miller, Citizens for a Better Environment assistant director of research, the blowout is an indicator that additional study is needed of "hazardous technology."

Despite the Quad Cities shutdown and the repair project at Unit 11 of the Commonwealth Edison's nuclear plant near Zion, the utility reports an 18 per cent power reserve.

This week's incident follows Edison's June 5 acceptance of the Edison Award, the highest award of the electric utility industry, for its role in the development and application of nuclear technology to electric power supply. The award was presented by Edison Electric Institute.

Briefly on business

Cement drivers' strike continues

The strike by some 3,000 northern Illinois cement truck drivers continued Wednesday. No new negotiating sessions were planned, according to Teamster union representatives and a spokesman for the Northern Illinois Ready Mix and Materials Assn.

Talks between Local 786 of the Teamsters, Building, Material Lumber, Box Shaving, Roofing and Insulating, Chauffeurs, Teamsters Warehousemen and Helpers Union and the ready mix group broke off June 6. Thomas Connolly of the ready mix assn. said Wednesday no private meetings with teamsters were held this week.

A Wednesday night meeting between Associated General Contractors and 13 striking Teamster unions in downstate Illinois was preceded by a mutual agreement not to walk out of the session. Strikes by 4,000 teamsters idled some 25,000 workers in 80 of Illinois, 102 counties.

Penny's sales gain

J. C. Penney Co. Inc.'s May sales, benefiting from two major selling events during the period, rose 14.2 per cent over the 1973 month.

Volume for the five weeks ended June 1 totaled a record $600.6 million compared with $525.8 million for the year-ago period, according to chairman William M. Batten and president Jack B. Jackson. The increase amounted to $74.8 million. May was Penny's 134th straight monthly reporting period of sales gains.

Volume for the first four months of the 1974 fiscal year, Jan. 27 through June 1, was up 12.5 per cent to a record $2,053.7 million from $1,825.4 million last year. Gain for the 18 weeks amounted to $228.3 million.

The company has facilities in Schaumburg, Elk Grove Village and Rolling Meadows.

Projection for year 2000 cut to 2 million

Suburban population growth slowing

Population growth in the Chicago suburbs has slowed significantly, according to recent figures collected by the Northeastern Illinois Planning Commission.

Preliminary population forecast figures for the year 2000 gathered by NIPC show a decrease of 1 million in the projections of five years ago. The six-county metropolitan area will still have to deal with 2 million additional residents, instead of 3 million.

The decrease is attributed to a decline in fertility and birth rates, and because migration to the Chicago area has not increased the population here as much as was expected. "Migration has not increased the region's population significantly since the 1950s," the NIPC report says.

NIPC is urging a cooperative effort to discover a realistic growth forecast to prevent mistakes in planning in the suburbs. "Developers' hopes for profit must not convince suburban leaders that the supply of white, middle-class people is unlimited," NIPC says.

THE COMMISSION is most concerned about the distribution of growth, with attention paid to flood plain land, noise from O'Hare Airport and the need for open space. One NIPC conclusion is that by the year 2000, park and forest preserve acreage must be more than doubled to serve existing and predicted needs. "The region has less public recreational land per person than any other of America's 10 largest metropolitan regions," the report contends.

NIPC officials are seeking organized distribution of population near existing services, because it maximizes access to jobs, shopping, schools and cultural events. "An unchecked trend toward more dispersion of residences, and more highways, would surely lead to population densities too low to support public transportation, however subsidized," the report says.

"Dispersed growth would also cost more tax dollars for sewers, schools and every kind of public service. The longer travel distances, and larger land areas used, would add to air and water pollution. The centers of cities and established suburbs would deteriorate as retail trade moves to new shopping centers," the report says.

LOCAL PREFERENCES for growth are being sought because some suburbs welcome growth, while others want to halt it. The size of population has a great influence on the community lifestyles. According to NIPC, there are 12 suburbs alone that are willing or planning to accept 2 million more residents — the entire total increase for the six-county area in the next 26 years.

The 1973 population of suburban Cook County was 2,256,541, according to census figures, and that is now expected to grow to 2,992,000 by the year 2000. The City of Chicago is expected to lose population.

Preliminary population forecasts for local townships include:

Wheeling	133,310	160,000
Elk Grove	84,221	117,000
Palatine	67,028	105,000
Schaumburg	69,996	140,000
Maine	144,453	166,900

The report indicates the racial makeup of the entire region is changing. In 1970, the region was 81 per cent white and 19 per cent other races. In the year 2000, the distribution will be 72 per cent white and 28 per cent other races.

Unchecked trends in Chicago would reduce its white percentage from 66 per cent now to 30 per cent, although successful efforts for racial socio-economic equality could change that significantly, the report says. Other races would constitute no more than 18 per cent of any outlying county, the report says, with the suburban average around 13 per cent.

Wheeling High double victim of bomb?

When something happens like the Wheeling High School fire, it is upsetting, frightening and, yes, angering.

A high school lost 22,000 books because someone, for some twisted reason, thought it was a good idea to throw some Molotov cocktails through some windows.

The motives of the culprits are obscure. Maybe they had a grudge against the school. Maybe they thought a little fire would be a "fun" way to end a Saturday evening. Maybe they don't know themselves why they did it.

Two youths have been arrested by Wheeling police and charged with the crime and even if they are guilty (something we don't know right now) we may never get an explanation of their motive.

BUT RIGHT NOW there is one thing I can say for sure. Whatever the motives of the Wheeling arsonists, the event should not reflect on the student body of Wheeling High School.

It should be unnecessary to say that, because it should be self-evident. But ever since the fire, I have had people coming up to me and saying things like

Education today

by Wandalyne Rice

"Well, you know how Wheeling is." And the assumption those people have made has been that Wheeling High School is, somehow, the only place in the Northwest suburbs where something like that can happen.

That assumption isn't fair, but I think it should be examined closely, because it isn't a new assumption.

More than a year ago, a group of Mount Prospect residents were protesting a proposed boundary change which would have shifted their children from Hersey to Wheeling high schools. In an appearance before the High School Dist. 214 board, Patrick Link, who was then a Mount Prospect Village Trustee, said people in his area opposed the move because "Wheeling has a bad reputation."

PEOPLE associated with Wheeling High School were rightfully incensed by that remark. And they appeared at another board meeting to defend their school. The board also defended the school.

But judging from the reaction I heard this week from some people following the fire, the attitude Link expressed wasn't killed during the boundary discussions. People said things this week like, "Well, you know they have a lot of tough kids up there," or "Well, what can you expect from Wheeling. It's disgraceful."

I told those people they were wrong, individually, but perhaps it's time to face the issue in public. Too often statements like those go unanswered for fear that repeating the accusations will give them credence. But, now, for the record, let's say it: Wheeling High School students are not any different (or any worse) than high school students in any other school in the Northwest suburbs (or the whole country for that matter.)

True, Wheeling has tough kids. So does Arlington, and so does Elk Grove and so does Palatine or Conant. I defy anyone to find a school with 2,500 students that doesn't have some kids who qualify as "tough."

THERE ARE probably a lot of things that contributed to the Wheeling High School reputation. Some of the people I've talked to have said it is because, several years ago, the school had modular scheduling and that resulted in discipline problems. (Modular scheduling has also resulted in those problems at other high schools where it has been tried. Evanston High School, as an example, was criticized for the same reason.)

Some people have said the reputation of Wheeling High School is connected with snobbery. Wheeling residents are middle-class, but they aren't as middle-class as residents of some surrounding suburbs. That is an easy objection to meet — "class" stereotypes are always false.

Some of the reputation may result from the fact that the village of Wheeling itself has had some rough times lately, what with present and former village officials pleading guilty to federal crimes. But it hardly seems fair to blame high school students for that. Not all of them even live in the village of Wheeling, and those who do generally can't vote, so they have little say in village government.

WHATEVER THE origin of the prejudice against Wheeling High School, I suspect it is perpetuated just because it is there. People repeat statements about Wheeling not because they are true, but because they have been said before.

That isn't fair. And it particularly isn't fair to use this tragic (and criminal) fire to further the stereotype.

I doubt there is a high school principal in this country who, if he was being honest, wouldn't admit that the same thing could happen at his school.

Wheeling High School was unlucky. But don't find the victim of something like this guilty.

Meet today on second campus

Harper officials expected to decide on site purchase

The Harper College Board of Trustees is scheduled to make a decision today on whether to go ahead with plans to buy a second site for the college.

The board will meet at 8 p.m. today at the college, Algonquin and Roselle roads, Palatine. Last week, board members agreed to decide today whether to proceed with the second site.

College officials are scheduled to appear before the Arlington Heights village board of trustees Monday in connection with their request that the village board set aside land for the college in its zoning plan.

THE LAND, AT Palatine and Schoenbeck roads in Arlington Heights, is owned by the Mayo Foundation. About a year ago, the college first approached the village about the zoning designation, but the case has been delayed while the school sought approval from the Illinois Community College board to plan for a second campus.

The Harper board last week agreed that they could not delay further in deciding whether to buy the land. Several board members advocated telling the village board to set aside the land only until the college can have a referendum to raise money for the purchase.

Representatives of the Mayo Foundation have said they do not want the land tied up by the village board if the college is not going to be able to purchase it immediately.

LAST WEEK, A DEVELOPER, Raymond and Raymond of Evanston, approached the village, saying it was interested in buying the land from Mayo and building a 1,074-unit development on it. Representatives of the developer have said they would be willing to wait until Harper determines whether it can buy the site.

The Harper board held a closed session Tuesday night to discuss the situation with Mayo and possible action on the site. Also Tuesday, the Arlington Heights Park District board voted to support Harper if it seeks the site.

Preliminary plans by Harper architects indicate the park district could use part of the land not needed by the college.

Study may be completed by July

Council committee drafting changes in government

by STEVE BROWN

Recommendations on a number of major revisions in the makeup of city government in Des Plaines probably will be completed by a city council committee by July.

Ald. Alan Abrams (8th), who heads the council's city code and judiciary committee, called for the speedup of the committee's study this week.

He said the recommendations should be made as soon as possible so that sufficient time will be allowed for debate by the full city council and placed on a special referendum ballot for the city election in the spring of 1975.

THE COMMITTEE has for about nine months been studying a number of revisions regarding the formation of city government in Des Plaines.

Among the revisions being considered is the possible changeover to the council-manager form of government. Under this system a full-time city manager would be hired to handle the day to day operation of the city. The mayor's position would become part-time.

The committee also is considering changes to the offices of the city clerk and treasurer.

There is also a proposal to reduce the number of aldermen from 16 to eight.

Abrams suggested that committee meetings will be held next month to consider the various changes individually and that a final report should be completed within a month.

THE COMMITTEE has held a number of open sessions and heard from village presidents, city managers and officials from Des Plaines and other communities.

Abrams noted that the consensus of the testimony taken during the committee meetings found no one endorsing the current type of government in Des Plaines.

He also suggested that the committee determine whether a referendum be held to give an opportunity to vote on the decisions.

"Personally, I feel we should really plan to go to the voters with our recommendations," Abrams said.

He added that it might be better to offer just the recommendations rather than a lengthy string of alternatives.

Group to air secret report on Superblock

by STEVE BROWN

A citizens' group plans to disclose the contents of a secret financial report on the Superblock project tonight to a group of Des Plaines aldermen.

The meeting, which will begin at 8 p.m., may constitute a violation of the Illinois Open Meetings Act. The law requires official notification for all city council meetings, which must be open to the public.

At least eight of the council's 16 aldermen plan to attend the session, which will be held at the home of Thomas Nugent, 1681 Campbell St. Several city council members could not be reached for comment on their plans to attend the gathering.

Members of the citizens group have indicated the meeting will not be open to the public. Also, as of last night, no formal notice of the meeting had been issued by city council.

AT LEAST ONE alderman has been told by City Atty. James Bouril that the meeting as planned might be in violation of the law.

The session is being held by a coalition

Bicycle officer expects better accident record

by JOHN MAES

Bicycle-related accidents probably will remain about the same and may even begin to decrease this year because motorists and bicycle riders are becoming "more aware of each other," according to Des Plaines Police Bicycle and Traffic Safety Officer Robert Neil.

"It's better than anticipated this year," said Neil, who helped engineer the city's bike safety program. "It's not quite as serious as in the past couple of years because bike sales are high again — but accidents are not up."

Police statistics show that 12 bike-related accidents have occurred so far this year. Seven of those were in April with the remaining five recorded in May and June.

FOUR OF THIS year's accidents have resulted in injuries but none have been fatal. The most recent victim of a city bike mishap was Todd Daley, 8, of 475 Westmore Rd.

The youngster was treated Tuesday for minor injuries at Holy Family Hospital after he struck a parked car on the 500 block of Westmore. The boy told police he was racing with his brother, looked back for a second and ran into the car.

Car theft attempts foiled three times

Would-be auto thieves were unsuccessful in three attempts to steal autos owned by Des Plaines residents, police said Wednesday.

The three attempts occurred late Monday or early Tuesday to autos left outside homes.

According to reports, someone tried to steal an auto owned by Carlo Costanzo, 1329 Highland Dr., and tried to start the car by forcing the ignition lock with a screwdriver.

COSTANZO TOLD POLICE he noticed the car, a 1964 Chevrolet, had been tampered with while leaving for work Tuesday morning.

Ellen Wilson, 1561 Ashland Ave. also told police that thieves tried unsuccessfully to steal her auto left in an alley behind her home. Attempts were made to force an ignition switch on that car.

Attempts were also made to force an ignition switch on an auto owned by Dwight Loewe, 1554 Walnut Ave., late Monday or early Tuesday. Police said the car was parked in an alley.

An investigation was under way Wednesday into similarities among the three incidents.

'New downtown' facing obstacles in many suburbs

by STEVE FORSYTH

The Northwest suburbs have blossomed, sprawled and grown rich in recent decades while their downtown areas did little but deteriorate.

Communities of 50,000 and more now radiate around centers that are less vigorous commercially and socially than would be expected in towns half their size.

But turning rows of crumbling shops into modern stores and offices has proved a frustrating dream for the relatively few business and community leaders who are committed to it.

The base of opposition to downtown renewal in towns like Des Plaines, Mount Prospect, Arlington Heights and Palatine — all in some stage of redevelopment planning — is simply resistance to change.

IF LIFE IS good enough as it is, many residents ask, why tamper with the unknown? Why attract more people and more cars to the downtown areas?

James Paroubek, the father of the downtown redevelopment plan for Des Plaines, has many answers. They all hinge on two stories of new shops and 10 floors of office buildings in the project known as Superblock.

In the first place, Paroubek says, redevelopment is inevitable in many parts of the nation. Professional planners agree with him as they predict a return to more active centers of business and population, primarily because of land costs and energy shortages.

Through eight years' of planning and land purchasing, Paroubek and a group of local businessmen have hung onto their idea of halting downtown deterioration.

THEY POINT OUT advantages to property owners, businessmen and potential workers and shoppers in the new area. Another promised advantage is tax relief for homeowners as the business community assumes a greater share of the tax load. Increased business also means increased sales tax revenue.

Des Plaines is only one Northwest suburb wrestling with downtown redevelopment. Palatine has a disputed plan for a new downtown that will have a rural character. Arlington Heights has had several plans. And Mount Prospect, a late bloomer, is seeking planners to draw up redevelopment proposals.

Money is not the only goal of redevelopment in suburban communities. Lost for years in the category of "Chicago suburbs," many community leaders would like to see each town develop a character and identity of its own. There is no written value for "identity," but local officials and professional planners alike agree it is a desirable goal for a community.

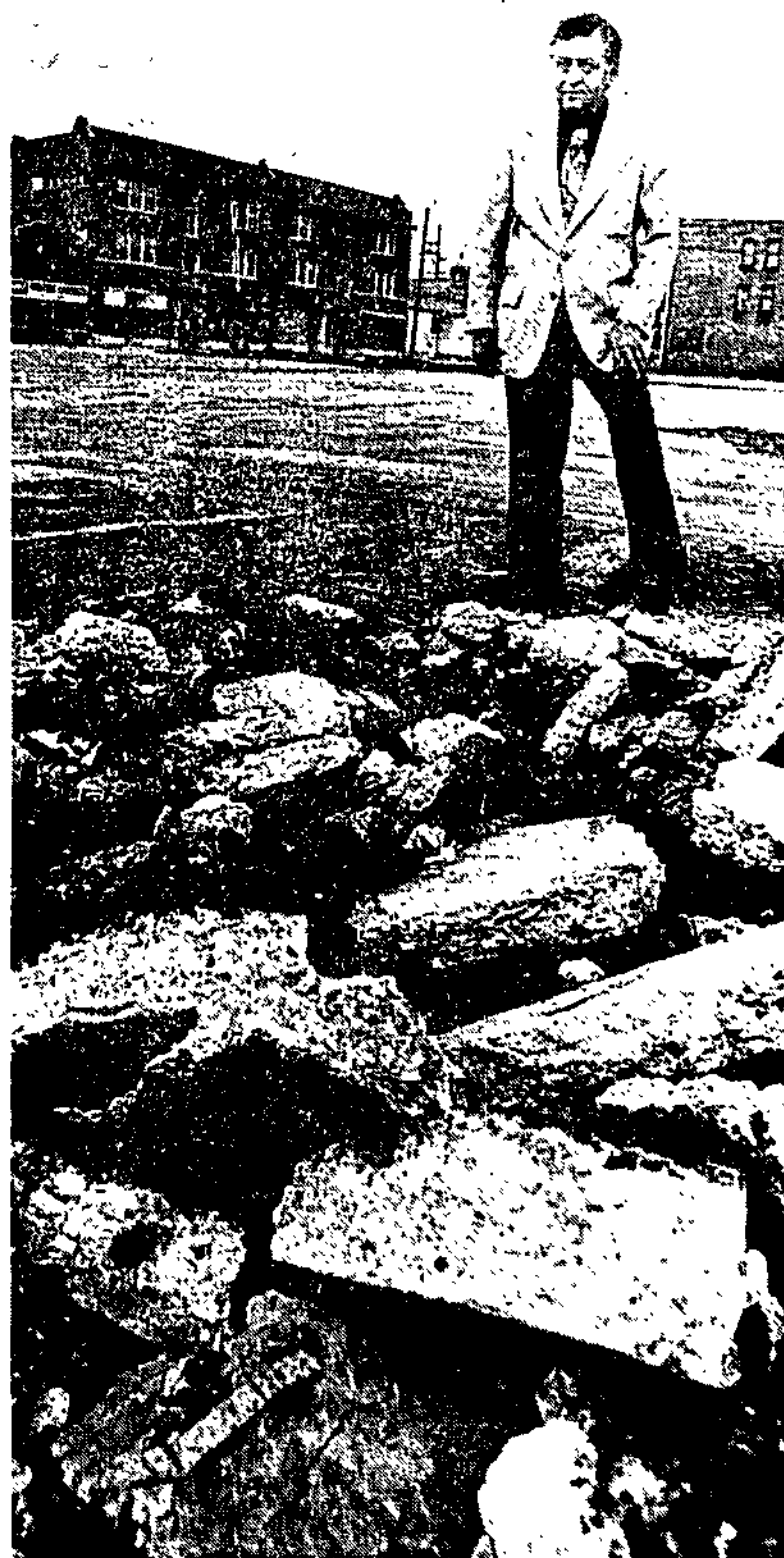

But the benefits of redevelopment are off in the future. The costs are now and the return is only a projection. Government actions needed to spur renewal projects make them politically vulnerable. The problems become a mound of barriers that is difficult for the redevelopment bulldozer to move.

DES PLAINES could serve as a model of the problems and successes in rebuilding a suburban downtown.

The Des Plaines project started in 1966 with a businessmen's group known as the Des Plaines Redevelopment Assn. In 1968, the Des Plaines Tomorrow Corp., a nonprofit organization, was formed with Paroubek as president. The Tomorrow group of 40 to 50 businessmen pledged $5,000 or more to the corporation, to give it power to borrow money.

The pledges — not cash — were used

THE DES PLAINES Superblock plan is rolling to a conclusion after eight years of planning and land purchasing. James Paroubek, president of the Des

'Cirrusly' speaking, solar halo visible here

by JOE SWICKARD

The Chicago area was treated to an "astronomical phenomenon" Wednesday when the sun, clouds and ice crystals combined to form a tri-color solar halo.

The red, yellow and blue bands entirely encircling the sun appeared about noon, prompting people to call the U.S. Weather Service, Chicago's Adler Planetarium, newspapers and radio stations.

A weather service spokesman said the halo was caused by sun rays being refracted through ice crystals suspended in cirrus clouds at an altitude of 20,000 to 25,000 feet.

One-color halos, with a reddish hue,

A SOLAR HALO in full color appeared over the Chicago area Wednesday. The red, yellow and blue bands were caused by sunlight refracted through ice crystals. The spot to the side is a reflection.

are more common, the spokesman said. "I don't remember one having as many colors."

According to the service's glossary, the halos are termed "astronomical phenomena." They can vary in brightness and coloration, from white to red to prismatic spectrums (as in Wednesday's display) depending on the relation of the crystal-bearing clouds to the sun.

THE WHITE halos are caused when the sun light is reflected off the ice crystals, rather than the light being refracted through them, the spokesman said.

Jim Seevers, assistant astronomer at the Adler Planetarium, said the best halos are formed when the clouds are angled 22 degrees from the sun.

The six-sided ice crystals break down the rays of the sun into the primary colors, resulting in the "rainbow" halo, Seevers said.

The halo was the third one experienced this spring in the Chicago area, he said. Wednesday's was the most noticeable because of the bright sun and clear air.

It all depends on, Seevers said, "just how nicely the crystals arrange themselves."

When the phenomenon does not encircle the sun, but appears on either side, they are called "sun dogs," said Seevers. The "dogs" are more common than halos, he said.

The term is "a very old one," Seevers said. The ancients probably called the arcs "dogs" because they appear to be led by the sun, he speculated.

LUNAR HALOS and dogs are also relatively common sights, he said. They are caused by the same elements (the light of the moon being reflected sunlight), but are more likely to be seen because of their contrast to the dark night sky, he said.

Seevers claimed it was pure coincidence that solar halos and dogs will be discussed during the planetarium's summer show, "The U.F.O. Experience," that begins tomorrow.

"We didn't plan it, but it certainly did work out nicely, didn't it," he said.

Kids often deserve more credit

Sometimes we don't give quite enough credit where credit is due — particularly when it comes to kids.

Here's an example of kid stuff that is not atypical of the things the younger set gets into, but rather an example of "involved" kids.

Edward Rosenberg has a thing for science. Last year in his sixth-grade science at Nathanson School he did a research paper on cancer research and was overwhelmed with the enormous amount of money needed for a research project.

He rounded up a few of his buddies — including Irwin Horwitz, Louis Zimble and Earl Singer — formed a club, elected officers and planned a carnival for cancer.

THEY STOPPED BY the office last year, filled with enthusiasm, ready to take on the world and make a fortune.

A constant stream of phone calls and visitors pass through a newspaper office daily and it is easy to ignore four hyper kids who want you to direct their publicity campaign for a carnival (of all things).

BUT THESE boys were not easily put off. Their persistence was unmatched by the most indignant publicity chairman. They not only got their share of newspaper plugs for the event but persuaded television weatherman Harry Volkman to appear at the event.

It paid off. More than $200 was raised from the games and refreshments and turned over to cancer research.

I wasn't surprised to see Ed and pals bounce into the office again this year. (I predict they will be regular visitors in future years as well.) They are now going for a bigger and better carnival.

They already have written a letter to Dick Butkus, asking him to appear as the carnival drawing card and are soliciting merchandise from local stores to give away as prizes. The cancernobile with its educational display is already scheduled to be at the carnival.

Their hardest job is getting donations, and if you'd like to help four 12 and 13-year-old boys make a carnival a success call Ed at 299-1615.

Just as an aside on the kind of kids these are: the club's number one rule is "no goofing around or you'll get thrown out." The number two rule is "no smoking."

MORE KID STUFF: The student body at South School saved papers to save the Des Plaines prairie patch, considered to be one of the few remaining plots of original Illinois prairie.

The students in the school saved their newspapers for a full month and dropped them off last weekend in the teachers parking lot. More than 25 tons of newspaper was collected and, despite a tremendous drop in the price paid for paper by recycling firms, the kids raised about $375.

A check was handed over Wednesday to Dave Wolf, chairman of the Des Plaines Bicentennial Commission. The commission has taken over the project of preserving the prairie as a nature center to be used for schools and others.

A side note on this kid stuff project too: The classes competed against each other to see who would bring in the most papers. Winners will be treated to an ice cream party.

A member of one of the losing classes (who will remain anonymous because he'll only get mad at me) who brought in about 500 pounds of paper was overheard to say, "Boy, the teacher told us she had all this newspaper that she was going to bring in and we all thought she had tons of the stuff. Well, she only had a dumb 75 pounds."

Paul Paprocki— youthful problems are his specialty

by FRAN SLIMMER

Everybody has problems and may at times need someone to talk to.

Elk Grove Township young people can talk with someone whose job it is to listen.

Paul Paprocki, 26, township youth services director since January 1972, spends at least 40 hours a week listening to problems at the Elk Grove Mental Health Center and The Bridge referral and counseling center in Palatine Township.

The problems he handles are as different as the people he talks with, and he said there is no "most common" problem.

However, he said youths have frequently consulted him about problems stemming from legal drug use and alcoholism in the family.

Family situations influence teens, sometimes unconsciously, Paprocki said. But, "an adolescent reacts to whatever stimulant is given in his family," he said. A youth's problems may not be just problems in themselves, but rather symptoms of something deeper troubling him.

"If he's doing something to draw attention to himself, it's a dead giveaway that he wants someone to talk to," Paprocki said.

Paprocki primarily conducts individual therapy sessions with youths who come to him for counseling, but sometimes he will talk to family members when a family problem is involved.

Occasionally, parents balk at coming in for therapy, making it tough for a counselor to work with the youth, Paprocki said.

THE IDEAL PERSON to counsel is one who simply admits "I'm unhappy and don't know what to do about it," he said.

Paprocki spends most of his time in individual counseling at the mental health center. "That's what I do best," he said. "I get the most satisfaction and enjoyment out of this type of social work."

Paprocki's interest in social work and counseling started in college, when he spent time as a floor adviser in a dormitory. "I really enjoyed it," he said, and he was looking for a job in social work when he found the township position.

He majored in sociology at Marquette University and went to Loyola law school for a year.

BESIDES HIS counseling sessions at the township mental health center, Paprocki also handles, under supervision, problems called in over a hotline at The Bridge in Palatine. Palatine, Elk Grove and Schaumburg townships recently became partners in the free regional youth services center based at The Bridge. The three townships share the costs equally and limit the services to those living in the townships.

The target population for the Bridge services is high school age, because funds are limited, Paprocki said.

Persons from outside the region who call in for help are referred to other services.

The Bridge offers legal advice, health service, counseling, confidential pregnancy and venereal disease testing and birth control referral, Paprocki said.

Paprocki works a shift at The Bridge and then is "on call" for emergencies. However, he said police and fire departments can often do better jobs in immediately handling emergencies than counselors can.

"I don't have any magical powers," he said.

Five elementary school teachers retire this month

Five elementary school teachers with more than 100 years in education will be retiring from Dist. 62 this month.

Retiring teachers include Mrs. Virginia Bowles, Central School kindergarten teacher; Mrs. Lora Eckert, Forest School third grade teacher; Mrs. Mary Hutter, second grade teacher at Maple School; Mrs. Edna McGarvey, Maple School teacher; and Mrs. Ruby Wilson, South School second grade teacher.

Mrs. Bowles began teaching at Central School 19½ years ago, when kindergarten classes were held in a little white school house at Thacker and Cora streets. A graduate of Pestalozzi Froebel, Chicago, she has done graduate work at National College in Evanston.

Mrs. Eckert, a 37-year veteran in education, has taught for 28 years in Des Plaines including third grade at West, Algonquin and Forest schools. She previously taught in Hot Springs, Ark. Her husband Ray was a member of the Dist. 62 maintenance department and retired last year.

MRS. HUTTER started her teaching career in Dist. 62 as a kindergarten teacher at Maple School. She later moved to second grade which she has taught for eight years. A graduate of Milwaukee Downer College, Milwaukee, Wis., Mrs. Hutter received a degree in chemistry and nutrition. She worked as a cafeteria manager in Chicago before attending North Park College for her teaching certificate.

Mrs. McGarvey, a teacher at Maple School since 1958, had a variety of teaching experiences before coming to Des Plaines. She began her career in a one room school house in Glenview at a salary of $100 a month. She later taught in Evanston, South Holland, the Riverview School and Lutheran School in Des Plaines. A native of Chicago, she received her degree from Chicago Teachers College.

Mrs. Wilson, a native of Tennessee, has taught for a total of 26 years in Tennessee, Maryland, Louisiana and Illinois. Her husband Clyde recently retired from the U.S. Dept. of Labor. The Wilsons will be moving to Clinton, Tenn., where they taught a Hereford farm.

Mrs. Phyllis Parks, secretary and switchboard operator at the Smaage Administration Center the past 12 years, will also be retiring this month.

North Maine Fire Protection District firefighters Lt. Howard Miller and Robert Elsner attended the 50th annual Illinois Fire College at the University of Illinois in Champaign, said Fire Chief Dale Moore.

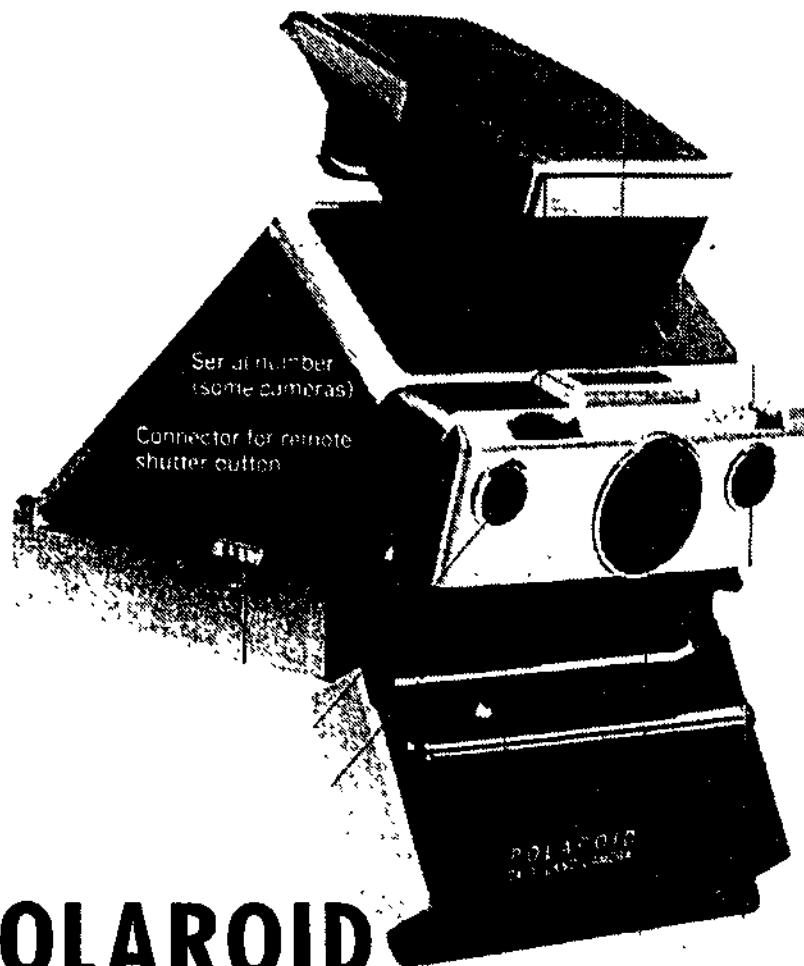

During the three-day session last week, Miller and Elsner received instruction and watched demonstrations in various facets of firefighting including evacuation of high-rise buildings, chemicals and explosives, tank truck fires, and use of hoses and ladders.

Nuclear power unit to resume

by LEA TONKIN

Operations at the Quad Cities nuclear power station should resume this weekend, following replacement of a feeder valve into one of the unit's boiling water reactors.

The valve broke early Monday, causing flood damage in the station, the escape of 350 gallons of slightly radioactive water into a nearby oil separator, and the plant shutdown.

The valve did not meet specifications, according to Clem Stava, a spokesman for Commonwealth Edison Co. in Chicago. Edison and the Iowa-Illinois Gas & Electric jointly operate Quad Cities station. "The valve should have been .56 inches thick, and in the part that broke, it was found to have been .315 to .447 inches," said Stava.

Steam released by the blowout led to the activation of fire prevention spray devices at the Quad Cities plant. Some 70,000 gallons of water inundated the station, and 350 gallons of water "got through a doorway to a nearby oil separator," Stava said. "That's the furthest it got. There was no chance for it to get into the river." The Quad Cities is located along the Mississippi River.

A new valve should be installed at the plant by today or Friday, and the plant will be "on line" again this weekend.

The Atomic Energy commission nuclear safeguards experts indicate that the incident caused no significant damage to the surrounding environment. Yet according to Philip Miller, Citizens for a Better Environment assistant director of research, the blowout is an indicator that additional study is needed of "hazardous technology."

Despite the Quad Cities shutdown and the repair project at Unit 11 of the Commonwealth Edison's nuclear plant near Zion, the utility reports an 10 per cent power reserve.

This week's incident follows Edison's June 5 acceptance of the Edison Award, the highest award of the electric utility industry, for its role in the development and application of nuclear technology to electric power supply. The award was presented by Edison Electric Institute.

Briefly on business

Cement drivers' strike continues

The strike by some 3,000 northern Illinois cement truck drivers continued Wednesday. No new negotiating sessions were planned, according to Teamster union representatives and a spokesman for the Northern Illinois Ready Mix and Materials Assn.

Talks between Local 786 of the Teamsters, Building, Material Lumber, Box Shaving, Roofing and Insulating, Chauffeurs, Teamsters Warehousemen and Helpers Union and the ready mix group broke off June 6. Thomas Connolly of the ready mix assn. said Wednesday no private meetings with teamsters were held this week.

A Wednesday night meeting between Associated General Contractors and 13 striking Teamster unions in downstate Illinois was preceded by a mutual agreement not to walk out of the session. Strikes by 4,000 teamsters idled some 25,000 workers in 80 of Illinois, 102 counties.

Industry fair

Preview of the Industrial Trade Fair sponsored by the Assn. of Industry and Commerce in Elk Grove Village will be held Friday for business representatives. The show begins at noon at the Elk Grove Field House, and will continue until 8 p.m. The fair will be open to the public June 15 and 16. Some 100 industrial exhibitors will be featured at the fair.

Insurance firm approval

Zurich American Insurance Co. of Illinois recently gained acceptance in the National Assn. of Independent Insurers. The Chicago-based firm is an affiliate of Zurich Insurance Co. Their plans to move its headquarters to Arlington Heights in 1974.

Gane open house

A display of bookbinding materials is among the features at the open house, at 1400 Greenleaf Ave., Elk Grove. For additional information call 593-3366.

Penny's sales gain

J. C. Penney Co. Inc.'s May sales, benefiting from two major selling events during the period, rose 14.2 per cent over the 1973 month.

Volume for the five weeks ended June 1 totaled a record $600.6 million compared with $525.8 million for the year-ago period, according to chairman William M. Batten and president Jack B. Jackson. The increase amounted to $74.8 million. May was Penny's 134th straight monthly reporting period of sales gains.

Volume for the first four months of the 1974 fiscal year, Jan. 27 through June 1, was up 12.5 per cent to a record $2,033.7 million from $1,825.4 million last year. Gain for the 18 weeks amounted to $228.3 million.

The company has facilities in Schaumburg, Elk Grove Village and Rolling Meadows.

NPC safety award

Certificate of commendation from the National Safety Council was recently awarded to Northern Petrochemical Co. in Des Plaines. The council presented Northern Petrochemical a plaque "for the operation of 1,591,309 man hours without a disabling injury." It represents a total of four injury-free years of operation, according to Braxton Routh, NPC safety director.

SUBURBAN GROWTH will fall short of previous expectations by about 1 million persons, according to the Northeastern Illinois Planning Commission. The drop is attributed to falling birth rates and less migration into the Chicago area. NIPC wants more realistic growth forecasts to aid planning.

Projection for year 2000 cut to 2 million

Suburban population growth slowing

Population growth in the Chicago suburbs has slowed significantly, according to recent figures collected by the Northeastern Illinois Planning Commission.

Preliminary population forecast figures for the year 2000 gathered by NIPC show a decrease of 1 million in the projections of five years ago. The six-county metropolitan area will still have to deal with 2 million additional residents, instead of 3 million.

The decrease is attributed to a decline in fertility and birth rates, and because migration to the Chicago area has not increased the population here as much as was expected. "Migration has not increased the region's population significantly since the 1950s," the NIPC report says.

NIPC is urging a cooperative effort to discover a realistic growth forecast to prevent mistakes in planning in the suburbs. "Developers' hopes for profit must not convince suburban leaders that the supply of white, middle-class people is unlimited," NIPC says.

THE COMMISSION is most concerned about the distribution of growth, with attention paid to flood plain land, noise from O'Hare Airport and the need for open space. One NIPC conclusion is that by the year 2000, park and forest preserve acreage must be more than doubled to serve existing and predicted needs. "The region has less public recreational land per person than any other of America's 10 largest metropolitan regions," the report contends.

NIPC officials are seeking organized distribution of population near existing services, because it maximizes access to jobs, shopping, schools and cultural events. "An unchecked trend toward more dispersion of residences, and more highways, would surely lead to population densities too low to support public transportation, however subsidized," the report says.

"Dispersed growth would also cost more tax dollars for sewers, schools and every kind of public service. The longer travel distances, and larger land areas used, would add to air and water pollution. The centers of cities and established suburbs would deteriorate as retail trade moves to new shopping centers," the report says.

LOCAL PREFERENCES for growth are being sought because some suburbs welcome growth, while others want to halt it. The size of population has a great influence on the community lifestyles. According to NIPC, there are 12 suburbs alone that are willing or planning to accept 2 million more residents — the entire total increase for the six-county area in the next 26 years.

The 1973 population of suburban Cook County was 2,256,541, according to census figures, and that is now expected to grow to 2,992,000 by the year 2000. The City of Chicago is expected to lose population.

Preliminary population forecasts for local townships include:

	1973	2000
Wheeling	133,310	160,000
Elk Grove	84,221	117,000
Palatine	67,028	105,000
Schaumburg	69,996	140,000
Maine	144,453	160,000

The report indicates the racial makeup of the entire region is changing. In 1970, the region was 81 per cent white and 19 per cent other races. In the year 2000, the distribution will be 72 per cent white and 28 per cent other races.

Unchecked trends in Chicago would reduce its white percentage from 66 per cent now to 30 per cent, although successful efforts for racial socio-economic equality could change that significantly, the report says. Other races would constitute no more than 18 per cent of any outlying county, the report says, with the suburban average around 13 per cent.

Wheeling High double victim of bomb?

When something happens like the Wheeling High School fire, it is upsetting, frightening and, yes, angering.

A high school lost 22,000 books because someone, for some twisted reason, thought it was a good idea to throw some Molotov cocktails through some windows.

The motives of the culprits are obscure. Maybe they had a grudge against the school. Maybe they thought a little fire would be a "fun" way to end a Saturday evening. Maybe they don't know themselves why they did it.

Two youths have been arrested by Wheeling police and charged with the crime and even if they are guilty (something we don't know right now) we may never get an explanation of their motive.

BUT RIGHT NOW there is one thing I can say for sure. Whatever the motives of the Wheeling arsonists, the event should not reflect on the student body of Wheeling High School.

It should be unnecessary to say that, because it should be self-evident. But ever since the fire, I have had people coming up to me and saying things like Kim Tuttle, Maine West High School senior, was announced as Girl Athlete of the Year at an awards program recently.

She won the tennis singles in the interscholastic High School Assn. district meet and was voted most valuable player on the basketball team after averaging 27 points a game.

Four other senior girls also were honored as outstanding athletes. They are Karen Neetz, Monica Polacek, Kim Thompson and Maureen Brock. Awards were presented by Karen Kenyon, chairman of the girls' physical education department.

Education today

by Wandalyn Rice

"Well, you know how Wheeling is." And the assumption those people have made has been that Wheeling High School is, somehow, the only place in the Northwest suburbs where something like that can happen.

That assumption isn't fair, but I think it should be examined closely, because it isn't a new assumption.

More than a year ago, a group of Mount Prospect residents were protesting a proposed boundary change which would have shifted their children from Hersey to Wheeling high schools. In an appearance before the High School Dist. 214 board, Patrick Link, who was then a Mount Prospect Village Trustee, said people in his area opposed the move because "Wheeling has a bad reputation."

PEOPLE associated with Wheeling High School were rightfully incensed by that remark. And they appeared at another board meeting to defend their school. The board also defended the school.

But judging from the reaction I heard this week from some people following the fire, the attitude Link expressed wasn't killed during the boundary discussions. People said things this week like, "Well, you know they have a lot of tough kids up there," or "Well, what can you expect from Wheeling. It's disgraceful."

I told those people they were wrong, individually, but perhaps it's time to face the issue in public. Too often statements like those go unanswered for fear that repeating the accusations will give them credence. But, now, for the record, let's say it: Wheeling High School students are not any different (or any worse) than high school students in any other school in the Northwest suburbs (or the whole country for that matter.)

True, Wheeling has tough kids. So does Arlington, and so does Elk Grove and so does Palatine or Conant. I defy anyone to find a school with 2,500 students that doesn't have some kids who qualify as "tough."

THERE ARE probably a lot of things that contributed to the Wheeling High School reputation. Some of the people I've talked to have said it is because, several years ago, the school had modular scheduling and that resulted in discipline problems. (Modular scheduling has also resulted in those problems at other high schools where it has been tried. Evanston High School, as an example, was criticized for the same reason.)

Some people have said the reputation of Wheeling High School is connected with snobbery. Wheeling residents are middle-class, but they aren't as middle-class as residents of some surrounding suburbs. That is an easy objection to meet — "class" stereotypes are always false.

Some of the reputation may result from the fact that the village of Wheeling itself has had some rough times lately, what with present and former village officials pleading guilty to federal crimes. But it hardly seems fair to blame high school students for that. Not all of them even live in the village of Wheeling, and those who do generally can't vote, so they have little say in village government.

WHATEVER THE origin of the prejudice against Wheeling High School, I suspect it is perpetuated just because it is there. People repeat statements about Wheeling not because they are true, but because they have been said before.

That isn't fair. And it particularly isn't fair to use this tragic (and criminal) fire to further the stereotype.

I doubt there is a high school principal in this country who, if he was being honest, wouldn't admit that the same thing could happen at his school.

Wheeling High School was unlucky. But don't find the victim of something like this guilty.

Meet today on second campus

Harper officials expected to decide on site purchase

The Harper College Board of Trustees is scheduled to make a decision today on whether to go ahead with plans to buy a second site for the college.

The board will meet at 8 p.m. today at the college, Algonquin and Roselle roads, Palatine. Last week, board members agreed to decide today whether to proceed with the second site.

College officials are scheduled to appear before the Arlington Heights village board of trustees Monday in connection with their request that the village board set aside land for the college in its zoning plan.

THE LAND, AT Palatine and Schoenbeck roads in Arlington Heights, is owned by the Mayo Foundation. About a year ago, the college first approached the village about the zoning designation, but the case has been delayed while the school sought approval from the Illinois Community College board to plan for a second campus.

The Harper board last week agreed that they could not delay further in deciding whether to buy the land. Several board members advocated telling the village board to set aside the land only until the college can have a referendum to raise money for the purchase.

Representatives of the Mayo Foundation have said they do not want the land tied up by the village board if the college is not going to be able to purchase it immediately.

LAST WEEK, A DEVELOPER, Raymond and Raymond of Evanston, approached the village, saying it was interested in buying the land from Mayo and building a 1,074-unit development on it. Representatives of the developer have said they would be willing to wait until Harper determines whether it can buy the site.

The Harper board held a closed session Tuesday night to discuss the situation with Mayo and possible action on the site. Also Tuesday, the Arlington Heights Park District board voted to support Harper if it seeks the site.

Preliminary plans by Harper architects indicate the park district could use part of the land not needed by the college.

District 214 wrapup

Drug-use policy may be revised

The High School Dist. 214 board will act on a revision in the district's policy on drug use at its next meeting June 24.

The board discussed a proposed policy Monday which, if approved, will establish a drug review council to handle drug abuse cases in the district and adds "alcohol" to the list of drugs covered by the district policy.

The drug review council, according to Supt. Edward Gilbert, will provide an interim stop between disciplinary action taken at an individual school in a drug case and full review by the board to consider expelling a student.

According to the proposal, a student in possession, selling or under the influence of a drug at school would be suspended and his parents would meet with the school principal. The case could then be referred by the principal and superintendent to the drug review council for further action. The council would be made up of a board member and district administrators.

THE COUNCIL COULD develop a plan for helping the student, according to Gilbert, or it could refer the case to the school board for possible expulsion. Hearings on expelling a student must be conducted by the board by law.

The board's present policy is that a student caught in possession of drugs in school is suspended and his parents called in for a conference. If a student is found selling or distributing drugs, he is automatically referred to the board for expulsion.

BOARD MEMBERS HAVE expressed concern that the present policy, by drawing a rigid distinction between use and distribution of drugs, does not provide the district with enough flexibility in discipline actions. Gilbert said that under the new policy some cases, such as "the sale of drugs for profit," probably still would be referred straight to the board for action.

The board has expelled 13 students for distribution or sale of drugs this school year.

Administrators' pay hiked

The board voted Monday to approve raises for the 111 administrators in High School District 214. Two board members voted against the raise to protest the fact that the board had limited raises to an average of 8 per cent.

Board members Gene Artemenko and Warren Schabinger voted against the raises proposed for individual administrators by Supt. Edward Gilbert because, according to Artemenko, "I feel we're taking advantage of administrators as a group."

At a meeting last month, the board set aside a fund of $106,070 for administrative raises, enough for an average eight per cent increase. In addition, the board told Gilbert that no individual administrator could receive more than a 15 per cent raise.

ARTEMENKO AND SCHABINGER voted against the action last month also, arguing that teachers returning to the district receive a 10.6 per cent raise under the second year of a three-year salary contract.

Raises for the 111 administrators are determined by merit evaluations by Gilbert. Raises adopted by a Monday's 4-2 vote included an increase from $29,800 to $32,100 for Roderick McLennan, assistant superintendent for instruction, and Robert Weber, assistant superintendent for business services.

Principal's raises are: from $29,200 to $31,400 for Roland Gols, principal at Hersey High School; $29,500 to $30,600 for Robert Haskell, principal of Elk Grove High School; $28,300 to $30,500 for Robert Hoese, principal of Rolling Meadows High School; $28,500 to $29,000 for Jack Martin, principal of Forest View High School; $27,300 to $29,500 for Clarence Miller, principal of Buffalo Grove High School; $29,500 to $31,600 for Thomas Shirley, principal of Wheeling High School; $27,300 to $29,500 for Edward Spacapan, principal of Prospect High School and $29,600 to $31,600 for Bruno Waara, principal of Arlington High School.

New state aid formula

The High School Dist. 214 board has decided to use a new state school aid formula which will result in an increase in state money and a drop in the district's tax rate during the next five years.

The board approved filing its state aid claim for the 1974-75 school year under the new resource equalizer formula. The formula means the state's contribution to Dist. 214 operating funds will increase from $6,040,223 during the past year to $13,477,874 by 1977-78, according to Asst. Supt. Robert Weber.

At the same time, beginning with this year's tax levy the district will lower its operating tax rate to the level required under the resource equalizer.

The district will have the choice of how low to set its tax rate before it approves its 1974 tax levy later this year, according to Weber. However low the district agrees to make its tax rate, the roll-back will be phased in as state aid payments increase.

Gas station robber escapes with $200

A Des Plaines service station was robbed by a masked man who, saying he had a gun, ordered an attendant to hand over cash register money. The robber escaped with between $200 and $250 in cash.

According to Des Plaines police reports, the robbery occurred at the C and D Texaco station, 710 Wolf Rd., Tuesday at about 5 p.m.

Police gave this account of the holdup: a man walked in wearing a nylon stocking over his face and head and told the clerk, Mark Swanson, "I got a gun and I want the money."

No pistol was seen during the robbery, however, according to reports.

Swanson began to clean out the register when a customer pulled in and the robber told him to wait on the motorist and "stay cool."

WHEN SWANSON came back to the office, he gave the holdup man the rest of the money who stuffed it in his pants pocket.

The man then fled on foot in a northwesterly direction from the station, according to reports.

The bandit was described as about 18-20 years old, 6 feet tall, medium build, wearing a green T-shirt a blue windbreaker and blue jeans.

TUESDAY'S INCIDENT follows two other robberies that occurred over Friday night when a Jewel Food store, 819 S. Elmhurst Rd., was held up for $350 in cash by a pair of youthful gunmen who fled in a maroon auto.

A Muncie, Ind., man was also robbed while he was entering his room at the Holiday Inn, Mannheim Road and Touhy Avenue. James Neal, 52, surrendered a billfold containing more than $200 in cash and checks.

The holdup may have been a case of mistaken identity, however, according to police reports, because Neal heard the gunman say, possibly during a phone conversation, he had the wrong man.

Oakton summer class signup set today

Registration for summer school classes at Oakton Community College will be held today and Friday on the college's temporary campus, 7900 N. Nagle Ave., Morton Grove.

Antiques stolen

Some antiques will add to his collection at the expense of a Tucson, Ariz., woman whose car was burglarized in Des Plaines, said police.

The owner, Evelyn Wiegler, told police she discovered Wednesday morning her car had been burglarized outside the Holiday Inn, Mannheim Road and Touhy Avenue.

Taken were an antique picture frame, an oldtime suitcase and a needlepoint pattern, all valued at $165, said police.

of Des Plaines residents known as the Citizens for the Common Good.

A number of aldermen have been told that a "well-known local engineer" who prepared a financial report on the proposed Superblock project would be present at the meeting. The group has refused to identify the engineer during earlier questions.

While the state open meeting law does not deal with gatherings at private homes, Illinois Attorney General William Scott issued an opinion in April which states that if the city officials meet to discuss city business, then the session can be considered a "meeting" by the provisions of the law.

THE CONTROVERSIAL financial report, which was revealed by The Herald Monday, charges that the Superblock project will cost the city more money than real estate sales tax and other revenue would provide. City officials have taken issue with the details of the report, which were described in general terms at a public rally on Sunday.

Members of the group have repeatedly refused to publicly release the report to either the press or aldermen. Several aldermen had requested copies of the report prior to tonight's meetings, but members of the committee did not comply.

The citizen's group has voiced a number of concerns regarding the possible traffic congestion and lack of adequate parking which could be created by the development of the $12 million Superblock project.

Backup problem solution?

Baptist church to reroute sewer to Love Street line

by JERRY THOMAS

Plagued for several years with sewage backup problems, the First Baptist Church, on Tonne Road and Laurel Street in Elk Grove Village, has official approval to reroute its sewer line from the Tonne Road line and tie into another nearby sewer line.

The village Tuesday authorized spending up to $2,731.25 half the cost of the sewer line rerouting project, while agreeing to share the total $5,462.50, cost with the church.

At present the church sewer lines run to a 24-inch forced line on Tonne that backs up during heavy rains. A forced line, in contrast to lines that move sewage along by gravity, uses lift stations and power pumping.

TRUSTEE RONALD Chernick said church officials tried several methods of preventing sewage backup by using stop valves and other solutions.

"We believe rerouting the line to tie into another smaller but less burdened line on Love Street (one block west of Tonne Road), will solve the problem," said Chernick.

Managing agents for the Eagles on Tonne Apartments, just north of the Church on Tonne Road and Eagles Drive, said they too have sewage backup problems with two of their five buildings.

TRACY HILL of Kimball Hill Inc., agents for the complex, said two of the buildings are connected to the same 24-inch line the church is on, while three other buildings with no backup problems are on the Love Street line.

"We suffered sewage backup last year in the two buildings and are working out a solution with the village," Hill said.

"The village has traced the problem to a break in a village line on Eagle Drive and has assured us it will repair it as soon as possible," said Hill. "The cement drivers strike has delayed the repair work," said Hill.

"We've been told delays in construction of the O'Hare treatment plant proposed for Des Plaines are in a way also responsible for our problem in Elk Grove Village," Hill said.

"THE 24-INCH line on Tonne runs from south to north edging the residential area at the Northeast side of Elk Grove Village. The line accepts all the sewage from that area and since we are on the bottom end of the line, when it overloads, we suffer the consequences of the backup," said Hill.

"I believe stormwater infiltration adds to the burden, and eventual construction of the plant and another interceptor line's taking sewage from the area to the plant, will solve the problem," he added.

Hill said the apartment complex has not flooded this year. "We are hoping the line break will be repaired before another problem occurs," he added.

Park programs registration still open

Registration still is open for summer Elk Grove Park District programs, which begin next week. More than 2,250 have signed up for more than 100 programs and activities offered this summer by the park district, up 200 over last year.

Although there are many classes that are closed, virtually every activity has some openings, according to Rich Ludovissy, superintendent for recreation. Ludovissy urged those interested to check with the park district office to find out what specific classes are closed.

Plenty of openings are still available in the boys softball program, 5-year-old mini-gym, youth belly dancing, gardener's clinic, drama workshops, home-makers' workshop, dog obedience class, organ lessons, dance classes and in arts and crafts classes.

LUDOVISSY SAID there are also plenty of openings left in the park district sponsored by Camp Wapiti, which is held in the Ned Brown Forest Preserve five days per week.

Children who will be in second through fifth grade this fall are eligible to take part in the camp and can sign up for as many as three sessions of the camp.

Each session is two weeks long.

Cost for the day camp is $20 per session, which includes bus transportation to the camp from nine school sites in Elk Grove Village. The camp will run daily from 9 a.m. until 2 p.m.

The three camp sessions will be June 24 to July 5, July 8 to 19 and July 22 to Aug. 2.

Ludovissy said camp members will receive instruction in compass reading, cooking and plant and animal identification, along with other craft skills.

CAMPERS WILL BE grouped according to age, sex and skill level, said Ludovissy. An "overnight" camp session will be offered for fourth- and fifth-graders who have completed at least one camp session, he added.

Openings are also available in most of the swimming courses offered this year at the park district's Disney Swimming Complex, located adjacent to Lively Junior High School, 999 Leicester Rd., said Bill Havin, director of aquatic.

Swimming and diving instruction along with lifesaving courses are available, according to Havin.

Pool passes also are on sale at the park district office, 489 Bleisfield Rd. between 9 a.m. and 5 p.m. daily. Cost is $20 for a family season pass, $45 for a yearly family pass. Individual passes are sold for $15 for a season and $23 for a yearly pass.

Further information about park district programs can be obtained by calling 437-8780 or stopping by the park district office.

Industry trade fair opens this weekend

Some 95 Elk Grove Village businesses and industries will put their goods and services on display this weekend as the Elk Grove Village Association of Industry and Commerce Trade Fair opens at Elk Grove High School, Arlington Heights Road and Elk Grove Boulevard.

The fair will be open free to the public Saturday from 10 a.m. to 5 p.m. and Sunday from 1 p.m. to 5 p.m. A special session for business representatives only will open the fair Friday.

Many of the businesses at the fair will be interviewing Elk Grove High School graduates and other prospective employees throughout the weekend.

Visitors to the fair will get a first-hand look at the industry located in the village through booths set up by the companies. Special exhibits, slide shows and movies also will be available for viewing.

An Hawaiian trip and a Caribbean cruise will be given away during the fair and drawings for the two free prizes are scheduled for late Sunday afternoon. Winners need not be present for the drawing.

'New downtown' facing obstacles in many suburbs

by STEVE FORSYTH

The Northwest suburbs have blossomed, sprawled and grown rich in recent decades while their downtown areas did little but deteriorate.

Communities of 50,000 and more now radiate around centers that are less vigorous commercially and socially than would be expected in towns half their size.

But turning rows of crumbling shops into modern stores and offices has proved a frustrating dream for the relatively few business and community leaders who are committed to it.

The base of opposition to downtown renewal in towns like Des Plaines, Mount Prospect, Arlington Heights and Palatine — all in some stage of redevelopment planning — is simply resistance to change.

IF LIFE IS good enough as it is, many residents ask, why tamper with the unknown? Why attract more people and more cars to the downtown areas?

James Paroubek, the father of the downtown redevelopment plan for Des Plaines, has many answers, at least for his community. They all hinge on two stories of new shops and 10 floors of office buildings in the project known as Superblock.

In the first place, Paroubek says, redevelopment is inevitable in many parts of the nation. Professional planners agree with him as they predict a return to more active centers of business and population, primarily because of land costs and energy shortages.

Through eight years of planning and land purchasing, Paroubek and a group of local businessmen have hung onto their idea of halting downtown deterioration.

THEY POINT OUT advantages to property owners, businessmen and potential workers and shoppers in the new area. Another promised advantage is tax relief for homeowners as the business community assumes a greater share of the tax load. Increased business also means increased sales tax revenue.

Des Plaines is only one Northwest suburb wrestling with downtown redevelopment. Palatine has a disputed plan for a new downtown that will have a rural characteristic. Arlington Heights has had several plans. And Mount Prospect, a late bloomer, is seeking planners to draw up redevelopment proposals.

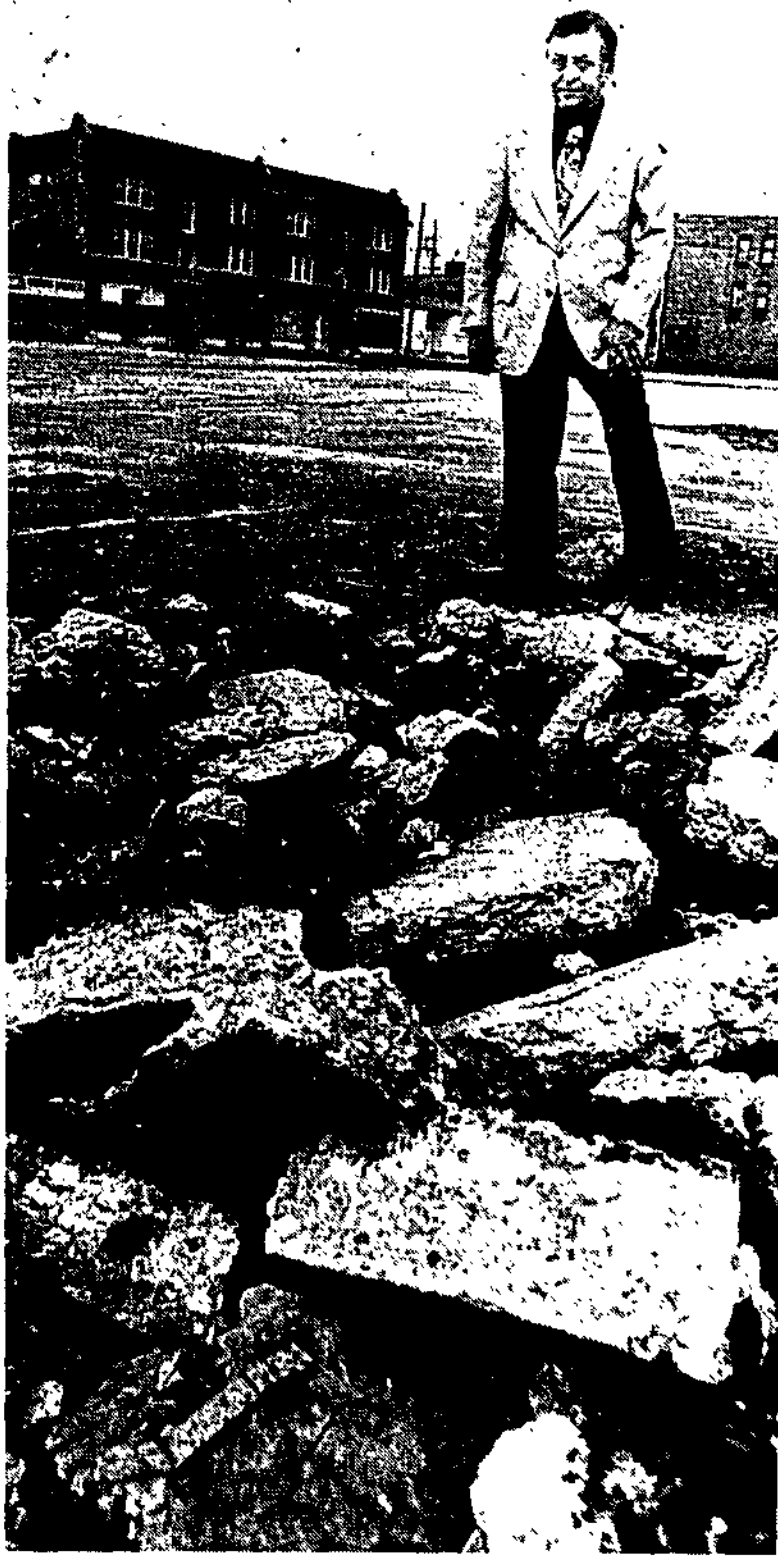

Money is not the only goal of redevelopment in suburban communities. Lost for years in the category of "Chicago suburbs," many community leaders would like to see each town develop a character and identity of its own. There is no written value for "identity," but local officials and professional planners alike agree it is a desirable goal for a community.

But the benefits of redevelopment are off in the future. The costs are now and the return is only a projection. Government actions needed to spur renewal projects make them politically vulnerable. The problems become a mound of barriers that is difficult for the redevelopment bulldozer to move.

DES PLAINE'S could serve as a model of the problems and successes in rebuilding a suburban downtown.

The Des Plaines project started in 1966 with a businessmen's group known as the Des Plaines Redevelopment Assn. In 1968, the Des Plaines Tomorrow Corp., a nonprofit organization, was formed with Paroubek as president. The Tomorrow group of 40 to 50 businessmen pledged $5,000 or more to the corporation, to give it power to borrow money.

THE DES PLAINE'S Superblock plan is rolling to a conclusion after eight years of planning and land purchasing. James Paroubek, president of the Des

Plaines Tomorrow Corp., looks over the rubble that marks the only visible progress so far. New objections now confront the redevelopment plans.

Recycling on Wednesdays, too

The Elk Grove Village glass and recycling center will be open for deposits from 5 until 8 p.m. Wednesdays beginning next week, in addition to operating Saturdays from 9 a.m. to 3 p.m.

Village board members Tuesday authorized extending the open hours, based on requests from residents and the Elk Grove Village Junior Women's Club.

The center faced being closed last month when glass collections were refused by recycling firms and had to be dumped because of metal contamination.

The juniors conducted an effective publicity campaign, telling the public how to sort glass before deposit and the problem was resolved.

Residents who bring glass to the center are asked to separate it by color and remove all metal or foil labels, neck rings or caps before deposit.

The Elk Grove Village Jaycees will pay for additional supervision of the center during the evening hours. Residents are reminded not to bring or leave papers or glass any other times.

Paper should not be left outside the bin. It must be bundled and dropped into the bin. Glass should be reasonably clean and free of contaminants before deposit.

The recycling center is in the parking lot of the municipal complex at 801 Wellington St.

'Cirrusly' speaking, solar halo visible here

by JOE SWICKARD

The Chicago area was treated to an "astronomical phenomenon" Wednesday when the sun, clouds and ice crystals combined to form a tri-color solar halo.

The red, yellow and blue bands entirely encircling the sun appeared about noon, prompting people to call the U.S. Weather Service, Chicago's Adler Planetarium, newspapers and radio stations.

A weather service spokesman said the halo was caused by sun rays being refracted through ice crystals suspended in cirrus clouds at an altitude of 20,000 to 25,000 feet.

One-color halos, with a reddish hue,

are more common, the spokesman said. "I don't remember one having as many colors."

According to the service's glossary, the halos are termed "astronomical phenomena." They can vary in brightness and coloration, from white to red to prismatic spectrums (as in Wednesday's display) depending on the relation of the crystal-bearing clouds to the sun.

THE WHITE halos are caused when the sun light is reflected off the ice crystals, rather than the light being refracted through them, the spokesman said.

Jim Seevers, assistant astronomer at the Adler Planetarium, said the best halos are formed when the clouds are angled 22 degrees from the sun.

The six-sided ice crystals break down the rays of the sun into the primary colors, resulting in the "rainbow" halo, Seevers said.

The halo was the third one experienced this spring in the Chicago area, he said. Wednesday's was the most noticeable because of the bright sun and clear air.

It all depends on, Seevers said, "just how nicely the crystals arrange themselves."

When the phenomenon does not encircle the sun, but appears on either side, they are called "sun dogs," said Seevers. The "dogs" are more common than halos, he said.

The term is "a very old one," Seevers said. The ancients probably called the arcs "dogs" because they appear to be led by the sun, he speculated.

LUNAR HALOS and dogs are also relatively common sights, he said. They are caused by the same elements (the light of the moon being reflected sunlight), but are more likely to be seen because of their contrast to the dark night sky, he said.

Seevers claimed it was pure coincidence that solar halos and dogs will be discussed during the planetarium's summer show, "The U.F.O. Experience," that begins tomorrow.

"We didn't plan it, but it certainly did work out nicely, didn't it," he said.

Paul Paprocki— youthful problems are his specialty

by FRAN SLIMMER

Everybody has problems and may at times need someone to talk to.

Elk Grove Township young people can talk with someone whose job it is to listen.

Paul Paprocki, 26, township youth services director since January 1972, spends at least 40 hours a week listening to problems at the Elk Grove Mental Health Center and The Bridge referral and counseling center in Palatine Township.

The problems he handles are as different as the people he talks with, and he said there is no "most common" problem.

However, he said youths have frequently consulted him about problems stemming from legal drug use and alcoholism in the family.

Family situations influence teens, sometimes unconsciously, Paprocki said. But, "an adolescent reacts to whatever stimulant is given in his family," he said. A youth's problems may not be just problems in themselves, but rather symptoms of something deeper troubling him.

"If he's doing something to draw attention to himself, it's a dead giveaway that he wants someone to talk to," Paprocki said.

Paprocki primarily conducts individual therapy sessions with youths who come to him for counseling, but sometimes he will talk to family members when a family problem is involved.

Occasionally, parents balk at coming in for therapy, making it tough for a counselor to work with the youth, Paprocki said.

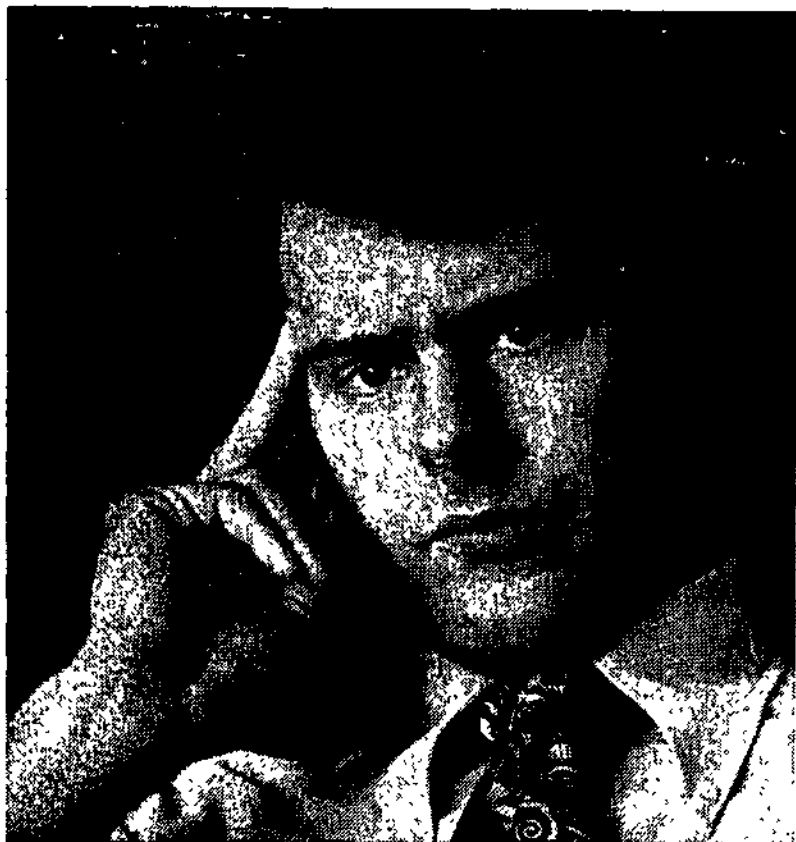

THE IDEAL PERSON to counsel is one who simply admits "I'm unhappy and don't know what to do about it," he said.

Paprocki spends most of his time in individual counseling at the mental health center. "That's what I do best," he said. "I get the most satisfaction and enjoyment out of this type of social work."

Paprocki's interest in social work and counseling started in college, when he spent time as a floor adviser in a dormitory. "I really enjoyed it," he said, and he was looking for a job in social work when he found the township position.

He majored in sociology at Marquette University and went to Loyola law school for a year.

BESIDES HIS counseling sessions at the township mental health center, Paprocki also handles, under supervision, problems called in over a hotline at The Bridge in Palatine, Palatine, Elk Grove and Schaumburg townships recently became partners in the free regional youth services center based at The Bridge. The three townships share the costs equally and limit the services to those living in the townships.

The target population for the Bridge services is high school age, because funds are limited, Paprocki said.

Persons from outside the region who call in for help are referred to other services.

The Bridge offers legal advice, health service, counseling, confidential pregnancy and venereal disease testing and birth control referral, Paprocki said.

Paprocki works a shift at The Bridge and then is "on call" for emergencies. However, he said police and fire departments can often do better jobs in immediately handling emergencies than counselors can.

"I don't have any magical powers," he said.

Community Services official:

Lack of rental rooms a 'problem'

by BOB GALLAS

The lack of rooms to rent in Elk Grove Village appears to be a rapidly-growing problem, according to Jane Broten, director of Elk Grove Village Community Services.

Mrs. Broten said that Community Services has had a rash of calls during the past few weeks, primarily from young people who cannot find living quarters in the village.

Mrs. Broten cited the case of a boy from Rock Island who will be a high school senior next year and wanted to find a summer job working with computers. He finally got one with a firm in the village industrial park and now needs a place to stay.

Another student from India has lost his roommate and needs a new place.

ANOTHER BOY'S parents have moved East and he wishes to remain in the village this summer, working at his regular job before joining his parents in the fall, said Mrs. Broten.

"Real estate agents get the calls for apartments and condominiums, but they really don't handle rooms," said Mrs. Broten.

Mrs. Broten asked that anyone having a room available to rent may contact her office daily, between 9 a.m. and 4 p.m. The Community Service office is now located in the Village Hall, 901 Willington Ave., 439-3900.

Community Service soon will be receiving a new worker, sponsored by the Neighborhood Youth Corps, an agency that provides summer jobs for children from low-income families, according to Mrs. Broten.

THE WORKER WILL serve as a clerk and primarily will be responsible for moving files from the old office of Community Service at 700 Blesterfield Rd. to the service's new headquarters, and then reorganizing the files. The workers also will be on hand to answer the telephone and other office duties.

Community Service, which now is funded entirely by Elk Grove Village, recently hired Mrs. Broten as a full-time director.

Mrs. Broten said one of her primary aims will be to turn back as many of the problems that are referred to her "to the community," relying on volunteer service groups and neighborhood volunteers for help, when possible, along with other professional agencies

WHAT'S MORE AMERICAN than a little kid and a hot dog. Regardless of the trimmings, Melinda Finnberg, 5, finds the eating delightful — but sometimes those last few bites are a little hard to get down.

A bike rodeo was the main event at Cub Scout Pack 485's last meeting of the school year, held at Link School. Sgt. Springate and Det. Ulke of the Elk Grove Police Department youth section were present at the meeting to talk to the boys about bike safety and registration.

Summer events scheduled for the pack include a trip to Cantigny War Memorial Museum on June 19; participation in the Peony parade on June 23 and a family picnic planned for July 28.

Award presentations were made to the following boys: Tony Vanacora, Paul Kuhnke, Jim Havranek, Ricky Scimeca and Robert Wiczorek the Bobcat badge; and Joey D'Ecclis the Wolf badge.

Gold arrow points went to Jim Ford, Frank Amodeo and Michael Barlow. Two silver arrow points each to Jim Ford, Steve Hilliard and Bret Staslak.

Scout-O-Rama patches went to Craig Meikel and Randy Olson; and tree planting segments went to Craig Mikael, Michael Barlow, Kishan Khemani, John Wrubaner, Randy Olson, Kent Smith and Joey D'Ecclis.

'Great Kiss Off' soon to reach its climax...

by STEVE NOVICK

Two couples remained in the Great Kiss Off as the contest's 100th hour passed Wednesday at 4 p.m. and a new record was set.

Those remaining in the competition are Duane and Doris Boudreaux of Houston, Tex., and Winnie Toro and Louise Heath of Fort Lauderdale, Fla.

A third couple, who kissed from noon Saturday until 5 a.m. Wednesday dropped out with their spirit for the sport still intact. They are Cheryl Stibi and Donald Mokris of Cleveland, Ohio.

They fell apart while sleeping, a Kiss Off judge said.

When Mokris was told they were not kissing any longer, he just rolled over, kissed Cheryl and went back to sleep, the judge added.

At the Grand Mall of Woodfield Shopping Center, where the event is being held, Cheryl cheered on the remaining couples. "I just stretched while we were sleeping and that was it. Our lips parted," she said.

But she was glad to have been part of the event which has raised an estimated $5,000 for St. Jude's Children's Research Hospital, Memphis, Tenn.

HOSTILITY BREWED between the remaining couples late in the afternoon Wednesday. Each claim they'll outlast the other despite a rule change which now allows a five minute break after three hours instead of five minutes permitted each hour up to the 98-hour mark.

Toro challenged Boudreaux to continue the competition sitting up without any breaks, but Boudreaux declined.

"That (expletive deleted). How can we make it that way?" Boudreaux said, in reference to Toro and his partner knowing yoga. Taking advantage of the breaks still allowed, Boudreaux feels he and his wife will win.

"I didn't quit my job and come down here for nothing. We ain't leaving 'til I'm a winner," he said. Boudreaux's mother has been at the couple's side since Monday... offering encouragement. "She helps us with our faith," said Doris about her mother-in-law, talking with her lips kept carefully close to her husband's.

The competitors say they'll go another 100 hours, or for eternity, if they have to win.

Nuclear power unit to resume

by LEA TONKIN

Operations at the Quad Cities nuclear power station should resume this weekend, following replacement of a feeder valve into one of the unit's boiling water reactors.

The valve broke early Monday, causing flood damage in the station, the escape of 350 gallons of slightly radioactive water into a nearby oil separator, and the plant shutdown.

The valve did not meet specifications, according to Clem Stava, a spokesman for Commonwealth Edison Co. in Chicago. Edison and the Iowa-Illinois Gas & Electric jointly operate Quad Cities station. "The valve should have been .58 inches thick, and in the part that broke, it was found to have been .315 to .447 inches," said Stava.

Steam released by the blowout led to the activation of fire prevention spray devices at the Quad Cities plant. Some 70,000 gallons of water inundated the station, and 350 gallons of water "got through a doorway to a nearby oil separator," Stava said. "That's the furthest it got. There was no chance for it to get into the river." The Quad Cities is located along the Mississippi River.

A new valve should be installed at the plant by today or Friday, and the plant will be "on line" again this weekend.

The Atomic Energy commission nuclear safeguards experts indicate that the incident caused no significant damage to the surrounding environment. Yet according to Philip Miller, Citizens for a Better Environment assistant director of research, the blowout is an indicator that additional study is needed of "hazardous technology."

Despite the Quad Cities shutdown and the repair project at Unit II of the Commonwealth Edison's nuclear plant near Zion, the utility reports an 18 per cent power reserve.

This week's incident follows Edison's June 5 acceptance of the Edison Award, the highest award of the electric utility industry, for its role in the development and application of nuclear technology to electric power supply. The award was presented by Edison Electric Institute.

Briefly on business

Cement drivers' strike continues

The strike by some 3,000 northern Illinois cement truck drivers continued Wednesday. No new negotiating sessions were planned, according to Teamster union representatives and a spokesman for the Northern Illinois Ready Mix and Materials Assn.

Talks between Local 786 of the Teamsters, Building, Material Lumber, Box Shaving, Roofing and Insulating, Chauffeurs, Teamsters Warehousemen and Helpers Union and the ready mix group broke off June 6. Thomas Connolly of the ready mix assn. said Wednesday no private meetings with teamsters were held this week.

A Wednesday night meeting between Associated General Contractors and 13 striking Teamster unions in downstate Illinois was preceded by a mutual agreement not to walk out of the session. Strikes by 4,000 teamsters idled some 25,000 workers in 80 of Illinois, 102 counties.

Penny's sales gain

J. C. Penney Co. Inc.'s May sales, benefiting from two major selling events during the period, rose 14.2 per cent over the 1973 month.

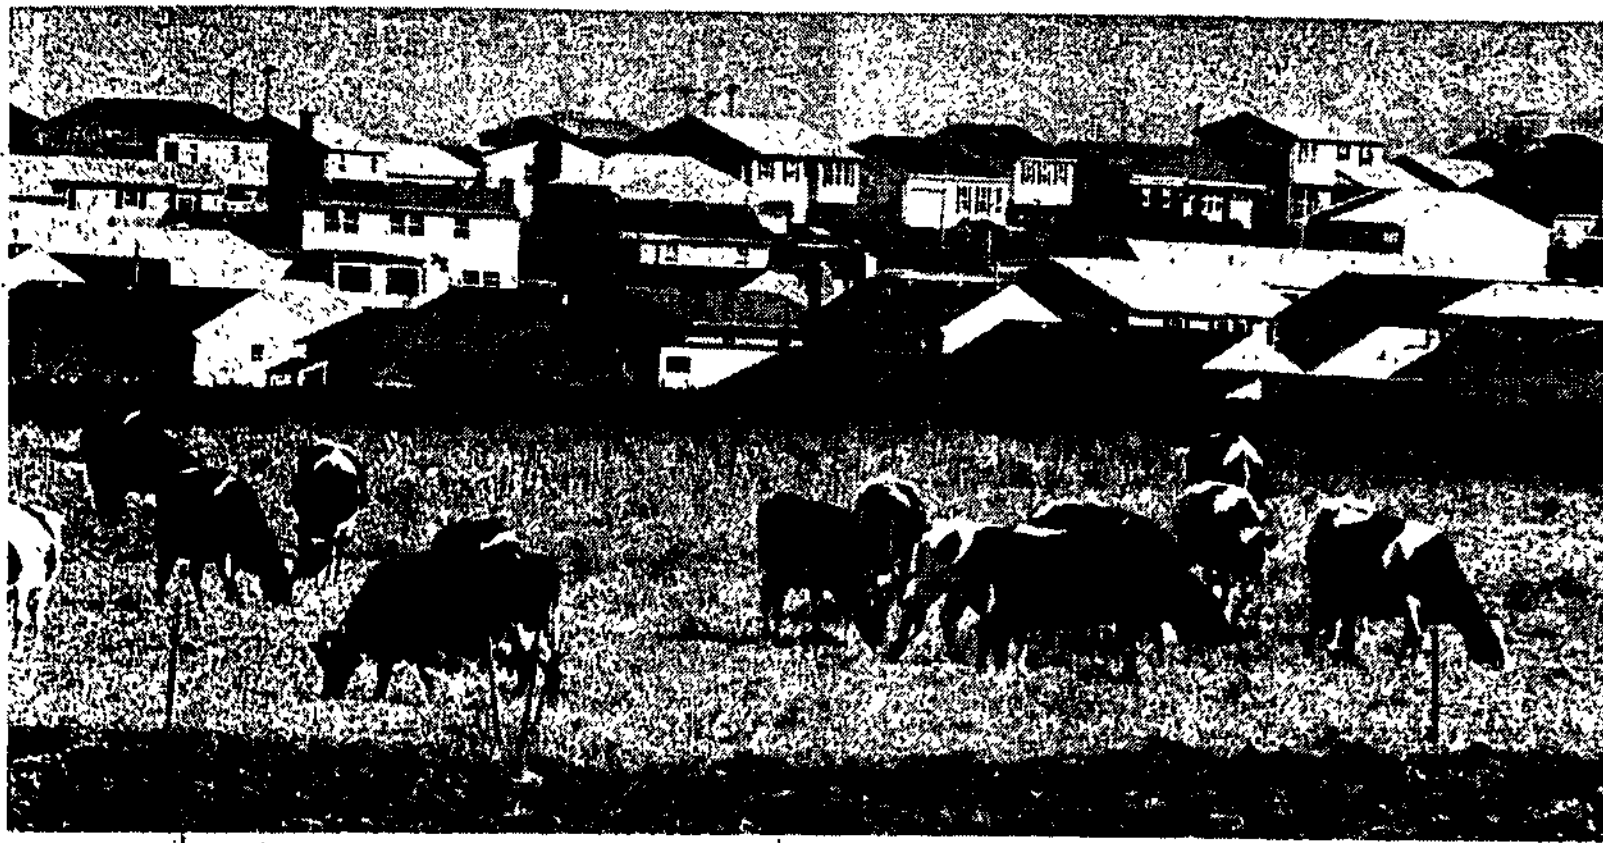

Volume for the five weeks ended June 1 totaled a record $600.8 million compared with $525.8 million for the year-ago period, according to chairman William M. Batten and president Jack B. Jackson. The increase amounted to $74.8 million. May was Penny's 134th straight monthly reporting period of sales gains.

Volume for the first four months of the 1974 fiscal year, Jan. 27 through June 1, was up 12.5 per cent to a record $2,053.7 million from $1,825.4 million last year. Gain for the 18 weeks amounted to $228.3 million.

The company has facilities in Schaumburg, Elk Grove Village and Rolling Meadows.

NPC safety award

Certificate of commendation from the National Safety Council was recently awarded to Northern Petrochemical Co. in Des Plaines. The council presented Northern Petrochemical a plaque "for the operation of 1,591,309 man hours without a disabling injury." It represents a total of four injury-free years of operation, according to Braxton Routh, NPC safety director.

SUBURBAN GROWTH will fall short of previous expectations by about 1 million persons, according to the Northeastern Illinois Planning Commission. The drop is attributed to falling birth rates and less migration into the Chicago area. NIPC wants more realistic growth forecasts to aid planning.

Projection for year 2000 cut to 2 million

Suburban population growth slowing

Population growth in the Chicago suburbs has slowed significantly, according to recent figures collected by the Northeastern Illinois Planning Commission.

Preliminary population forecast figures for the year 2000 gathered by NIPC show a decrease of 1 million in the projections of five years ago. The six-county metropolitan area will still have to deal with 2 million additional residents, instead of 3 million.

The decrease is attributed to a decline in fertility and birth rates, and because migration to the Chicago area has not increased the population here as much as was expected. "Migration has not increased the region's population significantly since the 1950s," the NIPC report says.

NIPC is urging a cooperative effort to discover a realistic growth forecast to prevent mistakes in planning in the suburbs. "Developers' hopes for profit must not convince suburban leaders that the supply of white, middle-class people is unlimited," NIPC says.

THE COMMISSION is most concerned about the distribution of growth, with attention paid to flood plain land, noise from O'Hare Airport and the need for open space. One NIPC conclusion is that by the year 2000, park and forest preserve acreage must be more than doubled to serve existing and predicted needs. "The region has less public recreational land per person than any other of America's 10 largest metropolitan regions," the report contends.

NIPC officials are seeking organized distribution of population near existing services, because it maximizes access to jobs, shopping, schools and cultural events. "An unchecked trend toward more dispersion of residences, and more highways, would surely lead to population densities too low to support public transportation, however subsidized," the report says.

"Dispersed growth would also cost more tax dollars for sewers, schools and every kind of public service. The longer travel distances, and larger land areas used, would add to air and water pollution. The centers of cities and established suburbs would deteriorate as retail trade moves to new shopping centers," the report says.

LOCAL PREFERENCES for growth are being sought because some suburbs welcome growth, while others want to halt it. The size of population has a great influence on the community lifestyles. According to NIPC, there are 12 suburbs alone that are willing or planning to accept 2 million more residents — the entire total increase for the six-county area in the next 26 years.

The 1973 population of suburban Cook County was 2,256,541, according to census figures, and that is now expected to grow to 2,992,000 by the year 2000. The City of Chicago is expected to lose population.

Preliminary population forecasts for local townships include:

	1973	2000
Wheeling	133,310	160,000
Elk Grove	84,221	117,000
Palatine	67,028	105,000
Schaumburg	63,996	140,000
Maine	144,453	160,000

The report indicates the racial makeup of the entire region is changing. In 1970, the region was 81 per cent white and 19 per cent other races. In the year 2000, the distribution will be 72 per cent white and 28 per cent other races.

Unchecked trends in Chicago would reduce its white percentage from 66 per cent now to 30 per cent, although successful efforts for racial socio-economic equality could change that significantly, the report says. Other races would constitute no more than 18 per cent of any outlying county, the report says, with the suburban average around 13 per cent.

Wheeling High double victim of bomb?

When something happens like the Wheeling High School fire, it is upsetting, frightening and, yes, angering.

A high school lost 22,000 books because someone, for some twisted reason, thought it was a good idea to throw some Molotov cocktails through some windows.

The motives of the culprits are obscure. Maybe they had a grudge against the school. Maybe they thought a little fire would be a "fun" way to end a Saturday evening. Maybe they don't know themselves why they did it.

Two youths have been arrested by Wheeling police and charged with the crime and even if they are guilty (something we don't know right now) we may never get an explanation of their motive.

BUT RIGHT NOW there is one thing I can say for sure. Whatever the motives of the Wheeling arsonists, the event should not reflect on the student body of Wheeling High School.

It should be unnecessary to say that, because it should be self-evident. But ever since the fire, I have had people coming up to me and saying things like

Education today
by Wandalyne Rice

"Well, you know how Wheeling is." And the assumption those people have made has been that Wheeling High School is, somehow, the only place in the Northwest suburbs where something like that can happen.

That assumption isn't fair, but I think it should be examined closely, because it isn't a new assumption.

More than a year ago, a group of Mount Prospect residents were protesting a proposed boundary change which would have shifted their children from Hersey to Wheeling high schools. In an appearance before the High School Dist. 214 board, Patrick Link, who was then a Mount Prospect Village Trustee, said people in his area opposed the move because "Wheeling has a bad reputation."

PEOPLE associated with Wheeling High School were rightfully incensed by that remark. And they appeared at another board meeting to defend their school. The board also defended the school.

But judging from the reaction I heard this week from some people following the fire, the attitude Link expressed wasn't killed during the boundary discussions. People said things this week like, "Well, you know they have a lot of tough kids up there," or "Well, what can you expect from Wheeling. It's disgraceful."

I told those people they were wrong, individually, but perhaps it's time to face the issue in public. Too often statements like those go unanswered for fear that repeating the accusations will give them credence. But, now, for the record, let's say it: Wheeling High School students are not any different (or any worse) than high school students in any other school in the Northwest suburbs (or the whole country for that matter.)

True, Wheeling has tough kids. So does Arlington, and so does Elk Grove and so does Palatine or Conant. I defy anyone to find a school with 2,500 students that doesn't have some kids who qualify as "tough."

THERE ARE probably a lot of things that contributed to the Wheeling High School reputation. Some of the people I've talked to have said it is because, several years ago, the school had modular scheduling and that resulted in discipline problems. (Modular scheduling has also resulted in those problems at other high schools where it has been tried. Evanston High School, as an example, was criticized for the same reason.)

Some people have said the reputation of Wheeling High School is connected with snobbery. Wheeling residents are middle-class, but they aren't as middle-class as residents of some surrounding suburbs. That is an easy objection to meet — "class" stereotypes are always false.

Some of the reputation may result from the fact that the village of Wheeling itself has had some rough times lately, what with present and former village officials pleading guilty to federal crimes. But it hardly seems fair to blame high school students for that. Not all of them even live in the village of Wheeling, and those who do generally can't vote, so they have little say in village government.

WHATEVER THE origin of the prejudice against Wheeling High School, I suspect it is perpetuated just because it is there. People repeat statements about Wheeling not because they are true, but because they have been said before.

That isn't fair. And it particularly isn't fair to use this tragic (and criminal) fire to further the stereotype.

I doubt there is a high school principal in this country who, if he was being honest, wouldn't admit that the same thing could happen at his school.

Wheeling High School was unlucky. But don't find the victim of something like this guilty.

Meet today on second campus

Harper officials expected to decide on site purchase

The Harper College Board of Trustees is scheduled to make a decision today on whether to go ahead with plans to buy a second site for the college.

The board will meet at 8 p.m. today at the college, Algonquin and Roselle roads, Palatine. Last week, board members agreed to decide today whether to proceed with the second site.

College officials are scheduled to appear before the Arlington Heights village board of trustees Monday in connection with their request that the village board set aside land for the college in its zoning plan.

THE LAND, AT Palatine and Schoenbeck roads in Arlington Heights, is owned by the Mayo Foundation. About a year ago, the college first approached the village about the zoning designation, but the case has been delayed while the school sought approval from the Illinois Community College board to plan for a second campus.

The Harper board last week agreed that they could not delay further in deciding whether to buy the land. Several board members advocated telling the village board to set aside the land only until the college can have a referendum to raise money for the purchase.

Representatives of the Mayo Foundation have said they do not want the land tied up by the village board if the college is not going to be able to purchase it immediately.

LAST WEEK, A DEVELOPER, Raymond and Raymond of Evanston, approached the village, saying it was interested in buying the land from Mayo and building a 1,074-unit development on it. Representatives of the developer have said they would be willing to wait until Harper determines whether it can buy the site.

The Harper board held a closed session Tuesday night to discuss the situation with Mayo and possible action on the site. Also Tuesday, the Arlington Heights Park District board voted to support Harper if it seeks the site.

Preliminary plans by Harper architects indicate the park district could use part of the land not needed by the college.

Smaller is better — now

At least that's what Detroit automakers are thinking after years of promoting the 'big is better' theme

by EDWARDS S. LECHTIN

DETROIT (UPI) — After years of promoting "big is better," an energy crisis and slumping sales have pushed Detroit's automakers into thinking small.

Seven new small cars and two new intermediate models will join the lineup for 1978 along with the three subcompacts and 10 compact models already on the market. New gas-saving six-cylinder engines and smaller V-8s will be offered.

It's all part of Detroit's attempts to change its image in the face of small car competition from foreign automakers and the dramatic shift in the American car-buyer's preference for anything that isn't big.

"The whole thing kind of hit us over the head," mused one industry executive. "Once the shock began to wear off, we decided the small car is here to stay."

THE NEW MODELS due this fall are just a preview of what the industry is planning in the way of minicars and new forms of engines for the rest of the decade. Those cars will start appearing in 1976 and 1977.

For 1975, Detroit will be trying to sell luxury in a small package.

General Motors, caught with too few small cars in its lineup when service station lines began lengthening last fall, is adding four new small models based on its subcompact Chevrolet Vega. Two are sporty versions of the Vega originally designed with the Wankel rotary engine in mind and the Canadian version of the Vega sold by Pontiac dealers.

Ford, alone of the Big Three with a wide range of compact and subcompact models, adds two more compacts — the Ford Granada and Mercury Monarch that were originally intended to replace the Ford Maverick and Mercury Comet. Instead, they'll be luxury models in the $4,500 - $5,000 price range.

AMERICAN MOTORS, with 75 per cent of its production already in small cars, will introduce its Pacer in January. A sporty model with a luxury interior, it was originally designed for the rotary engine, but will be offered with a six-cylinder engine until AMC decides to either buy one or build its own.

Chrysler Corp., still two years away from a subcompact model, instead will devote its efforts to two new intermediate models designed for the mid-sized personal luxury field. Known as the Dodge Charger SE and Chrysler Cordoba, the No. 3 automaker hopes they'll put Chrysler in the field dominated by the Pontiac Grand Prix and Chevrolet Monte Carlo.

One thing the new small cars won't be is cheap. The subcompact models with price tags now around $2,500 are coming out of factories so optioned-up that a $3,200 subcompact is not unusual. At about $3,500, the AMC Pacer probably will be the cheapest of the new breed of small cars for 1975.

ONE MAIN reason for the trend to small cars besides the gasoline crisis is that people have just so much to spend on cars. Once they have their mind set on what options they want and the knowledge the government is forcing others on them, they go to a smaller model to stay within their budget.

"As the things they want and select and the things they don't want but have to take up in price, the amount of money they have to spend on the car size goes down," observed one industry analyst.

An example of this is the Ford Maverick. About one-quarter go out of the factory with the luxury LDO option, 44 per cent with air conditioning, 76 per cent with the larger engine options and 85 per cent with automatic transmissions. Even the subcompact Pinto is affected with 58 per cent automatic transmissions.

The new sporty Chevrolet, built on the same chassis as the Vega, had been intended as GM's answer to Ford's Mustang II whose sales zoomed after introduction last fall. But problems in developing the Wankel rotary engine will leave the car powered by the conventional four-cylinder or a small V-8 engine.

THE SPORTY subcompact also will be given to the Oldsmobile and Buick Divisions to sell since they have been hit hardest by not having any small cars in the lineup. Pontiac dealers get the Astro, now sold in Canada and differing from the Vega only in its grille and taillight treatments.

GM also is giving its four compact models — the Chevrolet Nova, Pontiac Ventura, Buick Apollo and Oldsmobile Omega — a facelift for 1975. More glass area and a less boxy appearance ance will be the major changes.

WHAT IS IT? Why, it's the Ford Granada Ghia, of course. Oh, don't rush right out and buy one now — you can't. But it and many other more compact autos will be available from Detroit in 1975.

After years of plugging away to shake the image of small cars and low prices, Ford finally gained leverage against GM in the big car market only to find the public's desires changing once again.

"We do get a bit frustrated about it," admitted Norman Krandall, director of Ford's Marketing Research Office. "We spent years beating the drums for our big cars, and got to the point where 60 per cent of our 1973 model sales were from our conventional and luxury lines."

"WE WERE SELLING a lot of small cars, but we were selling more bigs than smalls — and what happens? We plan for a continued but reasonably gradual increase in our small-car mix, and then the Mideast erupts, and we really have to shift into high gear on small cars."

AMC, a company that shifted into high gear four years ago, will debut its Pacer early next year. All the company's 1975 models will be introduced at the beginning of the year, partly to avoid having to add on costly emission control devices when the other companies do in September.

Built from the same basic frame AMC uses for its small Gremlin and Hornet models, the six-cylinder Pacer has a sharply sloping front hood, a wide pillar behind the door and almost wrap-around glass.

Mount Prospect man new lieutenant

A former sergeant in the department's Niles division unit was among five Cook County Sheriff's policemen who were promoted this week by Sheriff's Police officials.

Named lieutenant was Bernard Singer, 51, of Mount Prospect. Singer is an investigator in the sheriff's department Area One unit with headquarters at 8970 Milwaukee Ave.

Singer is an 11-year veteran of the force and has served in the patrol, records and communications sections of the department as well as law enforcement positions with the U.S. Department of the Treasury.

The other promoted officers work out of the department's downtown office and in the Area Two headquarters in Homewood.

The new assignments followed a series of written tests and oral interviews conducted by Sheriff Richard Elrod; Edmund Dobbs, chief of the Sheriff's Police, and the department's board of corrections and merit.

Bar association plans golf day

The Northwest Suburban Bar Assn. will hold its annual golf outing and dinner on Tuesday at McHenry Country Club. Tee-off times are being assigned on a first-come, first-served basis between 11:30 a.m. and 2 p.m., said Richard R. Rochester of Northbrook, general chairman.

NWSBA members and guests unable to make it for a round of golf are invited to the social hour and dinner beginning at 7:30 p.m.

Reservations for the full day or for the dinner should be made with Susie Blinnie, First National Bank of Des Plaines, 733 Lee St., Des Plaines, or by calling 827-4411, ext. 214.

McHenry Country Club is located south of Ill. Rte. 120, off Barreville Road near the Fox River in McHenry, Ill.

Mental health to be discussed

State mental hospitals are vastly different today from the "insane asylums" they were known as thirty years ago, according to the superintendent of the Danver State Hospital in Hawthorne, Mass.

The changes that have occurred in patients' illnesses, living conditions and psychiatric care will be discussed by Peter Hagopian with Dover Roth of Forest Hospital this Sunday on "The Search for Mental Health" weekly radio series over WJJD-FM (104.3) at 8 a.m.

"The Search for Mental Health" is funded by the Forest Hospital Foundation in Des Plaines and is distributed nationally.

Planning a picnic? Reserve your ants early

WASHINGTON (UPI) — In 1972, according to the National Geographic Society, 47 per cent of the nation's population, or 74,400,000 persons, went on picnics.

Well and good. But did they all have to show up at the Commodore Claus von Frigate Memorial State Park on the same day?

I remember the day well because the other 73,499,999 picnickers got there ahead of me. It was a beautiful Sunday afternoon. Or it was when my group arrived.

By the time we found a place to spread our hamper, it was late Thursday. And the deviled eggs were at a stage where not even exorcism could save them.

ALTHOUGH 1972 was the last year for which picnicking statistics are available, it is plain that the saturation point has been reached.

Some days the horde of picnickers is so large there aren't enough ants to go around.

I learned about the ant shortage from Fermus Wangtree, executive secretary of the National Association of Open Air Gourmets.

"No picnic is complete without a few ants crawling around on the red-checked tablecloth and scaling the thermos bottle," Wangtree said. "Sad to say,

The lighter side

by Dick West

however, the ant colonies in many parks and other outdoor facilities are too small to accommodate the crowds, especially on holidays and weekends.

"SOME PICNIC grounds are trying to meet the emergency by importing ants, but it takes time to get a colony established."

I asked Wangtree why ants had suddenly become so scarce. "There is still an abundance of ants of many varieties," he replied. "You can find all the harvester ants, carpenter ants, fire ants and sugar ants you could ask for."

"It is only the North American picnic ant that is getting hard to come by."

"Although the picnic ant population has been growing at a fairly respectable rate, it has not kept pace with the massive growth of picnicking.

"Picnic ants presently are spread so thin that, despite overtime shifts, they simply can't fill all the demand for their services."

I asked Wangtree whether any sort of remedy was in sight.

"FORTUNATELY, yes," he said. "It won't be long before places that sell paper plates, ice for coolers and other picnic equipment also will offer carryout ants."

"They will be available in six or eight-ant assortments, each prepackaged in handy plastic containers that you can take along with you."

That is good news indeed. And if it doesn't work, I suppose the next step will be artificial ants.

SEEING IS BELIEVING

How do you believe something you can't actually look at—like the audience for your advertising?

You know that some people out there buy and read our paper—but how many, where do they live, where do they shop for their copies, and how much are they willing to pay?

Best way we know of to "see" a circulation audience (and be sure it exists) is through the facts and figures of the reports of the Audit Bureau of Circulations.

Palanais Park

Source of gasoline fumes may have been discovered

Palatine officials may have found a cause for gasoline fumes coming from sewers in the Palanais Park subdivision.

Inspectors recently found several small "leaks in piping from gas tanks to gas station pumps," said fireman William DePue, who is head of an investigation into the fumes.

Combined, these small leaks may be causing the fumes, DePue said. The Palanais Park subdivision is located west of Rohlwing Road and on both sides of Palatine Road.

The village has been inspecting gasoline storage tanks at all Northwest Highway gas stations that connect to the sewer line.

These tests, which cost a station owner about $200 involve filling the tanks to near-capacity and applying air pressure. A loss of pressure indicates a leak.

There still are three gas stations to be checked, DePue said.

Also, a "private concern" reported a leaky storage tank and the village ordered it to be replaced. This tank was a mile away from the Palanais area, but there is a possibility the leak might have gotten into sewers which connect with those in Palanais Park, DePue said.

INVESTIGATIONS began earlier this year after several citizens complained about the gas fumes, which they said had been detected over the past seven years. The fumes have been a constant problem in about a dozen homes, DePue said, and the smell is most noticeable after a rain.

"The odor seems to be subsiding," he said.

He suggested the gas fumes could be stored in an air pocket over the winter and be pushed out with the spring rains. The recent heavy rains could have pushed all the stored fumes out, he said.

THE VILLAGE also tested the area with sumpholes, perforated pipes stuck about 20 feet into the ground. These pipes would have detected any liquid seepage in the area. However, no gasoline was found, DePue said.

Village workers check the sewers with a television camera each year. However, the sewers are combination sanitary and storm sewers, and can't be checked with a camera until the weather improves, DePue said.

The village surveyed about 200 homeowners in the affected area about sewer fume problems. Of the 75 surveys returned, eight reported gas fumes, DePue said. This is what he expected, he said.

Decision seen on Old Madrid

Palatine's Zoning Board of Appeals is expected to decide tonight whether to allow the Sellergren Co., Inc., to change its plans for the Old Madrid apartment development, Northwest Highway and Hicks Road.

The zoning board will meet at 8 p.m. at the Slade Street Fire Station, 117 W. Slade St., Palatine. The board's decision will be forwarded to the Palatine Village Board for final action.

Howard and James Sellergren, owners and developers want approval to change the project from four 14-story apartment towers to nine mid-rise condominium apartment buildings and one tower.

A 26-acre commercial development, part of the original plans, will not be changed.

Area residents viewed the revised plans at meetings last month and raised questions about traffic, flooding and compatibility with their nearby homes.

Church vacation Bible school sign up on

Registration for Immanuel Lutheran Church vacation Bible school is in progress at the church office, 203 N. Bothwell, Palatine.

The school is open to children aged 4-13 and will run from June 17-27, from 9 to 11:30 a.m. daily.

This year's theme is the "Promise of Jesus," with lessons and worksheets from the Old and New Testaments. Handicrafts, music and song will be used in the lessons.

Registration also can be taken by phone at 359-1459.

'New downtown' facing obstacles in many suburbs

by STEVE FORSYTH

The Northwest suburbs have blossomed, sprawled and grown rich in recent decades while their downtown areas did little but deteriorate.

Communities of 50,000 and more now radiate around centers that are less vigorous commercially and socially than would be expected in towns half their size.

But turning rows of crumbling shops into modern stores and offices has proved a frustrating dream for the relatively few business and community leaders who are committed to it.

The base of opposition to downtown renewal in towns like Des Plaines, Mount Prospect, Arlington Heights and Palatine — all in some stage of redevelopment planning — is simply resistance to change.

IF LIFE IS good enough as it is, many residents ask, why tamper with the unknown? Why attract more people and more cars to the downtown areas?

James Paroubek, the father of the downtown redevelopment plan for Des Plaines, has many answers, at least for his community. They all hinge on two stories of new shops and 10 floors of office buildings in the project known as Superblock.

In the first place, Paroubek says, redevelopment is inevitable in many parts of the nation. Professional planners agree with him as they predict a return to more active centers of business and population, primarily because of land costs and energy shortages.

Through eight years of planning and land purchasing, Paroubek and a group of local businessmen have hung onto their idea of halting downtown deterioration.

THEY POINT OUT advantages to property owners, businessmen and potential workers and shoppers in the new area. Another promised advantage is tax relief for homeowners as the business community assumes a greater share of the tax load. Increased business also means increased sales tax revenue.

Des Plaines is only one Northwest suburb wrestling with downtown redevelopment. Palatine has a disputed plan for a new downtown that will have a rural characteristic. Arlington Heights has had several plans. And Mount Prospect, a late bloomer, is seeking planners to draw up redevelopment proposals.

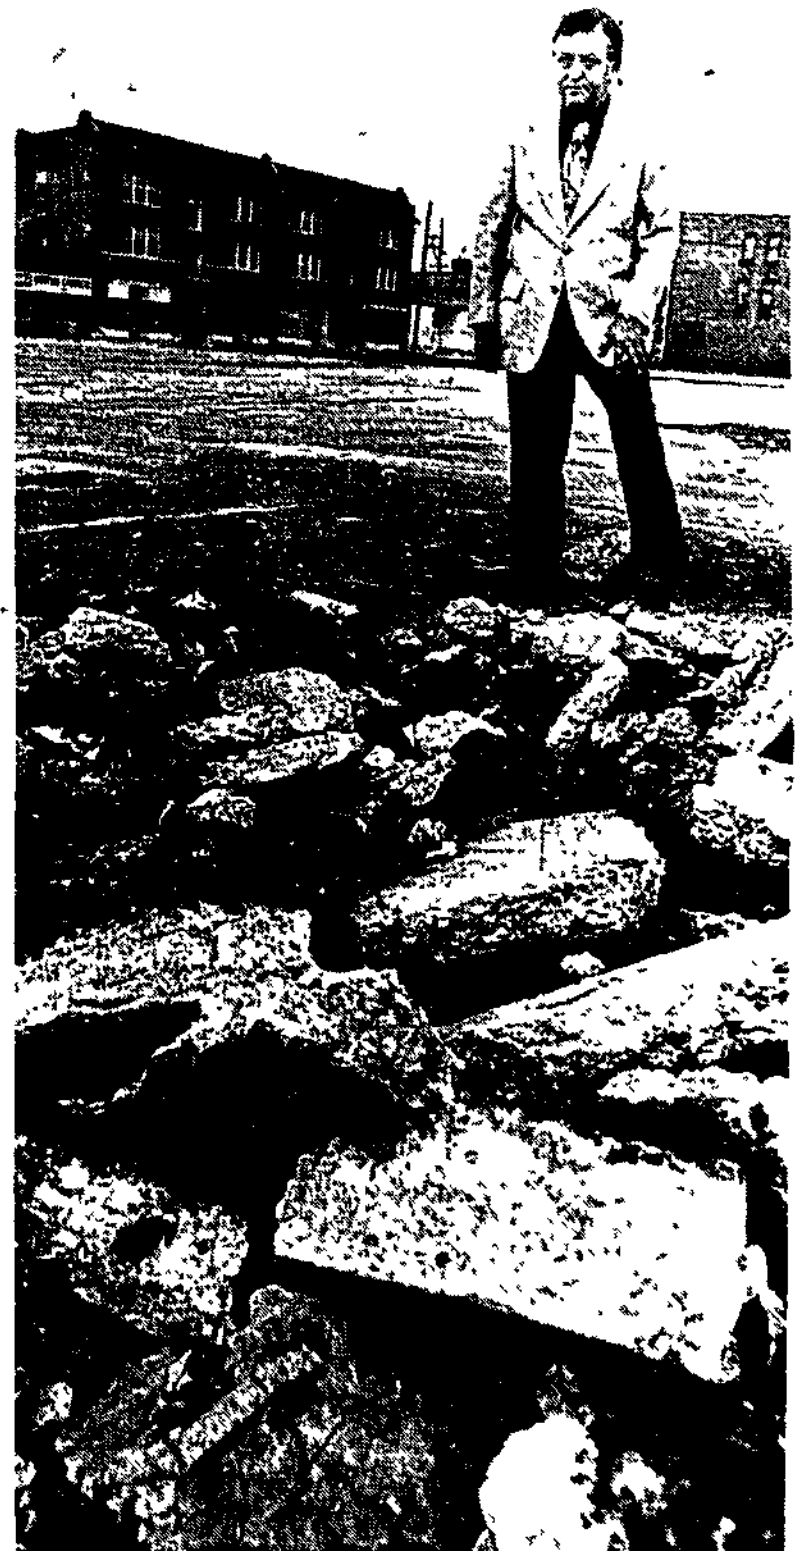

Money is not the only goal of redevelopment in suburban communities. Lost for years in the category of "Chicago suburbs," many community leaders would like to see each town develop a character and identity of its own. There is no written value for "identity," but local officials and professional planners alike agree it is a desirable goal for a community.

But the benefits of redevelopment are off in the future. The costs are now and the return is only a projection. Government actions needed to spur renewal projects make them politically vulnerable. The problems become a mound of barriers that is difficult for the redevelopment bulldozer to move.

DES PLAINES could serve as a model of the problems and successes in rebuilding a suburban downtown.

The Des Plaines project started in 1966 with a businessmen's group known as the Des Plaines Redevelopment Assn. In 1968, the Des Plaines Tomorrow Corp., a nonprofit organization, was formed with Paroubek as president. The Tomorrow group of 40 to 50 businessmen pledged $5,000 or more to the corporation, to give it power to borrow money.

THE DES PLAINES Superblock plan is rolling to a conclusion after eight years of planning and land purchasing. James Paroubek, president of the Des

Plaines Tomorrow Corp., looks over the rubble that marks the only visible progress so far. New objections now confront the redevelopment plans.

2 teaching methods work well at Virginia Lake

The two teaching methods used at Virginia Lake School in Palatine are at opposite ends of the educational spectrum, but they apparently accomplish the same things.

A Dist. 15 survey and achievement test results recently compiled indicate that, in general, youngsters do not learn better or feel happier in one system as compared to the other. A few individuals however, do function better under one system than the other, according to school administrators.

Virginia Lake School, for the past two years, has been about evenly divided between the new multi-age, team teaching approach and the traditional classroom system. Under multi-age, team teaching, youngsters from three different grade levels are in the same double classroom. Each double classroom consists of about 60 to 65 students, two teachers and teacher aides. The teachers take turns giving group lectures and both work with students in small groups or individually.

THE DISTRICT IS planning to continue this system next school year. "I think we really need both kinds of programs," said Principal Richard Schmidt.

"In the future, it might be that multi-age will be the more acceptable form of school environment," said Assistant Supt. for Instruction, Marlon Omlatek. He added that the district is continuing both programs to provide an option for students and teachers.

Omlatek said the big difference between the two systems is that the multi-age grouping is more "conductive" to individualized learning. Group lectures are difficult to give because the classes cover several grade levels. But he said that teachers in the traditional classroom situation can also individualize education as much as the multi-age teacher can.

"The teacher is the key," Omlatek added.

ON THIS YEAR'S achievement tests, students in both groups scored approximately the same and all students scored above national averages, according to Schmidt.

A parent survey showed no significant differences between the reactions of parents of children in the multi-age classrooms and parents of children in the traditional classrooms, Schmidt said.

With one exception, the student surveys showed very little difference between those in the traditional classroom and students in the multi-age classroom, Schmidt said. A significant difference was found when students were asked if they plan their own work. In the multi-age group, 74 per cent said they usually plan their own work; in the traditional classroom, 33 per cent said they could plan their own work.

SOME OF THE advantages of multi-age grouping are hard to measure, according to Schmidt and Omlatek. These include:

- A "more real" situation in the multi-age group. Children don't always associate with those of the same age, since family members and neighbors are generally of varying ages.

- Having the same teacher for more than one year, which gives that teacher a chance to know the child better. Also, teachers would have to get to know only 10 new students each year, instead of the 30 they would have to meet each year as a whole class moves to another grade level.

- Children with problems in academic areas don't stick out as much because of the wider range of academic achievement in the multi-age grouping.

- Learning to accept leadership and discovering that the oldest is not automatically the leader.

The advantages that the regular classroom might have would include slightly less noise and more structure, according to school officials.

Resident, 89, hurt in three-car crash

An 89-year-old Palatine man was injured Wednesday when the car he was driving was struck from behind on Northwest Highway near Ashland Street.

Arthur Breithner, 621 N. Wren, was taken to Northwest Community Hospital after the accident at 1:30 p.m., and was later transferred to Holy Family Hospital.

Breithner's car was hit when it stopped near the intersection where a three-car chain reaction accident occurred.

'Cirrusly' speaking, solar halo visible here

by JOE SWICKARD

The Chicago area was treated to an "astronomical phenomenon" Wednesday when the sun, clouds and ice crystals combined to form a tri-color solar halo.

The red, yellow and blue bands entirely encircling the sun appeared about noon, prompting people to call the U.S. Weather Service, Chicago's Adler Planetarium, newspapers and radio stations.

A weather service spokesman said the halo was caused by sun rays being refracted through ice crystals suspended in cirrus clouds at an altitude of 20,000 to 25,000 feet.

One-color halos, with a reddish hue,

A SOLAR HALO in full color appeared over the Chicago area Wednesday. The red, yellow and blue bands were caused by sunlight refracted through ice crystals. The spot to the side is a reflection.

are more common, the spokesman said. "I don't remember one having as many colors."

According to the service's glossary, the halos are termed "astronomical phenomena." They can vary in brightness and coloration, from white to red to prismatic spectrums (as in Wednesday's display) depending on the relation of the crystal-bearing clouds to the sun.

THE WHITE halos are caused when the sun light is reflected off the ice crystals, rather than the light being refracted through them, the spokesman said.

Jim SeEVERS, assistant astronomer at the Adler Planetarium, said the best halos are formed when the clouds are angled 22 degrees from the sun.

The six-sided ice crystals break down the rays of the sun into the primary colors, resulting in the "rainbow" halo, SeEVERS said.

The halo was the third one experienced this spring in the Chicago area, he said. Wednesday's was the most noticeable because of the bright sun and clear air.

It all depends on, SeEVERS said, "just how nicely the crystals arrange themselves."

When the phenomenon does not encircle the sun, but appears on either side, they are called "sun dogs," said SeEVERS. The "dogs" are more common than halos, he said.

The term is "a very old one," SeEVERS said. The ancients probably called the arcs "dogs" because they appear to be led by the sun, he speculated.

LUNAR HALOS and dogs are also relatively common sights, he said. They are caused by the same elements (the light of the moon being reflected sunlight), but are more likely to be seen because of their contrast to the dark night sky, he said.

SeEVERS claimed it was pure coincidence that solar halos and dogs will be discussed during the planetarium's summer show, "The U.F.O. Experience," that begins tomorrow.

"We didn't plan it, but it certainly did work out nicely, didn't it," he said.

Fremd juniors bury time capsule

Year 2000 to glimpse 1970s

Northwest suburbanites living in the year 2,000 will get a capsule view of high school life in the 1970s, thanks to a group of juniors at Fremd High School.

The juniors in Lucille Mueller's American studies class buried a time capsule in the school courtyard Saturday morning. After studying history all year, the students decided it would be fun to make their own contribution to historical studies, said Mrs. Mueller.

Since they are members of the graduating class of 1975, they have asked that the capsule be opened in 25 years—in the year 2,000—said Mrs. Mueller, and they hope to be around then "to see how people in 25 years respond to what was typical in their time."

THE WATERPROOF capsule, made of polyethylene and sealed with silicone, was donated by Mrs. Mueller. The students in the class contributed the objects which are now preserved in time.

Among them are three slogan buttons: one reads "Nixon's The One," another says "Impeach Nixon," and the third carries a slogan on streaking.

Among the printed material placed in the capsule is a copy of the Chicago Tribune, the Guinness Book of Records, a copy of TV Guide and a copy of a newspaper with a story on Hank Aaron's 715th home run.

Other artifacts which will be uncovered in the year 2,000 are a 10-cent stamp, a penny, a few empty beer cans, a pair of jeans and a Viking (the school mascot) T-shirt, an American flag, an expired credit card, a list of WCFL radio's top 40 songs and a hockey puck because the juniors believe hockey is the up-and-coming sport of our time.

Feminine group to see 'Gypsy'

The musical "Gypsy," starring Angela Lansbury, playing at Chicago's Civic Opera House, will be part of the July 24 Feminine trip sponsored by the Palatine Park District.

Reservations are due by July 19 and will be accepted by mail or in person at the district administration office, 282 E. Palatine Rd. The trip, which costs $14.50 a person, will also include lunch at the Blackhawk Restaurant in Chicago and round trip bus transportation.

The bus departs at 10:45 a.m. and returns approximately 5:45 p.m. More details are available by calling 359-0333.

Two receive high graduation honors

Two Palatine High School students were named valedictorian and salutatorian in graduation ceremonies at the school Wednesday.

Jeanne Rose Kilian was named valedictorian and Donna Huber was named salutatorian. A total of 424 students were graduated.

Village to pay cost of new sidewalks

Palatine will sign an agreement to pay for new sidewalks to be installed along a portion of Northwest Highway when the state widens that road probably in 1975.

The village board Monday authorized the village president to sign an agreement with the state. However, this agreement is subject to some motivation, Village Mgr. Anton Harwig said.

Harwig will ask the state to include in its plans a sidewalk along both sides of Northwest Highway, from Baldwin to Hicks roads.

The state is beginning preliminary plans to widen that portion of Northwest Highway, Harwig said.

The state does not pay for sidewalk installation. However, if a village agrees to pay for the walks, the state will let out bids for sidewalk as well as road construction when it widens a road.

The cost to the village of installing a sidewalk is lower when other work is being done than when sidewalk work is done alone, Harwig said.

Homeowners to weigh area incinerator plans

Homeowners in the Palatine Park subdivision in Palatine will sponsor a special public meeting for area residents June 26 to discuss Rolling Meadows' plans for a garbage incinerator near the area.

The homeowners will discuss facts they have compiled concerning incineration and the city's possible decision to build a plant near Rohlwing Road and Northwest Highway near the Palatine subdivision.

The meeting will be held at 8 p.m. in the Christ Lutheran Church, 41 S. Rohlwing Rd.

Swim lessons at Rolling Meadows pool?

Residents of the Salt Creek Park District may be allowed to enroll in the Rolling Meadows Park District's first swimming lesson session June 24.

Salt Creek Parks and Recreation Director James DeVos said Wednesday swim lessons for at least the first three weeks of the summer may be held at the Rolling Meadows pool because of the lack of availability of other pools.

The Salt Creek district was informed two weeks ago by officials of the Arlington Park Towers hotel it would not be allowed to use the hotel pool this summer. The notice came after the district's summer scheduling had already been prepared.

LACK OF availability of pools at the Babcock condominiums on Palatine Road and Winston Drive and the Willow Creek development on Rohlwing Road and Northwest Highway will mean the likely use of the Rolling Meadows pool if the boards of both districts agree to the plan, DeVos said.

An offer to share the Rolling Meadows pool was extended to the Salt Creek District by the Rolling Meadows district last week in a letter to the board. DeVos said rates for the morning swimming lessons will be slightly higher than the regular district rate, but lower than the Rolling Meadows district's regular out-of-district rate.

DeVos added that he also may investigate the possible purchase of a temporary above-ground pool for Salt Creek for use later this summer and for the next two to three years. A temporary pool of about 20 feet by 40 feet with depths varying from 3 feet to 8 feet might be available for $3,000 to $4,000, DeVos said.

If such a purchase was authorized by the park district board, DeVos said, "I think we could find the money (in the budget). I think we might have to take some from several categories, but I think we could get it."

THE TEMPORARY pool could be located in Rose Park and used primarily for swimming lessons, he said. If purchase of the pool was approved by the district board, DeVos said it might be available for the district's second swim session, scheduled to begin July 8.

Under the arrangement being considered for shared use of the Rolling Meadows pool, DeVos said Salt Creek residents could be allowed into the Rolling Meadows district's swim lesson program for $10, rather than the $6 that would have been charged in the Salt Creek program. Rolling Meadows residents are charged $8 for the program, with the regular out-of-district rate $16.

Lessons would be offered for beginners through swimmers in four morning half-hour sessions beginning at 10 a.m. and ending at noon.

"They're doing it because of our situation and being good neighbors about it," DeVos said of the Rolling Meadows offer. He added that the addition of Salt Creek residents in the Rolling Meadows classes would also provide more revenue for the Rolling Meadows district and fill classes for the district.

Sidewalks, curbs won't be damaged

Philippe subdivision septic tanks temporarily approved

Homeowners in the Philippe subdivision area, planned for annexation to Rolling Meadows, probably will not be immediately required to convert their septic systems to the city's sewer system.

Mayer Roland Meyer told about ten of the area's 60 homeowners at a meeting Tuesday septic systems would probably be allowed to remain in the area until they no longer function. About 10 homes in the subdivision have septic tanks, the homeowners said.

Meyer also said the city would probably also agree to the residents' request not to have sidewalks and curbs installed in the area.

The sewer system and sidewalk matter are among the main concerns of residents in the area who will be annexed to the city June 25. The area — about 60 acres bounded by Euclid Avenue, Rohling, Hicks and Kirchoff roads — will bring some 60 homes, two apartments and two gas stations into the city.

The gas stations, including the now-closed Sunoco station at East Frontage and Kirchoff roads, and the Marathon station at Hicks and Kirchoff roads, will be included in the annexation.

MEYER TOLD THE homeowners Tuesday the annexation is being sought to give the city control over the zoning of the vacant areas near the subdivision and gas stations. In the past the city has had difficulties in preventing unwanted zoning in the area because the sites were located in unincorporated Cook County and could therefore be zoned by the county, Meyer said.

Annexation of the area might also allow the some 300 residents of the Philippe area to be counted in the city's coming special census, Meyer said. The city's population count will be important because about $15 per person is rebated from the state to the city in motor fuel tax and state income tax funds.

A population count of 25,000 will also mean the city can become a home rule community.

THE DISCUSSION with the homeowners was preliminary to another meeting Tuesday between the homeowners and city officials to answer other questions before the annexing action.

Annexing the site will mean an increase in property taxes for homeowners of about $35 to $45, according to Denis Schnell of the Rohling-Hicks Homeowners Assn. But City Treasurer Robert Cole has assured the residents their homes would not be reassessed until the regular quadrennial reassessment in Palatine township in 1976.

But while property taxes may go up, other costs may go down, Meyer told the group. He said water bills will be reduced by about one-third because the city will no longer level a surcharge against the area, vehicle sticker costs will be reduced from the $15 county rate to the $3 city rate and garbage service will be free instead of the $5 monthly rate now being paid by residents.

Insurance ratings for the area will also be improved because the area will come under the city rather than the township rural fire department, Meyer said.

ANNEXATION OF the Philippe site has been discussed in the past by the city, but action was always put off because no agreement could be reached on purchase of the Grove Estates Utility Co., which serves the area and which is owned by developer John Philippe.

The annexation is now being planned without the purchase of the company, which Meyer said had been offered to the city for $34,000. The city's counter offer of $25,000 has been turned down by Philippe, Meyer said.

2 teaching methods work well at Virginia Lake

The two teaching methods used at Virginia Lake School in Palatine are at opposite ends of the educational spectrum, but they apparently accomplish the same things.

A Dist. 15 survey and achievement test results recently compiled indicate that, in general, youngsters do not learn better or feel happier in one system as compared to the other. A few individuals however, do function better under one system than the other, according to school administrators.

Virginia Lake School, for the past two years, has been about evenly divided between the new multi-age, team teaching approach and the traditional classroom system. Under multi-age, team teaching, youngsters from three different grade levels are in the same double classroom. Each double classroom consists of about 60 to 65 students, two teachers and teacher aides. The teachers take turns giving group lectures and both work with students in small groups or individually.

THE DISTRICT IS planning to continue this system next school year. "I think we really need both kinds of programs," said Principal Richard Schmidt.

"In the future, it might be that multi-age will be the more acceptable form of school environment," said Assistant Supt. for Instruction, Marion Omiatek. He added that the district is continuing both programs to provide an option for students and teachers.

Omiatek said the big difference between the two systems is that the multi-age grouping is more "conductive" to individualized learning. Group lectures are difficult to give because the classes cover several grade levels. But he said that teachers in the traditional classroom situation can also individualize education as much as the multi-age teacher can.

FBI seminar today on fingerprinting

A special FBI seminar on fingerprinting techniques will be held today for area law enforcement officials at the Rolling Meadows City Hall.

The seminar, which will demonstrate and instruct the officers on new methods of fingerprinting and new equipment used in detection and classification of prints, will be the second held by the FBI here. Another seminar was held recently on kidnapping.

"The teacher is the key," Omiatek added.

ON THIS YEAR'S achievement tests, students in both groups scored approximately the same and all students scored above national averages, according to Schmidt.

A parent survey showed no significant differences between the reactions of parents of children in the multi-age classrooms and parents of children in the traditional classrooms, Schmidt said.

With one exception, the student surveys showed very little difference between those in the traditional classroom and students in the multi-age classroom, Schmidt said. A significant difference was found when students were asked if they plan their own work. In the multi-age group, 74 per cent said they usually plan their own work; in the traditional classroom, 33 per cent said they could plan their own work.

SOME OF THE advantages of multi-age grouping are hard to measure, according to Schmidt and Omiatek. These include:

- A "more real" situation in the multi-age group. Children don't always associate with those of the same age, since family members and neighbors are generally of varying ages.

- Having the same teacher for more than one year, which gives that teacher a chance to know the child better. Also, teachers would have to get to know only 10 new students each year, instead of the 30 they would have to meet each year as a whole class moves to another grade level.

- Children with problems in academic areas don't stick out as much because of the wider range of academic achievement in the multi-age grouping.

- Learning to accept leadership and discovering that the oldest is not automatically the leader.

The advantages that the regular classroom might have would include slightly less noise and more structure, according to school officials.

School band departs for Canada Sunday

The Canada tour is a project of the Rolling Meadows High School music boosters club.

by STEVE FORSYTH

The Northwest suburbs have blossomed, sprawled and grown rich in recent decades while their downtown areas did little but deteriorate.

Communities of 50,000 and more now radiate around centers that are less vigorous commercially and socially than would be expected in towns half their size.

But turning rows of crumbling shops into modern stores and offices has proved a frustrating dream for the relatively few business and community leaders who are committed to it.

The base of opposition to downtown renewal in towns like Des Plaines, Mount Prospect, Arlington Heights and Palatine — all in some stage of redevelopment planning — is simply resistance to change.

IF LIFE IS good enough as it is, many residents ask, why tamper with the unknown? Why attract more people and more cars to the downtown areas?

James Paroubek, the father of the downtown redevelopment plan for Des Plaines, has many answers, at least for his community. They all hinge on two stories of new shops and 10 floors of office buildings in the project known as Superblock.

In the first place, Paroubek says, redevelopment is inevitable in many parts of the nation. Professional planners agree with him as they predict a return to more active centers of business and population, primarily because of land costs and energy shortages.

Through eight years of planning and land purchasing, Paroubek and a group of local businessmen have hung onto their idea of halting downtown deterioration.

THEY POINT OUT advantages to property owners, businessmen and potential workers and shoppers in the new area. Another promised advantage is tax relief for homeowners as the business community assumes a greater share of the tax load. Increased business also means increased sales tax revenue.

Des Plaines is only one Northwest suburb wrestling with downtown redevelopment. Palatine has a disputed plan for a new downtown that will have a rural characteristic. Arlington Heights has had several plans. And Mount Prospect, a late bloomer, is seeking planners to draw up redevelopment proposals.

Money is not the only goal of redevelopment in suburban communities. Lost for years in the category of "Chicago suburbs," many community leaders would like to see each town develop a character and identity of its own. There is no written value for "identity," but local officials and professional planners alike agree it is a desirable goal for a community.

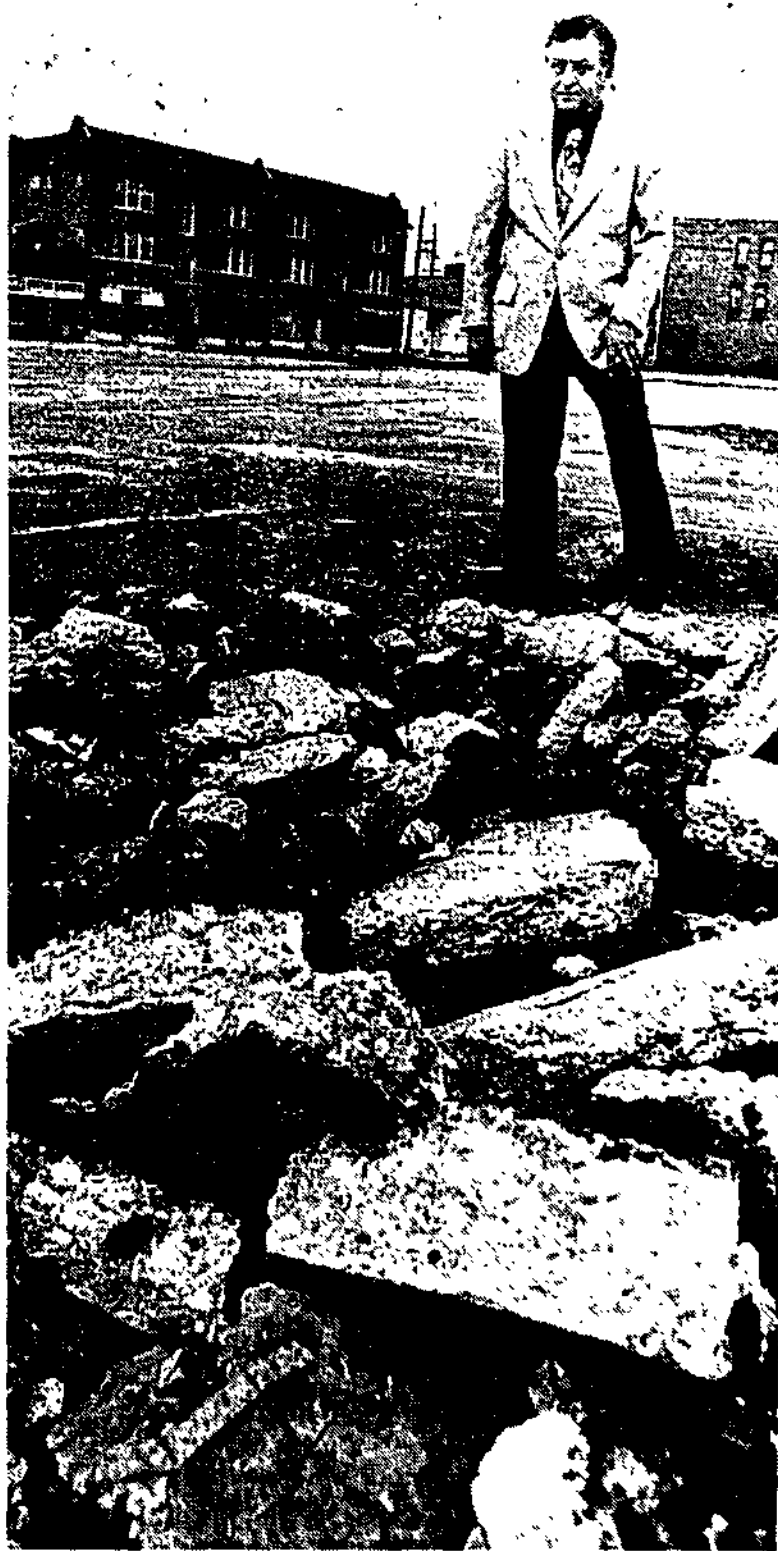

But the benefits of redevelopment are off in the future. The costs are now and the return is only a projection. Government actions needed to spur renewal projects make them politically vulnerable. The problems become a mound of barriers that is difficult for the redevelopment bulldozer to move.

DES PLAINES could serve as a model of the problems and successes in rebuilding a suburban downtown.

The Des Plaines project started in 1966 with a businessmen's group known as the Des Plaines Redevelopment Assn. In 1968, the Des Plaines Tomorrow Corp., a nonprofit organization, was formed with Paroubek as president. The Tomorrow group of 40 to 50 businessmen pledged $5,000 or more to the corporation, to give it power to borrow money.

The pledges — not cash — were used

THE DES PLAINES Superblock plan is rolling to a conclusion after eight years of planning and land purchasing. James Paroubek, president of the Des

Plaines Tomorrow Corp., looks over the rubble that marks the only visible progress so far. New objections now confront the redevelopment plans.

'Cirrusly' speaking, solar halo visible here

by JOE SWICKARD

The Chicago area was treated to an "astronomical phenomenon" Wednesday when the sun, clouds and ice crystals combined to form a tri-color solar halo.

The red, yellow and blue bands entirely encircling the sun appeared about noon, prompting people to call the U.S. Weather Service, Chicago's Adler Planetarium, newspapers and radio stations.

A weather service spokesman said the halo was caused by sun rays being refracted through ice crystals suspended in cirrus clouds at an altitude of 20,000 to 25,000 feet.

One-color halos, with a reddish hue,

are more common, the spokesman said. "I don't remember one having as many colors."

According to the service's glossary, the halos are termed "astronomical phenomena." They can vary in brightness and coloration, from white to red to prismatic spectrums (as in Wednesday's display) depending on the relation of the crystal-bearing clouds to the sun.

THE WHITE halos are caused when the sun light is reflected off the ice crystals, rather than the light being refracted through them, the spokesman said.

Jim Seevers, assistant astronomer at the Adler Planetarium, said the best halos are formed when the clouds are angled 22 degrees from the sun.

The six-sided ice crystals break down the rays of the sun into the primary colors, resulting in the "rainbow" halo, Seevers said.

The halo was the third one experienced this spring in the Chicago area, he said. Wednesday's was the most noticeable because of the bright sun and clear air.

It all depends on, Seevers said, "just how nicely the crystals arrange themselves."

When the phenomenon does not encircle the sun, but appears on either side, they are called "sun dogs," said Seevers. The "dogs" are more common than halos, he said.

The term is "a very old one," Seevers said. The ancients probably called the arcs "dogs" because they appear to be led by the sun, he speculated.

LUNAR HALOS and dogs are also relatively common sights, he said. They are caused by the same elements (the light of the moon being reflected sunlight), but are more likely to be seen because of their contrast to the dark night sky, he said.

Seevers claimed it was pure coincidence that solar halos and dogs will be discussed during the planetarium's summer show, "The U.F.O. Experience," that begins tomorrow.

"We didn't plan it, but it certainly did work out nicely, didn't it," he said.

Swim lessons at Rolling Meadows pool?

Residents of the Salt Creek Park District may be allowed to enroll in the Rolling Meadows Park District's first swimming lesson session June 24.

Salt Creek Parks and Recreation Director James DeVos said Wednesday swim lessons for at least the first three weeks of the summer may be held at the Rolling Meadows pool because of the lack of availability of other pools.

The Salt Creek district was informed two weeks ago by officials of the Arlington Park Towers hotel it would not be allowed to use the hotel pool this summer. The notice came after the district's summer scheduling had already been prepared.

LACK OF availability of pools at the Babcock condominiums on Palatine Road and Winston Drive and the Willow Creek development on Rohlwing Road and Northwest Highway will mean the likely use of the Rolling Meadows pool if the boards of both districts agree to the plan, DeVos said.

An offer to share the Rolling Meadows pool was extended to the Salt Creek District by the Rolling Meadows district last week in a letter to the board. DeVos said rates for the morning swimming lessons will be slightly higher than the regular district rate, but lower than the Rolling Meadows district's regular out-of-district rate.

DeVos added that he also may investigate the possible purchase of a temporary above-ground pool for Salt Creek for use later this summer and for the next two to three years. A temporary pool of about 20 feet by 40 feet with depths varying from 3 feet to 8 feet might be available for $3,000 to $4,000, DeVos said.

If such a purchase was authorized by the park district board, DeVos said, "I think we could find the money (in the budget). I think we might have to take some from several categories, but I think we could get it."

THE TEMPORARY pool could be located in Rose Park and used primarily for swimming lessons, he said. If purchase of the pool was approved by the district board, DeVos said it might be available for the district's second swim session, scheduled to begin July 8.

Under the arrangement being considered for shared use of the Rolling Meadows pool, DeVos said Salt Creek residents could be allowed into the Rolling Meadows district's swim lesson program for $10, rather than the $6 that would have been charged in the Salt Creek program. Rolling Meadows residents are charged $8 for the program, with the regular out-of-district rate $16.

Lessons would be offered for beginners through swimmers in four morning half-hour sessions beginning at 10 a.m. and ending at noon.

"They're doing it because of our situation and being good neighbors about it," DeVos said of the Rolling Meadows offer. He added that the addition of Salt Creek residents in the Rolling Meadows classes would also provide more revenue for the Rolling Meadows district and fill classes for the district.

Plan commission urges 100 acres for manufacturing

The Hoffman Estates Plan Commission voted Wednesday night to recommend approval by the village board of rezoning 100 acres of land near Barrington and Hassell roads from single-family to manufacturing.

In other action:

• Hearings were continued with no action taken on a village request to rezone 2.7 acres at Pleasant Street and Library Lane from multiple-family to single-family zoning. The village was notified Monday the owners of that parcel have filed suit demanding immediate issuance of building permits for 60 apartment units on the site.

• The commission heard plans for construction of a K-Mart shopping center on 20 acres of land between Golf and Higgins roads, directly east of the village hall.

MANUFACTURING ZONING for the 100 acres has been fought by the two property owners — Nathan Shefner and Irving Rootberg — who own separate but adjoining parcels. Shefner had requested a zoning change to permit apartments on his acreage, but it already had been denied by the village board. Rootberg said he might withdraw his objections if he receives equivalent zoning on the remaining part of his land outside village limits.

Each of the men owns 80 acres, only 50 of which is in Hoffman Estates.

In the Library Lane hearing, Douglas Babych, attorney for the identified land owners, had only begun his arguments against a zoning change when the matter was continued until July 10. Village Atty. Edward Hofert, spokesman of the village board's petition for rezoning, said a conference to discuss the question will be held 1:30 p.m. Wednesday, June 19, in the village hall, 1200 N. Gannon Dr. The public is invited.

Babych introduced Bruno Boschian and Clarence Neubaum who purchased the site May 3 from Camelot Corp. He submitted as evidence a contract for the sale at a price of $135,000 and deeds listing Boschian and Neubaum as the purchasers.

HOFERT ASKED IF there are any other documents pertinent to the sale. Babych protested, saying the question was irrelevant. He added he would not answer because of the pending lawsuit.

Hofert said the relevance stems from the possibility that Boschian and Neubaum may not be the real owners, may not have paid the listed price or may have bought the land contingent on zoning. The plan commission accepted the documents, but reserved its ruling on whether to permit them to become part of the official evidence.

The K-Mart facility is to be built by E. N. Malsel and Associates, a Southfield, Mich., partnership which has constructed 42 K-Marts in the northern Midwest.

Donald Martin, attorney for the partnership, said its purchase of the land from the Peter John family will be closed within 30 days of village board approval of annexation and business zoning for the site.

Man, 26, arrested on morals charge

A Hoffman Estates man was charged with public indecency Tuesday after he allegedly exposed himself while inside his car at the Woodfield Shopping Center, Schaumburg, police said.

Thomas Willis, 26, of 466 Oakmont Rd., was arrested after police had observed suspicious actions in the car driven by Willis. He was released after posting $1,000 bond pending an appearance Sept. 4 in the Schaumburg branch of the Cook County Circuit Court.

'Spectrum' new name for youth agency

"Spectrum" was selected as the new name for the Schaumburg Township Committee on Youth services bureau.

Spectrum was considered a "versatile" name that covers the range of programs offered through COY and "gives an idea that we sponsor diversified programs," said Joyce Kroll, chairman.

COY looked into an identifying name because the outreach workers thought COY programs needed better identification with youth. They pointed to The Bride identifications as an example.

Youth employment unit has 25 jobs available

Youth Employment Service of Schaumburg Township has 25 jobs available for youths in the area, according to Larry Walker, youth director.

One problem placing youths in these jobs are the qualifications employers specify, he said. For instance many employers request youths use their own car or other transportation.

Through outposts at the local schools and a concentrated effort to contact youths, about 75 young people applied for jobs this month, he said.

YES has placed 89 youths in jobs out of 162 job applicants since its start last November.

Included in this number of applicants are 31 that were not filled out properly and 30 that were under the age limit of 14 years.

The Schaumburg Township Committee on Youth reviewed the success of six-month YES trial periods Tuesday night.

YES will be continued with the committee's direction to concentrate its efforts on reaching employers to help determine the percentage of jobs that can be filled by youths.

Most of the job placements are for long term, part-time jobs, said Walker, although several youths have been placed in full-time positions. Daily work such as babysitting and yard work also is considered for job applicants.

'Great Kiss Off' climax near

by STEVE NOVICK

Two couples remained in the Great Kiss Off as the contest's 100th hour passed Wednesday at 4 p.m. and a new record was set.

Those remaining in the competition are Duane and Doris Boudreaux of Houston, Tex., and Vinnie Toro and Louise Heath of Fort Lauderdale, Fla.

A third couple, who kissed from noon Saturday until 5 a.m. Wednesday dropped out with their spirit for the sport still intact. They are Cheryl Stibl and Donald Mokris of Cleveland, Ohio.

They fell apart while sleeping, a Kiss Off judge said. When Mokris was told they were not kissing any longer, he just rolled over, kissed Cheryl and went back to sleep, the judge added.

At the Grand Mall of Woodfield Shopping Center, where the event is being held, Cheryl cheered on the remaining couples. "I just stretched while we were sleeping and that was it. Our lips parted," she said.

But she was glad to have been part of the event which has raised an estimated $5,000 for St. Jude's Children's Research Hospital, Memphis, Tenn.

HOSTILITY BREWED between the remaining couples late in the afternoon Wednesday. Each claim they'll outlast the other despite a rule change which now allows a five minute break after three hours instead of five minutes permitted each hour up to the 98-hour mark.

Toro challenged Boudreaux to continue the competition sitting up without any breaks, but Boudreaux declined.

"That (expletive deleted). How can we make it that way?" Boudreaux said, in reference to Toro and his partner knowing yoga. Taking advantage of the breaks still allowed, Boudreaux feels he and his wife will win.

"I didn't quit my job and come down here for nothing. We ain't leaving 'til I'm a winner," he said. Boudreaux's mother has been at the couple's side since Monday ... offering encouragement. "She helps us with our faith," said Doris about her mother-in-law, talking with her lips kept carefully close to her husband's.

The competitors say they'll go another 100 hours, or for eternity, if they have to win.

AS THE FIRST 100 hours came to a close champagne corks popped and the crowd watching the couples helped with the count down.

"Five ... four ... three ... two ... one."

Camera lights were on and the two couples drank champagne through a straw as television film crews caught the activity. The crowd cheered and applauded. Interviews were held with the participants.

And, everyone around wondered.

How much longer can the Great Kiss Off go on?

Schaumburg seeks dual transit study

Schaumburg officials this week urged Hoffman Estates to join them in a public transportation needs study of the two communities "with or without financial participation."

Fred Dietrich, mass transportation chairman, was asked to work with Hoffman Estates to investigate a method of selecting one of three consultants to do the study. Trustees asked Dietrich to make every effort to present the name of a consultant for approval at the June 25 village board meeting.

Hoffman Estates has sent a letter of intent to Schaumburg but is asking for up to two weeks to specify what portion of the study cost they will pay.

"They definitely want the study and want to be involved but have expressed anxiety about where the money can be found because they have not yet adopted a budget and are anticipating a tight year," Dietrich said.

HOFFMAN ESTATES last week proposed they pay a pro-rated cost of the investigation based on a formula using 1973 assessed valuation figures of $90 million for their village compared with $154.8 million from Schaumburg, or about 36 per cent of the cost of the project.

Noting that he feels Hoffman Estates is waiting for Schaumburg "to commit to less than 50-50 participation," Mayor Robert O. Atcher suggested the proposal is fair. He suggested that only about one-third of a total transportation system would serve Hoffman Estates, adding he is doubtful as to whether Winston Knolls and other areas north of the tollroad would be included in the study.

Trustee Raymond Kessel said he does not want financial consideration to prohibit Hoffman Estates from entering the study and taking an active part in selecting a consultant.

Tentative OK granted for auto-parts store

Schaumburg officials will allow construction of an auto-parts and accessories store in the proposed Olde Towne area provided architectural standards are met.

A new facility for Lake-Cook Farm Supply, planned for Olde Towne, also was considered.

Trustees concurred in the recommendation of the zoning board of appeals this week granting a land use variation in a B-1 (business district) allowing Schaumburg Auto Parts Inc., to build a store on the south side of Schaumburg Road about one-eighth of a mile west of Roselle Road.

The store will be in the area, roughly one-quarter-mile in each direction of the Roselle-Schaumburg roads intersection, reserved for a possible Olde Towne district for which architecture of the early 20th Century would be recommended.

'Cirrusly' speaking, solar halo visible here

by JOE SWICKARD

The Chicago area was treated to an "astronomical phenomenon" Wednesday when the sun, clouds and ice crystals combined to form a tri-color solar halo.

The red, yellow and blue bands entirely encircling the sun appeared about noon, prompting people to call the U.S. Weather Service, Chicago's Adler Planetarium, newspapers and radio stations.

A weather service spokesman said the halo was caused by sun rays being refracted through ice crystals suspended in cirrus clouds at an altitude of 20,000 to 25,000 feet.

One-color halos, with a reddish hue,

A SOLAR HALO in full color appeared over the Chicago area Wednesday. The red, yellow and blue bands were caused by sunlight refracted through ice crystals. The spot to the side is a reflection.

are more common, the spokesman said. "I don't remember one having as many colors."

According to the service's glossary, the halos are termed "astronomical phenomena." They can vary in brightness and coloration, from white to red to prismatic spectrums (as in Wednesday's display) depending on the relation of the crystal-bearing clouds to the sun.

THE WHITE halos are caused when the sun light is reflected off the ice crystals, rather than the light being refracted through them, the spokesman said.

Jim Seevers, assistant astronomer at the Adler Planetarium, said the best halos are formed when the clouds are angled 22 degrees from the sun.

The six-sided ice crystals break down the rays of the sun into the primary colors, resulting in the "rainbow" halo, Seevers said.

The halo was the third one experienced this spring in the Chicago area, he said. Wednesday's was the most noticeable because of the bright sun and clear air.

It all depends on, Seevers said, "just how nicely the crystals arrange themselves."

When the phenomenon does not encircle the sun, but appears on either side, they are called "sun dogs," said Seevers. The "dogs" are more common than halos, he said.

The term is "a very old one," Seevers said. The ancients probably called the arcs "dogs" because they appear to be led by the sun, he speculated.

LUNAR HALOS and dogs are also relatively common sights, he said. They are caused by the same elements (the light of the moon being reflected sunlight), but are more likely to be seen because of their contrast to the dark night sky, he said.

Seevers claimed it was pure coincidence that solar halos and dogs will be discussed during the planetarium's summer show, "The U.F.O. Experience," that begins tomorrow.

"We didn't plan it, but it certainly did work out nicely, didn't it," he said.

'Muir Bank' teaches kids about money

by JUDY JOBBITT

The "John Muir Bank" handled a lot of checking and savings accounts this year even though money never passed through its tellers hands.

That's because the bank operated with one purpose in mind — to help youngsters at John Muir School learn the basics of banking and give them a realistic view of purchasing power for the "Muir Store."

Fifth and sixth graders at Muir have learned banking and consumer economics through a program developed by math teacher Jan Pero and social studies teachers Marianne Bruno and Darlene Johnson. Its emphasis was consumer education at the elementary grade level.

EVERY TWO WEEKS, students received their "paycheck" with all the federal, state and social security taxes taken out. The basic check is $182.12 but some students earned more for helping teachers, being good or working in the classroom store or bank. The checks sometimes came out less, too, if a student received demerits that cost $2 apiece.

Each student then deposited his check into a checking or savings account, depending on how much must be spent that week on bills. The bills for rent, food and supplies also were issued every two weeks.

To put this knowledge to use, students used checks to purchase items in the store, which they stocked and operated.

THE PRODUCTS WERE made by the students who advertised, priced and packaged the items according to the Federal Trade Commission standards. If these standards were not followed, reports were filed.

A CROCHETED PURSE takes the fancy of Robyn London at the John Muir Store. The store was part of the consumer education unit.

Items for sale included "Groovy Grape" soft drink, a sun tanning lotion, eye shadow that sparkled and purses some of the girls crocheted.

Students looked forward to each Friday when they could write checks for the store items. Then it was back to work to stock the shelves for the next week.

Village board wrapup

Builder to finish subdivision repairs

Timbercrest public improvements will be completed even though Mor-Well Builders plans to sell remaining undeveloped lots in Schaumburg.

An agreement between the village and the builder was approved this week which requires Mor-Well to give Schaumburg $100,000. This will "be more than adequate to complete underground, surface and street improvements," according to Village Engineer Joseph Zgonina.

In the meantime the village has refused to issue building permits to Mor-Well, making it impossible for the builder to complete sale arrangements for 30 remaining undeveloped lots in Timbercrest.

Village to share bridge costs

Schaumburg will cooperate with Hanover Park in building a bridge over the troubled waters of the West Branch of the DuPage River which runs through both towns.

Trustees agreed this week to earmark 1975 funds not to exceed $10,000 for their share of the bridge construction near Walnut Lane. The facility will be located near a nearly $300,000 trunk sewer system to be constructed by Schaumburg with a portion of the cost coming from Levitt Residential properties Inc.

Hanover Park and Miller Builders will share equally with Schaumburg in the cost of the bridge, said Zgonina.

Street signs bought from prison

Purchase of street signs from Illinois State Penitentiary will result in a considerable savings for the Village of Schaumburg.

A $3,000 order for street signs was approved by the village board this week with the understanding that a similar order will be submitted for trustees action next fall.

In order to bring all street signs up to state standards, an expenditure of $15,000 for signs alone would be necessary, said Mayor Robert O. Atcher, who noted that purchase of the completed signs from the penitentiary will cut the bill roughly in half.

New taxi regulations weighed

New regulations for taxi operators are under consideration in Schaumburg.

A new ordinance, which would consolidate five separate laws governing individual taxi services operating in town, was introduced this week at the request of Police Chief Martin J. Conroy and Sgt. Al Herzfeld.

A discussion of the proposed changes, which could include a five-year car life limit, a mandatory 24-hour taxi service and certification of specific garages as qualified inspection stations, is expected at the June 25 village board meeting.

At present there is no limit on the age of vehicles used as taxis and no regulation of hours service is offered.

tract and creating a commission to govern its development is being reviewed by a village board committee of the whole. The ordinance was drafted by a subcommittee of the plans commission.

Trustees suggest that operators of the auto store and owners of Homestead Carpet, just west of the proposed building, plan a common entrance to Schaumburg Road that will be closed when a planned sidewalk is constructed.

Lake-Cook Farm Supply Co. will be required to ask for a zoning variance to permit outside storage on a three-acre Roselle Road site where they plan a new building.

Thomas Hilliard, of Lake-Cook, now located just south of Schaumburg Road on Roselle Road, approached the development committee this week concerning plans, said Trustee Herbert J. Aigner, development chairman.

THE NEW SITE IS north of Schaumburg Road between Schaumburg Transportation Company and the site of the proposed Evans House Restaurant, Aigner explained. It is in the proposed Old Towne district, an area approximately one quarter in each direction of the Roselle-Schaumburg road intersection.

Aigner said it was discovered in conversation with Hilliard that the current B-1 (business district) zoning on the new property does not allow outside storage which is needed by Lake-Cook.

Though Village Atty. Jack Siegel agrees that B-1 zoning provisions may need amending, he recommended asking the firm to seek a variance which would permit more village control.

Auto driven across 4 Schaumburg lawns

Damage was caused to the front yards of Ivor Lewis, 131 Walnut Ln.; Richard Walitschek, 135 Walnut Ln.; Raymond True, 1930 Warwick Ln., and Gilbert Pesavento, 1933 Warwick Ln.

Police said the same vehicle was used in all the incidents. Damage for all four lawns was estimated at $350. Schaumburg police are investigating.

A Chicago man's $7,000 luxury car was reported stolen in a separate incident Tuesday from Woodfield Shopping Center in Schaumburg.

Robert Moore told police the car was taken while he was shopping from 5-7 p.m.

Will save money, Scholten says

Trustee urges no public vote for library bonds

by TOM VON MALDER

The Village of Mount Prospect should use its bonding power, without a referendum, to raise funds for a new public library, according to the chairman of the village board finance committee, Trustee Kenneth V. Scholten.

This action was recommended by Scholten in a memorandum made public Wednesday and will be discussed at Monday night's meeting of the finance committee. Scholten estimated the discussion would begin at about 9:30 p.m. in the village hall board room, 112 E. Northwest Hwy.

The Mount Prospect Public Library Board has approved plans to purchase the Central School site, southeast corner of Main Street and Central Road, and to build a new library on that site. The village board has authorized condemnation of the school property for the library.

THE CURRENT COST estimate for the new library is $2,167,000 and the Central School property has been appraised at $675,000. This would mean a bond issue of about $3 million would be required to fund the library project.

Scholten said Wednesday he cannot anticipate what the village board's reaction to his position would be. Village Mgr.

Robert J. Eppley said the village has a bonding power of about $11 million without going for a referendum and only about $2.5 million of that has been used.

In his memorandum, Scholten said, "Referendums give persons a feeling that whether defeated or approved, they dictate the actions of the elected officials. This is not the case, as a referendum would be merely a recommendation, with the final decision still left to this board (the village board)."

The trustee pointed out that approximately $200,000 could be saved if a referendum were not held. Most of that would be in construction costs, which are rising at an annual rate of about 11 per cent. He said with the board authorizing bonds, the building could begin this year still.

OTHER SAVINGS would be the $8,000 it would cost to hold a referendum and the $10,000 to $15,000 the library board would spend for publicity and mailings to promote the referendum, Scholten said. He also said the village could be liable for damages if the referendum failed and the village did not take title to the Central School property after condemning it.

A final savings, listed by Scholten, was that the bond issue itself could cost more, if delayed, because of rising interest rates.

"It would be more popular to go to the voters for their approval," Scholten said, but immediately added the additional costs that could be incurred did not justify the popular move.

Library board president John Parsons was elated at Scholten's decision. "It sounds good to me. That's great," Parsons said Wednesday. "That's a very positive step. He's facing up to the issue that the library is needed by the village."

Parsons also said if the village decides to issue the bonds it would help the library board's efforts to acquire up to $250,000 in a federal grant because a guarantee of matching local funds is required for the grant.

Trustees lean towards OK for revised Rob Roy plan

by MARCIA KRAMER

Mount Prospect village trustees appear to be leaning toward acceptance of the revised plan to develop the Rob Roy Golf Course.

Trustees contacted Wednesday by The Herald did not give outright endorsement to the new plan, but in general looked upon it with considerably more favor than the original plan submitted by Kenroy Inc., Skokie.

The revised plan calls for construction of 2,350 condominium units in buildings ranging as high as nine stories, with a projected population of 4,351. The previous plan, which was rejected by the zoning board of appeals but was changed before the village board could vote on it, was for 4,500 units in buildings as tall as 12 stories, and a population of 10,822.

THE GOLF COURSE, which is east of Wheeling Road between Camp McDonald Road and Euclid Avenue in unincorporated Wheeling Township, is one of the few remaining large undeveloped tracts in the Mount Prospect area. Kenroy is seeking annexation of the property to the village and rezoning of half the parcel for the development, known as "Golfstream."

The amended version represents an effort by Kenroy to compromise with village officials by incorporating several key changes arising from objections to the earlier plan. Prime among the concessions are the drastic drop in density, from 22.5 units per acre to 11.75 (lower even than the 13.5 units per acre mentioned by Kenroy officials last month) retention of 18, rather than 9, of the golf course's 27 holes; and alteration of the layout, with the golf course on the fringes of the property to serve as a buffer zone.

Five village trustees — George B. Anderson, Marie L. Caylor, O. T. Gustus, E. R. Richardson and Kenneth V. Scholten — expressed interest in the new plan, though with reservations, especially over operation of the golf course.

"It sure looks better, I'll say that," said Gustus. "It's beginning to look like they really want to cooperate with us." His remarks were echoed by Scholten: "It's a much better plan than what they came in with before, there's no doubt about that."

Likewise, Richardson: "It's more attractive; a step in the right direction"; Mrs. Caylor: "It's certainly a tremendous improvement"; and Anderson: "They're approaching the compatibility level, coming within reasonable bounds."

Trustee Richard N. Hendricks, who still holds out hope that the village may be able to purchase the golf course to block development, declined comment. Mayor Robert D. Teichert was unavailable for comment. Teichert earlier would not comment, indicating he did not want to "prejudge the case."

The five trustees who appear to favor the plan were particularly concerned that the golf course remain open to the public. Roy Gottlieb, chairman of the Kenroy board of directors, has indicated that it will, and the firm is engaged in negotiations with the River Trails Park District over possible purchase of the course.

THE NEW ROB ROY plans were outlined at a lengthy meeting of the zoning board of appeals Tuesday night, much to the displeasure of some 100 residents of

$888,621 parks appropriation ordinance up for hearing

A proposed $888,621 appropriation ordinance will be the subject of a River Trails Park District Board public hearing at 8 tonight in the park office, 1313 Burning Bush Ln., Mount Prospect.

More than half of the appropriation ordinance is made up of the corporate fund which is $498,475. The corporate fund includes $390,000 which is part of the federal grant recently obtained by the park district as partial reimbursement of the district's cost in purchasing half of the Rob Roy Driving Range. The remainder of the grant, some $350,000, was included in last year's appropriation.

The other funds and their appropriations amount are $187,500 for recreation, $11,000 for Illinois Municipal Retirement Fund, $6,000 for insurance, $2,500 for the annual audit and $182,746 for the bond and interest fund.

Park Director Marvin Weiss said the appropriation amounts are always greater than the actual budget amounts because the park district does not know what its tax receipts will total this year and should the receipts total more than the appropriated amount, the park district by law could not receive the additional money.

An example is that last year's budget was $442,706 while the appropriation was $1,184,836.

Final action on the appropriation ordinance and the budget will come at the July board meeting.

by STEVE FORSYTH

The Northwest suburbs have blossomed, sprawled and grown rich in recent decades while their downtown areas did little but deteriorate.

Communities of 50,000 and more now radiate around centers that are less vigorous commercially and socially than would be expected in towns half their size.

But turning rows of crumbling shops into modern stores and offices has proved a frustrating dream for the relatively few business and community leaders who are committed to it.

The base of opposition to downtown renewal in towns like Des Plaines, Mount Prospect, Arlington Heights and Palatine — all in some stage of redevelopment planning — is simply resistance to change.

IF LIFE IS good enough as it is, many residents ask, why tamper with the unknown? Why attract more people and more cars to the downtown areas?

James Paroubek, the father of the downtown redevelopment plan for Des Plaines, has many answers, at least for his community. They all hinge on two stories of new shops and 10 floors of office buildings in the project known as Superblock.

In the first place, Paroubek says, redevelopment is inevitable in many parts of the nation. Professional planners agree with him as they predict a return to more active centers of business and population, primarily because of land costs and energy shortages.

Through eight years of planning and land purchasing, Paroubek and a group of local businessmen have hung onto their idea of halting downtown deterioration.

THEY POINT OUT advantages to property owners, businessmen and potential workers and shoppers in the new area. Another promised advantage is tax relief for homeowners as the business community assumes a greater share of the tax load. Increased business also means increased sales tax revenue.

Des Plaines is only one Northwest suburb wrestling with downtown redevelopment. Palatine has a disputed plan for a new downtown that will have a rural characteristic. Arlington Heights has had several plans. And Mount Prospect, a late bloomer, is seeking planners to draw up redevelopment proposals.

Money is not the only goal of redevelopment in suburban communities. Lost for years in the category of "Chicago suburbs," many community leaders would like to see each town develop a character and identity of its own. There is no written value for "identity," but local officials and professional planners alike agree it is a desirable goal for a community.

But the benefits of redevelopment are off in the future. The costs are now and the return is only a projection. Government actions needed to spur renewal projects make them politically vulnerable. The problems become a mound of barriers that is difficult for the redevelopment bulldozer to move.

DES PLAINE'S could serve as a model of the problems and successes in rebuilding a suburban downtown.

The Des Plaines project started in 1966 with a businessmen's group known as the Des Plaines Redevelopment Assn. In 1968, the Des Plaines Tomorrow Corp., a nonprofit organization, was formed with Paroubek as president. The Tomorrow group of 40 to 50 businessmen pledged $5,000 or more to the corporation, to give it power to borrow money.

The pledges — not cash — were used

'New downtown' facing obstacles in many suburbs

THE DES PLAINE'S Superblock plan is rolling to a conclusion after eight years of planning and land purchasing. James Paroubek, president of the Des

Plaines Tomorrow Corp., looks over the rubble that marks the only visible progress so far. New objections now confront the redevelopment plans.

'Cirrusly' speaking, solar halo visible here

by JOE SWICKARD

The Chicago area was treated to an "astronomical phenomenon" Wednesday when the sun, clouds and ice crystals combined to form a tri-color solar halo.

The red, yellow and blue bands entirely encircling the sun appeared about noon, prompting people to call the U.S. Weather Service, Chicago's Adler Planetarium, newspapers and radio stations.

A weather service spokesman said the halo was caused by sun rays being refracted through ice crystals suspended in cirrus clouds at an altitude of 20,000 to 25,000 feet.

One-color halos, with a reddish hue,

are more common, the spokesman said. "I don't remember one having as many colors."

According to the service's glossary, the halos are termed "astronomical phenomena." They can vary in brightness and coloration, from white to red to prismatic spectrums (as in Wednesday's display) depending on the relation of the crystal-bearing clouds to the sun.

THE WHITE halos are caused when the sun light is reflected off the ice crystals, rather than the light being refracted through them, the spokesman said.

Jim SeEVERS, assistant astronomer at the Adler Planetarium, said the best halos are formed when the clouds are angled 22 degrees from the sun.

The six-sided ice crystals break down the rays of the sun into the primary colors, resulting in the "rainbow" halo, SeEVERS said.

The halo was the third one experienced this spring in the Chicago area, he said. Wednesday's was the most noticeable because of the bright sun and clear air.

It all depends on, SeEVERS said, "just how nicely the crystals arrange themselves."

When the phenomenon does not encircle the sun, but appears on either side, they are called "sun dogs," said SeEVERS. The "dogs" are more common than halos, he said.

The term is "a very old one," SeEVERS said. The ancients probably called the arcs "dogs" because they appear to be led by the sun, he speculated.

LUNAR HALOS and dogs are also relatively common sights, he said. They are caused by the same elements (the light of the moon being reflected sunlight), but are more likely to be seen because of their contrast to the dark night sky, he said.

SeEVERS claimed it was pure coincidence that solar halos and dogs will be discussed during the planetarium's summer show, "The U.F.O. Experience," that begins tomorrow.

"We didn't plan it, but it certainly did work out nicely, didn't it," he said.

both Mount Prospect and Prospect Heights.

Eleven of the residents raised questions about the project, mainly in such concerns as flood control and the impact on local schools, parks and traffic. Richard Wolf, vice president of the Prospect Heights Improvement Association, also challenged the legal description of the parcel, which apparently excluded the one-acre McDonald family homestead at the northwest corner of the golf course, which Kenroy now wants to annex.

The hearing will resume at 8 p.m. July 9 in the village hall, when zoning board members will cross-examine the Kenroy witnesses. Residents' comments also will be accepted.

HERE'S A summary of the anticipated impact of the Golfstream project on the community, according to Kenroy officials, and the response of area residents:

• Municipal: According to planning consultant August C. Chidichimo, the village stands to gain $181,000 a year in tax monies after the development is completed, in nine to 10 years. The $95.78 per capita annual cost of providing municipal services, such as police and fire protection and sewer and water service, would be more than made up in such ways as extra property, sales and motor fuel taxes, Chidichimo said. He also presented a memorandum signed by Village Dir. of Engineering Bernard H. R. Hemmer in which he approved the proposed design concept of the project for water and sewer lines and storm water detention.

• Schools: — According to Chidichimo, Dist. 28 could expect to receive a surplus $970,000 a year at completion of the project, and High School Dist. 214 could receive $685,000. He said the figures were based on formulas devised by the Illinois School Consulting Service, and a projected 359 grade school students and 108 high school students living in the development.

Idyl Nipper, chairman of the Dist. 28 — Maryville site committee, contested the figures, stating that it would cost the district at least $360,000 a year to educate the Golfstream students. "The surplus certainly won't be what they had mentioned," she said. She also noted that a new building would be required, and the district has only four acres (one-third of which is flood plain), while it needs six.

• Parks: Little direct mention was made of the effect on the River Trails Park District, but Kenroy officials indicated that numerous recreational facilities will be provided at the development, thereby reducing the impact on district facilities. A private indoor tennis club with membership open to the public is envisioned, along with a bicycle trail, eight outdoor courts and about seven swimming pools.

• Flood control: Seventeen acres of the property are in the flood plain, which engineer Carl Kupfer said would be more than compensated for in retention lakes. He said the development would comply "in all respects" with Metropolitan Sanitary District flood plain requirements, and would have "a positive effect" on surrounding homes by providing the extra retention. Residents appeared skeptical at the claim.

• Traffic: Neil Kenig, a traffic engineer, stated that existing roads would be able to handle the traffic generated from the development. Euclid, he said, currently carries 15,000 vehicles a day, but could carry as many as 26,000; Camp McDonald, he said, carries 4,500 vehicles a day, but has a capacity of 12,000. He recommended that a traffic signal be installed on Euclid at the main entrance to the development, and possibly also on Camp McDonald at a secondary entrance. Residents greeted Kenig's comments with laughter, maintaining that the streets could not adequately carry the additional traffic.

According to Kenroy officials, the development would have a market value of $93 million and an assessed valuation of close to $33 million. Building plans call for beginning construction in the south-east corner and proceeding in a north-westerly direction, with the three nine-story towers built last.

Family seeks information on vandals

A Prospect Heights family is offering a $300 reward for information leading to the arrest and conviction of vandals who have repeatedly damaged their property over the last four years.

Kurt E. Meister, 905 Wildwood Dr. West, made the reward offer after someone pushed a scythe through the living room window June 3 while the family was asleep.

"We feel we've been singled out," Mrs. Meister said. She added that the scythe incident caused an estimated $300 damage. Previously, she added damage has run as high as $2,300 for just one occurrence.

Through the four years, the Meisters' fence has been set afire, oil was poured on the garden and pellets have been fired through windows. The attacks always seem to come "directly south from us," Mrs. Meister said.

Persons with information may either call the Meisters at 537-5873 or the Cook County Sheriff's Police at 443-6110.

Police to honor 14 crossing guards

Fourteen Mount Prospect school crossing guards will receive police department commendations today.

Police Chief Ralph Doney will present the commendations at 9:30 a.m. in his office, 112 E. Northwest Hwy. This will be the first such recognition for the guards who service Dist. 57 schools, St. Paul Lutheran School and St. Raymond's School.

"They contribute a lot to our community," Doney said earlier this week. "This is to show our appreciation for their good work and faithfulness."

Lincoln Junior High graduation Friday

Graduation ceremonies for 413 eighth-grade students from Lincoln Junior High in Mount Prospect will be held Friday at 8:15 p.m. at the Prospect High School field house, 801 W. Kensington, Mount Prospect.

Four student speakers will be featured at the ceremony: Sue Gebert, Glory Singer, David Kory, and Mary Vandeven, all graduates. The band and chorus will also perform at the ceremony.

Diplomas will be presented by Dist. 57 Board of Education President William Holloway.

No tickets are required to attend.

River Trails JHS to graduate 336

River Trails Junior High School will graduate 336 eighth graders Thursday in ceremonies at 8 p.m. at Hersey High School, 1900 E. Thomas, Arlington Heights.

Student council president Terri Burke will be the featured speaker, and special awards for academics and subject areas will be presented.

Nuclear power unit to resume

by LEA TONKIN

Operations at the Quad Cities nuclear power station should resume this weekend, following replacement of a feeder valve into one of the unit's boiling water reactors.

The valve broke early Monday, causing flood damage in the station, the escape of 350 gallons of slightly radioactive water into a nearby oil separator, and the plant shutdown.

The valve did not meet specifications, according to Clem Stava, a spokesman for Commonwealth Edison Co. in Chicago. Edison and the Iowa-Illinois Gas & Electric jointly operate Quad Cities station. "The valve should have been .56 inches thick, and in the part that broke, it was found to have been .315 to .447 inches," said Stava.

Steam released by the blowout led to the activation of fire prevention spray devices at the Quad Cities plant. Some 70,000 gallons of water inundated the station, and 350 gallons of water "got through a doorway to a nearby oil separator," Stava said. "That's the furthest it got. There was no chance for it to get into the river." The Quad Cities is located along the Mississippi River.

A new valve should be installed at the plant by today or Friday, and the plant will be "on line" again this weekend.

The Atomic Energy commission nuclear safeguards experts indicate that the incident caused no significant damage to the surrounding environment. Yet according to Philip Miller, Citizens for a Better Environment assistant director of research, the blowout is an indicator that additional study is needed of "hazardous technology."

Despite the Quad Cities shutdown and the repair project at Unit II of the Commonwealth Edison's nuclear plant near Zion, the utility reports an 18 per cent power reserve.

This week's incident follows Edison's June 5 acceptance of the Edison Award, the highest award of the electric utility industry, for its role in the development and application of nuclear technology to electric power supply. The award was presented by Edison Electric Institute.

Briefly on business

Cement drivers' strike continues

The strike by some 3,000 northern Illinois cement truck drivers continued Wednesday. No new negotiating sessions were planned, according to Teamster union representatives and a spokesman for the Northern Illinois Ready Mix and Materials Assn.

Talks between Local 786 of the Teamsters, Building, Material Lumber, Box Shaving, Roofing and Insulating, Chauffeurs, Teamsters Warehousemen and Helpers Union and the ready mix group broke off June 6. Thomas Connolly of the ready mix assn. said Wednesday no private meetings with teamsters were held this week.

A Wednesday night meeting between Associated General Contractors and 13 striking Teamster unions in downstate Illinois was preceded by a mutual agreement not to walk out of the session. Strikes by 4,000 teamsters idled some 25,000 workers in 80 of Illinois, 102 counties.

Penny's sales gain

J. C. Penney Co. Inc.'s May sales, benefiting from two major selling events during the period, rose 14.2 per cent over the 1973 month.

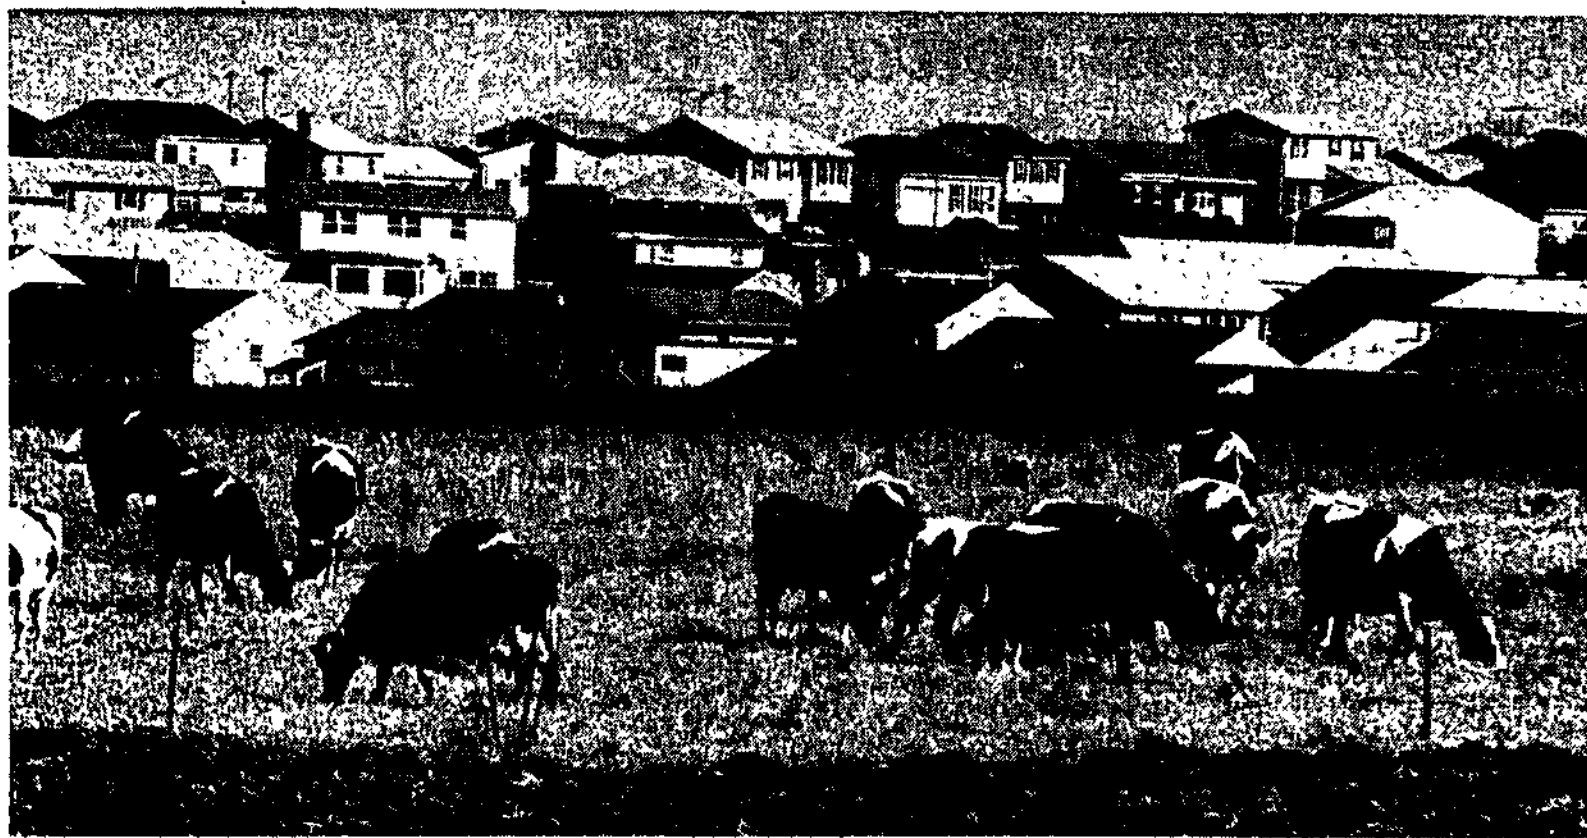

Volume for the five weeks ended June 1 totaled a record $400.6 million compared with $325.8 million for the year-ago period, according to chairman William M. Batten and president Jack B. Jackson. The increase amounted to $74.8 million. May was Penny's 134th straight monthly reporting period of sales gains.

Volume for the first four months of the 1974 fiscal year, Jan. 27 through June 1, was up 12.5 per cent to a record $2,053.7 million from $1,825.4 million last year. Gain for the 18 weeks amounted to $228.3 million.

The company has facilities in Schaumburg, Elk Grove Village and Rolling Meadows.

NPC safety award

Certificate of commendation from the National Safety Council was recently awarded to Northern Petrochemical Co. in Des Plaines. The council presented Northern Petrochemical a plaque "for the operation of 1,501,369 man hours without a disabling injury." It represents a total of four injury-free years of operation, according to Braxton Routh, NPC safety director.

Projection for year 2000 cut to 2 million

Suburban population growth slowing

Population growth in the Chicago suburbs has slowed significantly, according to recent figures collected by the Northeastern Illinois Planning Commission.

Preliminary population forecast figures for the year 2000 gathered by NIPC show a decrease of 1 million in the projections of five years ago. The six-county metropolitan area will still have to deal with 2 million additional residents, instead of 3 million.

The decrease is attributed to a decline in fertility and birth rates, and because migration to the Chicago area has not increased the population here as much as was expected. "Migration has not increased the region's population significantly since the 1950s," the NIPC report says.

NIPC is urging a cooperative effort to discover a realistic growth forecast to prevent mistakes in planning in the suburbs. "Developers' hopes for profit must not convince suburban leaders that the supply of white, middle-class people is unlimited," NIPC says.

THE COMMISSION is most concerned about the distribution of growth, with attention paid to flood plain land, noise from O'Hare Airport and the need for open space. One NIPC conclusion is that by the year 2000, park and forest preserve acreage must be more than doubled to serve existing and predicted needs. "The region has less public recreational land per person than any other of America's 10 largest metropolitan regions," the report contends.

NIPC officials are seeking organized distribution of population near existing services, because it maximizes access to jobs, shopping, schools and cultural events. "An unchecked trend toward more dispersion of residences, and more highways, would surely lead to population densities too low to support public transportation, however subsidized," the report says.

"Dispersed growth would also cost more tax dollars for sewers, schools and every kind of public service. The longer travel distances, and larger land areas used, would add to air and water pollution. The centers of cities and established suburbs would deteriorate as retail trade moves to new shopping centers," the report says.

LOCAL PREFERENCES for growth are being sought because some suburbs welcome growth, while others want to halt it. The size of population has a great influence on the community lifestyles. According to NIPC, there are 12 suburbs alone that are willing or planning to accept 2 million more residents — the entire total increase for the six-county area in the next 26 years.

The 1973 population of suburban Cook County was 2,256,541, according to census figures, and that is now expected to grow to 2,992,000 by the year 2000. The City of Chicago is expected to lose population.

Preliminary population forecasts for local townships include:

	1973	2000
Wheeling	133,310	160,000
Elk Grove	84,221	117,000
Palatine	67,028	105,000
Schaumburg	69,996	140,000
Maline	144,453	160,000

The report indicates the racial makeup of the entire region is changing. In 1970, the region was 61 per cent white and 19 per cent other races. In the year 2000, the distribution will be 72 per cent white and 28 per cent other races.

Unchecked trends in Chicago would reduce its white percentage from 66 per cent now to 30 per cent, although successful efforts for racial socio-economic equality could change that significantly, the report says. Other races would constitute no more than 18 per cent of any outlying county, the report says, with the suburban average around 13 per cent.

Wheeling High double victim of bomb?

When something happens like the Wheeling High School fire, it is upsetting, frightening and, yes, angering.

A high school lost 22,000 books because someone, for some twisted reason, thought it was a good idea to throw some Molotov cocktails through some windows.

The motives of the culprits are obscure. Maybe they had a grudge against the school. Maybe they thought a little fire would be a "fun" way to end a Saturday evening. Maybe they don't know themselves why they did it.

Two youths have been arrested by Wheeling police and charged with the crime and even if they are guilty (something we don't know right now) we may never get an explanation of their motive.

BUT RIGHT NOW there is one thing I can say for sure. Whatever the motives of the Wheeling arsonists, the event should not reflect on the student body of Wheeling High School.

It should be unnecessary to say that, because it should be self-evident. But over since the fire, I have had people coming up to me and saying things like

She won the tennis singles in the Inter-scholastic High School Assn. district meet and was voted most valuable player on the basketball team after averaging 27 points a game.

Four other senior girls also were honored as outstanding athletes. They are Karen Neetz, Monica Polacek, Kim Thompson and Maureen Brock. Awards were presented by Karen Kenyon, chairman of the girls' physical education department.

Education today

by Wandalyn Rice

"Well, you know how Wheeling is." And the assumption those people have made has been that Wheeling High School is, somehow, the only place in the Northwest suburbs where something like that can happen.

That assumption isn't fair, but I think it should be examined closely, because it isn't a new assumption.

More than a year ago, a group of Mount Prospect residents were protesting a proposed boundary change which would have shifted their children from Hersey to Wheeling high schools. In an appearance before the High School Dist. 214 board, Patrick Link, who was then a Mount Prospect Village Trustee, said people in his area opposed the move because "Wheeling has a bad reputation."

PEOPLE associated with Wheeling High School were rightfully incensed by that remark. And they appeared at another board meeting to defend their school. The board also defended the school.

But judging from the reaction I heard this week from some people following the fire, the attitude Link expressed wasn't killed during the boundary discussions. People said things this week like, "Well, you know they have a lot of tough kids up there," or "Well, what can you expect from Wheeling. It's disgraceful."

I told those people they were wrong, individually, but perhaps it's time to face the issue in public. Too often statements like those go unanswered for fear that repeating the accusations will give them credence. But, now, for the record, let's say it: Wheeling High School students are not any different (or any worse) than high school students in any other school in the Northwest suburbs (or the whole country for that matter.)

True, Wheeling has tough kids. So does Arlington, and so does Elk Grove and so does Palatine or Conant. I defy anyone to find a school with 2,500 students that doesn't have some kids who qualify as "tough."

THERE ARE probably a lot of things that contributed to the Wheeling High School reputation. Some of the people I've talked to have said it is because, several years ago, the school had modular scheduling and that resulted in discipline problems. (Modular scheduling has also resulted in those problems at other high schools where it has been tried. Evanston High School, as an example, was criticized for the same reason.)

Some people have said the reputation of Wheeling High School is connected with snobbery. Wheeling residents are middle-class, but they aren't as middle-class as residents of some surrounding suburbs. That is an easy objection to meet — "class" stereotypes are always false.

Some of the reputation may result from the fact that the village of Wheeling itself has had some rough times lately, what with present and former village officials pleading guilty to federal crimes. But it hardly seems fair to blame high school students for that. Not all of them even live in the village of Wheeling, and those who do generally can't vote, so they have little say in village government.

WHATEVER THE origin of the prejudice against Wheeling High School, I suspect it is perpetuated just because it is there. People repeat statements about Wheeling not because they are true, but because they have been said before.

That isn't fair. And it particularly isn't fair to use this tragic (and criminal) fire to further the stereotype.

I doubt there is a high school principal in this country who, if he was being honest, wouldn't admit that the same thing could happen at his school.

Wheeling High School was unlucky. But don't find the victim of something like this guilty.

Meet today on second campus

Harper officials expected to decide on site purchase

The Harper College Board of Trustees is scheduled to make a decision today on whether to go ahead with plans to buy a second site for the college.

The board will meet at 8 p.m. today at the college, Algonquin and Roselle roads, Palatine. Last week, board members agreed to decide today whether to proceed with the second site.

College officials are scheduled to appear before the Arlington Heights village board of trustees Monday in connection with their request that the village board set aside land for the college in its zoning plan.

THE LAND, AT Palatine and Schoenbeck roads in Arlington Heights, is owned by the Mayo Foundation. About a year ago, the college first approached the village about the zoning designation, but the case has been delayed while the school sought approval from the Illinois Community College board to plan for a second campus.

The Harper board last week agreed that they could not delay further in deciding whether to buy the land. Several board members advocated telling the village board to set aside the land only until the college can have a referendum to raise money for the purchase.

Representatives of the Mayo Foundation have said they do not want the land tied up by the village board if the college is not going to be able to purchase it immediately.

LAST WEEK, A DEVELOPER, Raymond and Raymond of Evanston, approached the village, saying it was interested in buying the land from Mayo and building a 1,074-unit development on it. Representatives of the developer have said they would be willing to wait until Harper determines whether it can buy the site.

The Harper board held a closed session Tuesday night to discuss the situation with Mayo and possible action on the site. Also Tuesday, the Arlington Heights Park District board voted to support Harper if it seeks the site.

Preliminary plans by Harper architects indicate the park district could use part of the land not needed by the college.

fighter Robert Clarke, worked for 2½ hours to recover the vehicle, which allegedly had been stolen at knife-point from its owner June 1. Juan J. Aldape, 18, has been charged with armed robbery in the incident. Police said an informer's tip led them to the car. The divers used air bottles to inflate the car and raise it from the 18-foot bottom. The car has been in the lake since June 2.

Teacher talks statement expected

The Prospect Heights Education Assn. is expected to issue a statement today regarding the status of deadlocked contract talks with the Dist. 23 Board of Education.

Negotiators for both sides met Tuesday in closed session in a final attempt to resolve the current impasse in talks. The meeting, according to spokesmen for both sides, was extended until today to allow teachers an opportunity to meet to discuss the situation.

PHEA officials gave no indication of what their statement would say, but according to board negotiating chairman Alan Krinsky the decision to delay further action until today was requested by the PHEA.

Bernard Singer named Sheriff's lieutenant

Bernard Singer, 51, of unincorporated Mount Prospect, has been promoted to lieutenant in the Cook County Sheriff's Police.

Singer, a former sergeant, will be assigned as supervisor of the Fugitive Section. He has been with the department since January, 1963, serving in various positions in the investigative, records and uniform patrol divisions.

The promotion was based on written examinations, interviews with Sheriff Richard J. Elrod, Chief Edmund F. Dobbs and the Cook County Police and Corrections Merit Board, and Singer's past performance.

Tuesday's meeting completed the final step in a four-step procedure outlined in the district's professional negotiating agreement for resolving an impasse. The board negotiating team called the impasse two weeks ago stating it had made its final offer to the teachers.

SINCE THE IMPASSE was called, the teachers and the board have had meetings to complete the steps in the impasse procedure. The steps included having representatives of the board negotiating team meet with the teacher membership and having the PHEA negotiating team meet with the board at-large. Both negotiating teams also met with their respective memberships as part of the process. If no agreement was made an outside mediator will be brought into the talks.

Approximately $17,500 separates the two sides in their total monetary package proposals. The PHEA is seeking a total package of $123,000.

Several nonsalaried items have been agreed to in earlier talks, including provisions that would allow teachers to read and respond to material placed in their files.

3 years left in term as village president

Walsh planning to resign; he'll move to Lake Geneva

"FOR SALE BY owner." Arlington Heights Village Pres. Jack Walsh's home at 44 E. Marshall St. is on the market. Walsh said he will resign his post and move to Lake Geneva, Wis., when the house is sold.

by KURT BAER

Arlington Heights Village Pres. Jack Walsh is planning to resign from office and move to Lake Geneva, Wis., The Herald has learned.

The 46-year-old Walsh confirmed persistent rumors Wednesday that he will sell his house at 404 E. Marshall St., and take up full-time residency in Lake Geneva, where he owns and operates Lake-land Firestone.

"I am in the process of putting our Arlington Heights house up for sale. When and if it is sold, I would have to resign," he said. "The facts are that I am contemplating a move at this point."

There are three years remaining in Walsh's mayoral term, and an appointed successor is likely until the next village election in April, 1975.

WALSH SAID the timing of his resignation would depend on how long it takes to sell his Arlington Heights home.

"It might take a day, a month, or a year," he said. "The real estate market isn't exactly red hot right now because of the lack of mortgage money."

Speculation that Walsh would not fill out his full term as mayor began this morning when he left his job as manager of Northwest Firestone Inc., in Arlington Heights, to open a new tire store in Lake Geneva.

Since that time, Walsh has been commuting between Arlington Heights and Lake Geneva, a distance of some 45

WALSH WAS reelected village president without opposition last April. He had resigned from the office a year earlier, April 3, 1972, to accept an appointment as former Gov. Richard Ogilvie's assistant director of the state's department of local government affairs.

John G. Woods, village president from 1961-1969, replaced Walsh for the one-year remaining in the term.

But with Ogilvie's election loss to Gov. Daniel Walker, Walsh's tenure in state government came to an early and abrupt end, and he returned to local politics.

During the 14 months since he reassumed the office of village president, Walsh made an unsuccessful bid for Republican slating for the Cook County Board, and was talked of as a possible

Kids allowed to check adult library books

Children now can check out adult library materials at the Arlington Heights Memorial Library.

Flyers will be circulated to parents explaining the library's new policy. They will be asked whether their children be allowed to take out adult materials.

"We'll give parents the option," said Frank Dempsey, executive librarian. "They're the ultimate judges."

Children whose parents permit them to use adult materials will carry library cards with a punched out section.

The new policy will be indicated on future applications for juvenile cards.

Currently there are some 15,000 juvenile cardholders at the library.

'New downtown' facing obstacles in many suburbs

by STEVE FORSYTH

The Northwest suburbs have blossomed, sprawled and grown rich in recent decades while their downtown areas did little but deteriorate.

Communities of 50,000 and more now radiate around centers that are less vigorous commercially and socially than would be expected in towns half their size.

But turning rows of crumbling shops into modern stores and offices has proved a frustrating dream for the relatively few business and community leaders who are committed to it.

The base of opposition to downtown renewal in towns like Des Plaines, Mount Prospect, Arlington Heights and Palatine — all in some stage of redevelopment planning — is simply resistance to change.

IF LIFE IS good enough as it is, many residents ask, why tamper with the unknown? Why attract more people and more cars to the downtown areas?

James Paroubek, the father of the downtown redevelopment plan for Des Plaines, has many answers, at least for his community. They all hinge on two stories of new shops and 10 floors of office buildings in the project known as Superblock.

In the first place, Paroubek says, redevelopment is inevitable in many parts of the nation. Professional planners agree with him as they predict a return to more active centers of business and population, primarily because of land costs and energy shortages.

Through eight years of planning and land purchasing, Paroubek and a group of local businessmen have hung onto their idea of halting downtown deterioration.

THEY POINT OUT advantages to property owners, businessmen and potential workers and shoppers in the new area. Another promised advantage is tax relief for homeowners as the business community assumes a greater share of the tax load. Increased business also means increased sales tax revenue.

Des Plaines is only one Northwest suburb wrestling with downtown redevelopment. Palatine has a disputed plan for a new downtown that will have a rural characteristic. Arlington Heights has had several plans. And Mount Prospect, a late bloomer, is seeking planners to draw up redevelopment proposals.

Money is not the only goal of redevelopment in suburban communities. Lost for years in the category of "Chicago suburbs," many community leaders would like to see each town develop a character and identity of its own. There is no written value for "identity," but local officials and professional planners alike agree it is a desirable goal for a community.

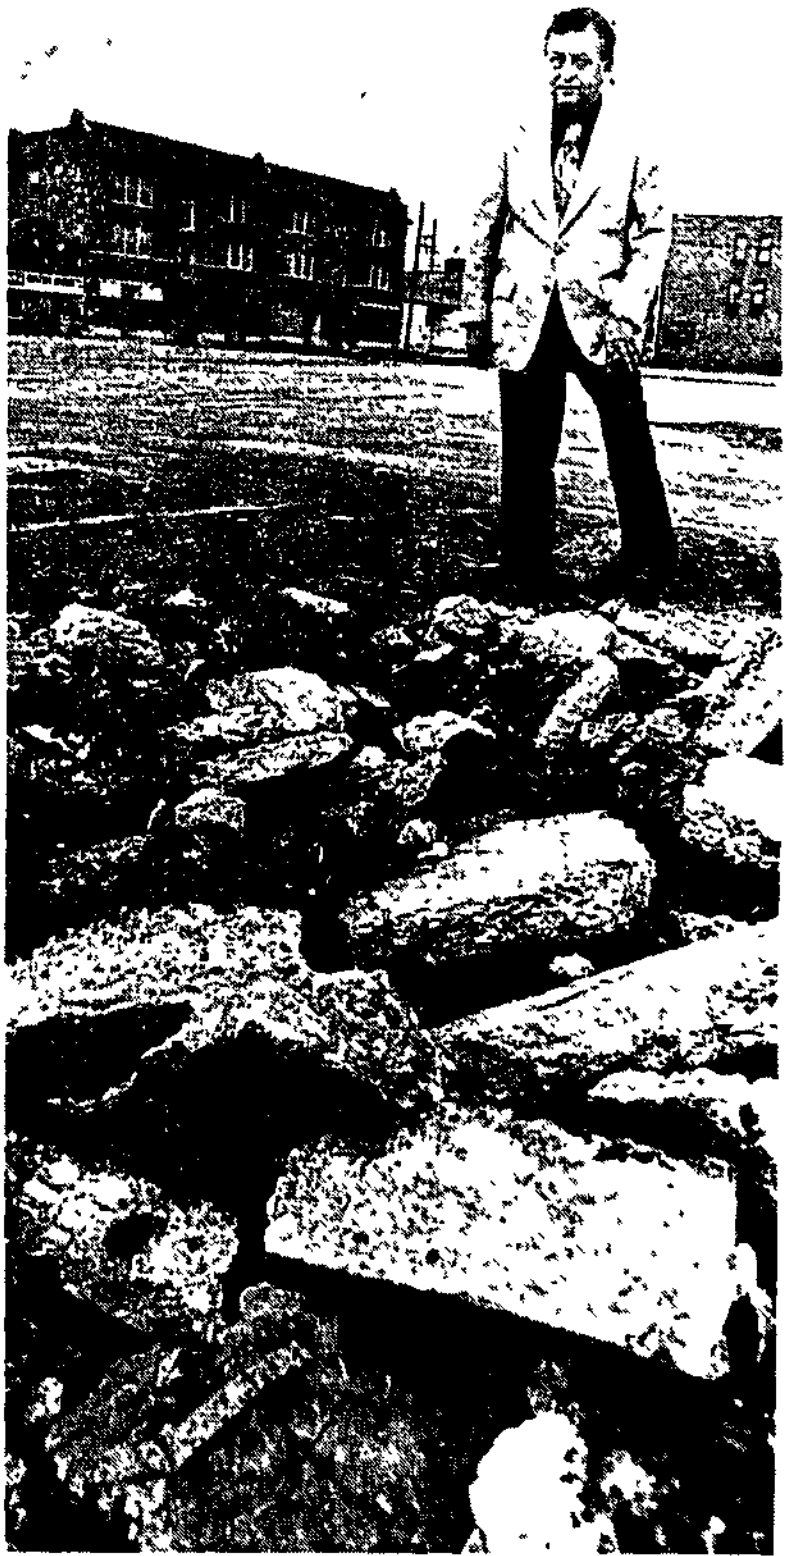

But the benefits of redevelopment are off in the future. The costs are now and the return is only a projection. Government actions needed to spur renewal projects make them politically vulnerable. The problems become a mound of barriers that is difficult for the redevelopment bulldozer to move.

DES PLAINES could serve as a model of the problems and successes in rebuilding a suburban downtown.

The Des Plaines project started in 1966 with a businessmen's group known as the Des Plaines Redevelopment Assn. In 1968, the Des Plaines Tomorrow Corp., a nonprofit organization, was formed with Paroubek as president. The Tomorrow group of 40 to 50 businessmen pledged $5,000 or more to the corporation, to give it power to borrow money.

The pledges — not cash — were used

'Cirrusly' speaking, solar halo visible here

by JOE SWICKARD

The Chicago area was treated to an "astronomical phenomenon" Wednesday when the sun, clouds and ice crystals combined to form a tri-color solar halo.

The red, yellow and blue bands entirely encircling the sun appeared about noon, prompting people to call the U.S. Weather Service, Chicago's Adler Planetarium, newspapers and radio stations.

A weather service spokesman said the halo was caused by sun rays being refracted through ice crystals suspended in cirrus clouds at an altitude of 20,000 to 25,000 feet.

One-color halos, with a reddish hue,

are more common, the spokesman said. "I don't remember one having as many colors."

According to the service's glossary, the halos are termed "astronomical phenomena." They can vary in brightness and coloration, from white to red to prismatic spectrums (as in Wednesday's display) depending on the relation of the crystal-bearing clouds to the sun.

THE WHITE halos are caused when the sun light is reflected off the ice crystals, rather than the light being refracted through them, the spokesman said.

Jim Seevers, assistant astronomer at the Adler Planetarium, said the best halos are formed when the clouds are angled 22 degrees from the sun.

A SOLAR HALO in full color appeared over the Chicago area Wednesday. The red, yellow and blue bands were caused by sunlight refracted through ice crystals. The spot to the side is a reflection.

The six-sided ice crystals break down the rays of the sun into the primary colors, resulting in the "rainbow" halo, Seevers said.

The halo was the third one experienced this spring in the Chicago area, he said. Wednesday's was the most noticeable because of the bright sun and clear air.

It all depends on, Seevers said, "just how nicely the crystals arrange themselves."

When the phenomenon does not encircle the sun, but appears on either side, they are called "sun dogs," said Seevers. The "dogs" are more common than halos, he said.

The term is "a very old one," Seevers said. The ancients probably called the arcs "dogs" because they appear to be led by the sun, he speculated.

LUNAR HALOS and dogs are also relatively common sights, he said. They are caused by the same elements (the light of the moon being reflected sunlight), but are more likely to be seen because of their contrast to the dark night sky, he said.

Seevers claimed it was pure coincidence that solar halos and dogs will be discussed during the planetarium's summer show, "The U.F.O. Experience," that begins tomorrow.

"We didn't plan it, but it certainly did work out nicely, didn't it," he said.

High school grads can get federal grants

High school graduates who need financial assistance for further schooling may apply for aid from the basic educational opportunity grant program by the U.S. Department of Health, Education and Welfare.

Students may get applications at the circulation desk of the Arlington Heights Memorial Library, 500 N. Dunton.

Grants per student range from $50 to $800, with an average grant of about $475, according to officials. The program is expected to provide $175 million in grants.

Students may obtain funds to help pay their educational expenses at any approved college, university, vocational school, technical institute or hospital school of nursing.

The amount for which a student is eligible is based on a formula annually developed by the U.S. Office of Education. The program is designed to assist some one million students who might otherwise be unable to continue their education.

This year grants are limited to full-time students who began their post-secondary education after April 1, 1973.

Library to set policy on petition handout

Library officials will draft a policy on circulating petitions on library premises.

Trustees of the library asked for legal opinion whether political or religious groups can solicit signatures throughout the library. One of the trustees, Florence Hendrickson, said she was approached by a member of an Impeach-the-President group to sign a petition. She said she questioned the legalities of circulating petitions in a public building.

Marlin Smith, the library's attorney, told board members that religious and political groups are usually protected by the first amendment of the U.S. Constitution and are entitled to express their group views.

However, if a person attempts to attempt to petition within a study or reading area, this might be disruptive to library activity, Smith said.

Outside group activities at the library are held at the Dunton Room. The library's present policy for the room is limited to educational and cultural activities, although commercial groups may rent the room.

The drafting of a policy will be a sticky situation, library officials said, who added that they must consider legalities.

Teacher talks statement expected

The Prospect Heights Education Assn. is expected to issue a statement today regarding the status of deadlocked contract talks with the Dist. 23 Board of Education.

Negotiators for both sides met Tuesday in closed session in a final attempt to resolve the current impasse in talks. The meeting, according to spokesmen for both sides, was extended until today to allow teachers an opportunity to meet to discuss the situation.

PHEA officials gave no indication of what their statement would say, but according to board negotiating chairman Alan Krinsky the decision to delay further action until today was requested by the PHEA.

Tuesday's meeting completed the final step in a four-step procedure outlined in the district's professional negotiating agreement for resolving an impasse. The board negotiating team called the impasse two weeks ago stating it had made its final offer to the teachers.

SINCE THE IMPASSE was called, the teachers and the board have had meetings to complete the steps in the impasse procedure. The steps included having representatives of the board negotiating team meet with the teacher membership and having the PHEA negotiating team meet with the board at-large. Both negotiating teams also met with their respective memberships as part of the process. If no agreement was made an outside mediator will be brought into the talks.

Approximately $17,500 separates the two sides in their total monetary package proposals. The PHEA is seeking a total package of $123,000.

Dressing medium-rare.

Hosting the outdoor barbecue calls for overseeing the orders—making sure the rares, medium-rares and well-dones get to the people who ordered them. It's called hospitality. It takes help from a good chef at the grill, a good memory, and appropriate dress—not too conservative, not too flashy. Definitely medium-rare.

Rail noise problem for senior housing

Railroad noise poses the only potential problem for the proposed senior citizens' housing development at Wing and Highland streets, according to an environmental impact statement prepared by Arlington Heights officials.

Disturbances from passing trains can be minimized by the design of the apartment building, according to Assistant Village Mgr. Darryl Kenning, who supervised preparation of the impact statement.

The construction of the Courtyard condominiums, between the senior citizens site and the railroad tracks, will further insulate the elderly housing from train noise, Kenning said.

EVEN NOW, sound measurements at the site, which is two blocks south of the railroad, indicate that the noise level will not be objectionable, the report states.

The impact statement is required by the U.S. Department of Housing and Urban Development, federal source of funds for the 119-unit low-rent housing development.

"The site in question is very quiet and highly acceptable to tenants in existing apartments in the area," the report states. There are no air pollution or other environmental hazards connected with development of the project, it concludes.

The impact statement now must be approved by the Northeastern Illinois Planning Commission. NIPC has 30 days in which to pass on the report.

DETAILS OF developing the subsidized senior citizens housing will be carried out by the Cook County Housing Authority, which must acquire the site, design the building and let construction contracts.

CCHA Executive Director Victor Walchli said Tuesday that HUD will not give its final approval of the site, or release funds until the NIPC review is completed.

The housing authority has not hired an architect to design the project.

THE IMPACT STATEMENT paints a very positive picture of the housing development's place in the village.

"The proposed project will be a point for community pride and will provide increased possibilities for social interaction among the other senior residents of our community," it states.

"These dwellings will be more spacious, modern and maintenance-free than those in which the expected residents are now living."

"The mixed residential use in the area will provide companionship and the opportunity for the project residents to enjoy the environment of a residential neighborhood."

OPPOSITION TO the Wing-Highland location, such as that put up to a first proposed site southwest of the library in the block bounded by Fremont, Dunton, St. James and Evergreen streets, is not anticipated, according to the report.

"This project is being developed at the instigation of and with the full cooperation of the Village of Arlington Heights," the report states.

"No opposition is expected. Generally, the community supports this project," it adds.

FOUR OF THE SIX lots that would make up the site are zoned for single-family housing and would have to be rezoned before the project could be built. Two other lots already are zoned for apartment building, and all of the land is eligible for high-density development because of its proximity to the central business district.

The site is located in what the report calls "a mature residential neighborhood."

"Mature trees and home landscaping is predominant in this area," although there is no natural wildlife or vegetation that would be disturbed by the project, the environmental report states.
